Losing Ground on Both Flanks, French Storm Nazi Lines in Counterattack on Wide Front; Reserve U. S. Navy Planes on Way to Allies

American Aid Begins With 50 Aircraft, Other Help to Follow

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Administration yesterday made the most significant gesture of aid to the Allies since repeal of the arms embargo, ordering 50 Naval Reserve planes traded back to the Curtiss Airplane Co., which can sell them to France and Britain.

It was the first of a series of transactions expected shortly to supply the hard-pressed Allies with Navy and Army planes by the "trade-in" route, and to make available large World War Army surplus stocks of guns and ammunition.

Wider Help in View

First direct response to pleas from overseas for quick arms and demands voiced in Washington for aids "short of war," the naval plane transfer reflected increasing evidence of Administration support for wider help.

As the Navy Department announced trading of the planes to the private aircraft concern, the first of the ships reached Buffalo, from which point they could be delivered quickly to the Allies. They were mostly Curtiss dive bombers, with some transports. Some were from the Naval Air Station here.

The planes were "traded in" as temporarily excess stock, not now needed by the Naval Aviation Reserve, which will require ships of a later and superior design. The transaction had White House approval, but the announcement came from the Navy Department.

A Private Matter

Actually, they will not be sold to the Allies by the Goyernment, as old Army surplus stocks are expected to be. What the aircraft concern does with the ships, it was pointed out, is a matter for the Curtiss Co. to determine. Legally, any sale by the company to the Allies will be as much a private matter as direct contracts for new planes placed by Britain and France.

Similar transfers of planes and other war materials by the Army were expected, as the War Department was reported to have lifted prohibitions on sale of surplus military supplies to belligerents.

The Naval plane transaction was disclosed as Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida told the Senate the President already has authority to sell or transfer stocks not now needed for National defense.

Seeks Direct Senate Action

Blocked by the Foreign Relations Committee, Pepper's bill for increased aid to beleaguered France and England was revised and reoffered as a concurrent resolution, asking the President to "use the full authority which he now has." Pepper withheld the bill from committee, and will demand a direct Senate vote.

Bullitt, Kennedy Urge Aid

The President's defense commission, organized and at work on a defense production speed-up, conferred with the President in the wake of the following developments:

The White House announced receipt of urgent appeals from Ambassadors Joseph P. Kennedy and William C. Bullitt in London and Paris that American production of war materials for sale to the Allies be hurried.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said he favored selling the

"TAKE A NOTE, ADULTS"—Leave it to the youngsters to find ways of keeping cool. Yesterday's 91 degrees didn't bother little Josephia Adelman (left) or Barbara Anne Marshall (right), both of 48 V street northwest, who spent the day at Hains Point

The Weather Bureau last night promised little relief for another day, at least, from heat that yesterday and the day before sent the mercury into the 90's. Yesterday's high was 91.

The forecast for today is fair and continued warm with increasing cloudiness toward night. A west wind is expected to shift to the south. Local thundershowers are expected tomorrow.

Yesterday's high temperatures resulted in the collapse of two persons in the Capital. Unity King, 49, of Hollywood Park, Silver Spring, Md., was stricken at Nineteenth and O streets northwest and was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment. An unidentified man collapsed in the 500 block of E street northwest and was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Yesterday's high of 91 was reached at 3:15 p. m., rising from a low of 68 at 6 a. m. Last night the Weather Bureau expected lowest temperature in the night would be about 70.

Thursday's high was one degree below Tuesday's record 92.

The "critical international situation" last night prompted the United States to close its borders to unrestricted entry by many classes of foreigners heretofore admitted without passports.

In a new and far-reaching step in the precautionary campaign against fifth column infiltration into this country, Secretary of State Hull imposed passport and visa requirements on all applicants for admittance from:

Summer Tragedy

Plan to Drain Swamp Comes Too Late to Save Life of Boy, 9

A 9-year-old boy was drowned in a swamp pool in the 5900 block of New Hampshire avenue northeast, the drainage of which had been authorized by the District government after numerous complaints from neighborhood residents.

BILLY

Billy Benton, of 5603 North Capitol street, lost his life when he waded into the pool in shallow water and slipped into an 8-foot hole. With two playmates, he had gone there in search of tadpoles.

On the desk of a highway department official last night was an indoresement of a Health Department report on the pool menace, dated May 15, and a later sketch for the actual drainage work. The highway official predicted the work would be started within the week.

James P. Caton, Health Department inspector, said he inspected the pool and surrounding swamp on the west side of the railroad embankment about a month ago after receiving a complaint from a nearby resident.

Besides the water danger the insect ridden swamp hollow is a grave menace to health as a disease source, it was charged.

Two days ago he received another complaint, Caton said. In the meantime he had submitted his report to the highway department recommending the situation be rectified. The Health Department has no jurisdiction over matters pertaining to public property, which are handled by the highway department.

Duce's Editor Warns U. S.; Italy Prepares Train For Allied Envoys

By Herbert L. Matthews

Rome, June 6.—The United States is warned today by Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, that it had better keep out of this war or else expect to see Europeans invade the Americas.

[The Gayda "warning," according to the Associated Press, was accompanied by new preparations to enter the war. These, said a Rome dispatch, included instructions to all Fascist organizations, including women's and children's groups, to be ready to don uniforms at any time and assemble in the Piazza Venezia and other places to hear Premier Mussolini's declaration of Italian entrance into the conflict.

[The Associated Press also reported from Rome that three railway trains of 15 cars each, painted with the Red Cross, stood ready in Rome's switchyard, apparently to speed away to the succor of bombing and battle victims.

[Two trains were ready to take English and French diplomats to the frontier in case Italy enters the war.]

The idea of America joining the Allies "leaves Germany and Italy perfectly tranquil," writes Gayda. The United States has already been helping the Allies, he says, without any effect on the military situation, but the political aspect is another matter.

Gayda considers the Allies as being solely Britain and France without their empires.

"A Rash Stand"

He counts all the invaded countries as "friendly" to the Axis, and then says:

"Intervention by the United States will therefore signify nothing but an ostentatious and rash stand in favor of a small part of Europe, in favor of one European regime against another. It would, in short, be an undue and offensive intervention which could only provoke the natural reactions today and in the future."

After stating that no European power has failed to respect the Monroe Doctrine, Gayda continues: "It is therefore obvious that by participating with too much indiscretion in European affairs and in the solutions of problems which have a uniquely European origin and significance, the United States is automatically giving to the European powers the right to retaliate today or at any future time in American history and on American territory.

"If the United States wants to intervene in favor of some European countries against other European countries, we cannot see why some day some great European power should not intervene in favor of some American nations against the United States.

Miss Thompson Answered

"The United States cannot set herself up as the armed judge of European controversies of which she cannot, because of distance and other reasons, understand the origin, substance and developments. The United States, although a great and respectable power, cannot consider herself invested with a divine mission which authorizes her to decide on the lives and destiny of other continents."

Police Arrest German Youth Under Suspicion

Acting on a tip, four members of the Public Relations Squad yesterday entered an artist's studio in the downtown section and arrested a 24-year-old German youth who had aroused suspicion by using a number of pseudonyms. He was held for investigation.

He told police he had twice escaped from a concentration camp in Germany and had entered the United States illegally by jumping ship. He said he was planning to go to Mexico and reenter this country legally.

The War Today . . .

THROWN BACK by savage German onslaughts against both their right and left, the French launched a counterattack last night along the Somme and Aisne (indicated by white arrow pointing north.

GERMAN ATTACKS were particularly heavy between Abbeville and Rethel (black wedges on map) and Berlin claimed an advance of 17 miles from Abbeville. At Pont Remy, the Germans claimed to have crossed the Somme over pontoon bridges, laid down despite heavy Allied artillery fire.

THE FRENCH COUNTERATTACK was centered on their east flank, where the Germans had pushed south from the Ailette River in the Soissons sector to take a foothold on the famous ridge of Chemin des Dames.

THE GERMANS, apparently, were making their greatest bid for a direct drive to Paris, but, at the same time, were striving for an enveloping movement to the north and Channel ports (indicated by white arrows pointing west and south).

BRITAIN, MEANWHILE, her coast raided by German planes for a second successive night, gave aid to her French Allies by striking the German rear lines with the Royal Air Force.

Somme River Crossed, Striking at 'Heart Of France,' Berlin Says

By the Associated Press

Berlin, June 6.—Veteran German blitz divisions hurtled the Somme under a storm of fire today in a drive aimed at encirclement of Paris from the west, and German dispatches from the front said tonight they were fighting from door to door and tree to tree against the French defenders.

German engineers struggled in a hail of fire from French machine guns and 75's for three hours before succeeding in laying a pontoon bridge at Pont Remy, a few miles southeast of Abbeville.

Then veteran tank crews, reinforced by some new troops of Germany's armored divisions, sent their mounts charging into the French positions while German artillery laid down a curtain of fire.

The Germans gained heights dominating the south side of the river but were encountering bitter opposition.

Resisted Bitterly

The front dispatches said they were forced to watch every cellar window, every rock, bush and hedge for machine-gun nests and French colonial troops who swarmed out in Indian file on Germans and attacked with rifles, bayonets and knives.

"They had to be shot down singly," said a DNB dispatch from the fighting scene.

"The streets were strewn with concealed mines. Interspersed with the roar of heavy artillery was the constant rattle of machine guns."

German Planes Raid England Second Night in Succession

London (Friday), June 7.—In an effort to hamper British fliers taking off from this country to combat the German drive on Paris, German planes crossed the east coast early this morning and late last night for the second night in succession.

First reports did not state whether bombs were dropped. Air raid alarms were sounded in a number of districts in Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, Suffolk, and other East Anglian points.

The new raids came less than 24 hours after German bombers, flying in pairs and at great heights, penetrated the east coast to drop bombs.

The immediate reaction of the government was to issue a new call to all air raid precautions services to be on the alert. In a message to the people, calling for new home defense recruits, the ministry of home security said that the "bombings having been begun, it may well be that the testing time for our civil defense is upon us."

Six persons suffered minor injuries and one factory was hit in the raids, which started over Yorkshire in the north of England, spreading as the night progressed southward through Lincoln and Norfolk and down to the banks of the Thames in Essex and Kent.

Price of 'Free' British Pound Soars 56½ Cents

By the Associated Press

New York, June 6.—In one of the most spectacular rises in history, the price of the "free" British pound climbed 56½ cents in relation to the United States dollar today.

Simultaneously, the French franc rose .32½ of a cent to 2.12½ cents, due to the close link between the French and British monetary controls.

Bankers declined to estimate how many thousands of pounds were purchased in the "bargain rush."

The demand began about noon with the pound selling at $3.18, off ½ cent from Wednesday. Then Wall Street heard reports the British government intended immediately to abolish the "free pound" and permit trading in sterling only at the official rate of $4.02-$4.03.

When the day ended, the currency which sold at $3 as recently as May 10 was bringing $3.75.

Struggle Going 'Satisfactorily'

Reynaud Holds Forth Hope For Victory in Somme Battle

By the Associated Press

Paris, June 6.—Premier Reynaud, speaking to the people of France tonight subsequent to a cabinet revision which put him in supreme command of the war effort, declared "the dream of German hegemony in Europe is going to break against French resistance!"

The premier announced that his war cabinet was reduced from 11 members to 8. They are Reynaud, his vice premier, Henri Petain; Camille Chautemps, Louis Marin, Jean Ybarnegaray, Georges Mandel, Georges Monnet and Raoul Dautry.

Raising his voice but once—to praise the "heroic resistance" of the Allied troops in Flanders—he spoke of the times when he had been forced to bring bad news to the republic, and said that this time he could give reasons for hope in a final victory.

These, he said, were the "three facts:"

The escape of the French and British troops in Flanders.

The failure of the German bombing raid on Paris to break civilian morale.

The development of the battle on the Somme—a battle which he declared, on the authority of Gen. Maxime Weygand, was going "satisfactorily" for the French.

He mentioned especially Gen. Weygand's new defense system against the German motorized units, saying that it was this defense that had destroyed "hundreds" of them along the roaring Somme.

Then he added that, as Adolf Hitler himself had said, this battle of June, 1940, "would decide the fate of the world for hundreds of years to come"—but that French troops would smash the hopes of Germans for control of Europe.

Poilus Hit Back Along Historic Champagne Hill In Night Assault

By the Associated Press

Paris, June 6.—Stubbornly fighting French, thrown back on their right and their left by a savage German offensive along the Somme and Aisne, launched counterattacks at dusk tonight and the struggle was reported continuing through the night.

The French counterattack was launched on their right or east flank where the German infantry, preceded by masses of tanks and supported by artillery, had pushed south from the Ailette River in the Soissons sector and taken a foothold in the World War contested ridge of Chemin-des-Dames just north of the Aisne.

Nazi Positions Stormed

French troops, in the gathering darkness, stormed the new German positions. The struggle was reported in military dispatches still to be under way at midnight.

[The Associated Press reported from Berlin early today that the Germans admitted unofficially that the new Weygand Line was presenting "a real problem" and that the Nazis were encountering stiff resistance.]

The French counterthrusts took advantage of the German practice of relaxing their pressure at night.

In the German thrusts, before which the French recoiled earlier today at both ends of the Weygand Line, 2,000 tanks were used.

The roar of the battle could be heard 30 miles behind the firing line—or, in places, nearly half way to Paris.

The French defense was declared "magnificent" by the high command, even as it acknowledged withdrawals made necessary by the Nazi attacks.

On the west flank German advance elements made a march totaling nearly 17 miles from the region of Abbeville. On the east, Nazi troops advanced 6 miles to the Aisne Heights, within 60 to 70 miles of this ancient capital—a capital which tonight reflected a more and more warlike atmosphere.

Militiamen, with red, white and blue arm bands and armed with rifles, stood at the alert in the streets for parachutists and fifth columnists.

Trucks idled in squares and on bridges to serve as miniature forts if need be.

"Situation Satisfactory"

At the end of the second day of fighting the French command proclaimed the situation generally "satisfactory."

The Nazis' materiel losses were declared to be making up for the French loss of ground.

Hundreds of German tanks were reported destroyed—smashed in the giant mousetrap prepared for them by wily Generalissimo Maxime Weygand.

Nevertheless, the French high command's night communique acknowledged that "against this unprecedented onrush of enemy masses some of our units were submerged and outflanked, especially in the region of the lower Somme, where enemy elements managed to get through as far as the River Bresle.

"The same thing happened in the region of the River Ailette. Enemy detachments succeeded in pushing their way as far as the heights of the north bank of the Aisne."

The center of General Weygand's Somme Line was reported holding firm.

All day long the entire battle

President Asks Adjournment By June 22

Promises to Call Special Session If Crisis Deepens

By Cecil B. Dickson.
International News Service Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday informed Democcratic leaders it was imperative that Congress adjourn by June 22, two days before the Republican National Convention opens in Philadelphia.

Mr. Roosevelt advised his chieftains that he would send a message to Congress on the adjournment date, in which he will say that all necessary legislation to meet the present war threat had been enacted.

The message will also promise Congress, it was learned, that Mr. Roosevelt will call a special session immediately if the war crisis grows worse.

Democratic leaders adopted strategy to force adjournment. Immediately after the President's message is read, an adjournment resolution will be introduced in the House and shunted to the Senate.

May Hold Night Sessions

This strategy was laid after Senate Republicans, in caucus, adopted a resolution calling on Congress to remain in session during the emergency. It was similar to a previous resolution adopted by House Republicans.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, predicted "Congress will adjourn June 22" and passed the word to other Democratic leaders to press for quick action on all the remaining defense and appropriation bills, including the $1,000,000,000 tax measure being framed in the House.

The possibility that night sessions will be resorted to was held out in the House where Majority Leader Rayburn (Democrat), of Texas, urged committee chairmen to speed their bills for action.

To hasten action on the tax bill, members of the Senate Finance Committee worked with the House ways and means group to produce a compromise measure. This bill, leaders said, forms the greatest threat to meeting the President's adjournment wishes.

Third-Term Movement Gains

Further collapse of third-term opposition came, meantime, when Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, declared that "nobody can stop a third-term nomination for the President except Mr. Roosevelt."

"He can have it if he wants it," Johnson, an anti third termer, said. "I doubt now whether the Democratic convention would let him reject the nomination."

Republicans declared that Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, would go before the G. O. P. convention in Philadelphia, with the largest number of delegates. However, there was considerable speculation that if Taft fails to produce enough strength to capture the nomination after the first few ballots, that former President Hoover might be put forward as a "dark-horse" candidate.

7 Organizations To Tell Congress Of Peace Need

Peace will be dinned into Congressional ears today.

Seven organizations, acting in a "People's Anti-War Mobilization," will lobby Congress by day and hold a mass meeting at 8 p. m. in the Raleigh Hotel.

The meeting will be addressed, it was announced, by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana; Senator Sheridan Downey (Democrat), of California; Representative Usher L. Burdick (Republican), of North Dakota; Representative James E. Van Zandt (Republican) of Pennsylvania; Bishop Paul Jones, of Antioch College; Norman Thomas, Socialist Presidential candidate and others.

The sponsoring organizations are the National Council for Prevention of War; Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; World Peaceways; Keep America Out of War Congress; Fellowship of Reconciliation; War Resisters' League, and the Youth Committee Against War.

Green Accepts Smith's Labor Act Changes If Modified

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

SEALING IT WITH KISSES—The International Ladies Garment Workers Union voted to return to the A. F. of L., which it left in 1935 to join the C. I. O. William Green, A. F. of L. president, was greeted with kisses by young delegates when he arrived in New York yesterday to address the union's convention

Author 'Won't Fuss' About 4 Exceptions; Bill May Pass Today

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, threw a bombshell into the fight over altering the Wagner Act yesterday with the announcement that he will support a modified version of the sweeping amendments recommended by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia.

In a letter dated Wednesday, which Representative Smith read to the House during yesterday's debate on the Wagner Act and Labor Board, Green said he will indorse the Smith bill if four changes are made in the measure.

Representative Smith commented that when they are offered from the floor "I won't fuss about them." As a result, a modified Smith bill has an excellent chance of House passage today.

"Some Misunderstanding"

Green wrote Representative Smith, who is chairman of the special House committee investigating the board, that "some misunderstanding has arisen" over the A. F. of L.'s statement on March 15, declaring "The Smith amendments as a whole strike in a destructive way at vital fundamental principles of the Wagner Act."

Observing that "I desire now to clarify" the statement, Green suggested deletion of three section in the Smith bill and rewriting of a fourth.

"While there are some remaining amendments which we cannot indorse," wrote Green, "we are firmly convinced that, taken as a whole, the amendments proposed by the Smith committee, if modified . . . , will remedy in a large measure the excesses and abuses in the administration of the act of which we have heretofore complained."

Green specifically opposed the Smith bill's declaration of policy, its definition of "collective bargaining," and its proposal to limit to six months the amount of back pay collectible from employers guilty of Wagner Act violation. Green said there would be "no objection" to a one-year limitation.

Norton Bill Less Drastic

The fourth alteration recommended by Green was to strike out the so-called "Garrison amendment" in the Smith bill, which would prevent the Labor Board from interfering when two unions are in dispute over the appropriate collective bargaining unit. Green's proposed substitute is designed to protect craft unions in such disputes.

The Norton bill to amend the Wagner Act, which the House will consider today as well as the Smith bill, is much less drastic than Smith's measure but does contain an A. F. L. proposal, less sweeping than Green's, to protect craft unions. The Norton bill would enlarge the board by two members, while the Smith bill would abolish the present board and set up an entirely new one.

In debate yesterday, Smith alleged that the NLRB had shown partiality to the "radical C. I. O. groups" and contained "a dangerous fifth column" among some of its employes.

"Selfish Interests"

Chairman Norton of the Labor Committee, sponsoring her own bill, accused the Smith committee of conducting "a thoroughly undemocratic investigation." She declared that "now, as always, the enemies of labor are using a crisis for their own selfish interests."

Representative Keefe (Republican), of Wisconsin, said he had received threats of "political extinction" from both C. I. O. and A. F. of L.—each advocating a different course of action—if he failed to vote the way they desired on the proposed amendments.

The Gallup Poll

Majority Willing to Fight to Keep Nazis Out of Panama Canal Area, Poll Finds

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 6—If Germany defeats the Allies, a large majority of voters polled by the American Institute of Public Opinion believe the United States should fight to keep the Nazis out of the British, French and Dutch possessions around the Panama Canal.

This reassertion by the public of the Monroe Doctrine comes at a time when Congress and political leaders in Washington are deeply concerned with what the country should do to keep the Germans from gaining a foothold in this hemisphere. A bill introduced in Congress by Representative Bloom proposes that the United States would not recognize or acquiesce in any transfer of territory in the Western Hemisphere from one foreign power to another.

DR. GALLUP

How far would the American people be willing to go to prevent such transfer? Would they fight to preserve the Monroe Doctrine?

84 Per Cent Favor Fight

So far as the issue of territory around the Panama Canal is concerned, their attitude is indicated in today's survey which asked the question:

"If Germany defeats the Allies, should the United States fight if necessary to keep Germany out of the British, French and Dutch possessions located in the area of the Panama Canal?"

Yes	84%
No	16

Approximately one voter in every eight (12 per cent) expressed no opinion.

These results, an indication of present-day sentiment only, are, of course, subject to change, depending on the actual circumstances of any invasion. But it is interesting to note that the number of voters who say they would fight to keep a hostile foreign power out of the Panama Canal area has risen sharply in recent months. In an Institute survey last October, 72 per cent said they thought the United States should fight under such circumstances, as against 84 per cent today.

All Sections United

The study found only minor variations of opinions by geographical sections. Although it has been commonly supposed for many years that the Midwest section of the country is notably more isolationist than the rest of the country, today's results find the East Central and West Central areas differing but little in their attitude from the rest of the sections.

	Should Fight	Should Not Fight
New England	82%	18%
Middle Atlantic	82	18
East Central	83	17
West Central	81	19
South	90	10
Far West	90	10

The reasons for the majority sentiment in the survey appear to fall into two chief groups. First are reasons connected with the defense of the American continent.

For Our Own Safety

The largest group of voters say, for example, that we should fight against a German foothold in the Caribbean "for our own safety and self-defense," because "Germany would be too close to us," or because "we couldn't afford to let Germany gain a foothold at our very gates."

The second group of reasons are those associated with the Panama Canal itself, such as "the canal is essential to American security," and "our Navy would be useless without the canal."

Among the minority group which opposes fighting, the most typical comments are "those possessions are not worth fighting for," "Germany has just as much right there as other countries had," and "that's a long way from home."

Safeway Buses To Be Guarded By the Police

Striking Drivers Demand Pay Raises Of 2 Cents a Mile

Safeway Trails, Inc., resumed scheduled operation of buses between Washington, Baltimore and New York at 12:10 a. m. today after a conference with striking drivers in the office of Thomas J. Barry, company attorney.

Barry said buses would be "escorted and covered" by police in all States and cities along the route to safeguard passengers. He said the conference last night followed a call by the company and was attended by "most" of the 25 or 30 regular drivers in Washington.

Schedules will be followed as closely as permitted by the number of regular drivers available, Barry said.

Ties Up 35 Buses

The strike was called on Safeway Trails, Eastern Trails and Northern Trails lines, parts of the National Trailways system, beginning at 4 a. m. Tuesday, tying up 35 buses and affecting about 90 drivers. Barry said Locals 988 and 682 of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen called the strike after demanding wage increases from the present 3 cents a mile to 5 cents a mile and extra pay for changing tires and other nondriving work.

"In the present condition of the companies," Barry said, "it was physically impossible to meet these demands." He said the strike was called in violation of a clause in the contract with the union requiring 30 days notice of termination.

Strike Averted

Meanwhile, a threatened strike of some 1,200 members of Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Union No. 246 was averted by grants of pay raises and reduced hours, union officials said. The new contract was negotiated at a meeting last night.

Under its terms, officials said, retail drivers will receive raises of $1 a week and wholesale and special delivery drivers $1.50 weekly. No home delivery driver they said, may work after noon any day.

WPA Orders Defense Jobs Speeded Up

All Men Available Diverted to Bolling Field and Anacostia

WPA will mobilize all its District man power that can be spared to rush work at Bolling Field and Anacostia Naval Air Station in the interests of national defense, Administrator Paul Edwards said yesterday.

His statement followed an announcement by WPA Commissioner F. C. Harrington that 73 projects throughout the Nation, including Bolling and Anacostia, would be given priority at Army and Navy request.

To Halve Schedule

The effort at the local airports, Edwards disclosed, will be to cut in half the five or six months that had been allotted for the completion of the work.

The Anacostia project, which will eventually cost $83,000 and now employs 120 workers, will be expanded immediately. The money, more than half contributed by the Navy, is to go for roads, curbs and gutters, runways, grading fields and roads and resurfacing roads.

At Bolling, a project already under way, there are 150 employed and the final cost will be $683,000. The major portion of this sum it for rehabilitating roads, buildings and grounds, with WPA contributing $543,000 and the War Department $43,000. Further improvements, casting $97,000, are under way at Bolling, the major share of the cost being borne by WPA, with the War Department cotributing $39,000.

73 Projects Affected

Harrington's priority order gave a clear track to 73 projects in 31 States, the Territory of Hawaii and the District. Defense work at Langley Field, Va., and the Navy project at Yorktown, Va., also were given priority.

Gypsy Pickpocket Robs Her Fourth Victim in Week

A gypsy woman able to remove a wallet, extract its contents and return it without her victim knowing, performed her stunt again yesterday for the fourth time in a week, getting $33.50. Alexander Drummond, 85, of 1362 Valley place southeast, reported the theft.

Drummond told police the woman drove up in an automobile with a man and several children, and asked street directions. He discovered his wallet was missing after the car had gone.

Others who reported similar "goings over" this week were James Thomas, 128 Rhode Island avenue northwest, $58; Dr. Harry A. Garfield, 1529 New Hampshire avenue northwest, $20, and Robert Arrendal, 1808 Second street northwest, $63.

New Appeal Filed For Thomas Jordon

That Thomas Jordon, a bus boy convicted of slaying Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes at the Garden T-Shoppe, 1835 Columbia road northwest, on the night of April 3, 1931, was not given a fair trial, evidence was suppressed, and the jury was guilty of misconduct is the contention of a brief by Attorney James J. Laughlin filed in the United States Court of Appeals yesterday.

United States Attorney Edward M. Curran and Assistant United States Attorney Allen J. Krouse, representing the Government, disclaim Laughlin's charges, contending that all pertinent evidence was presented to the jury, and that which was not advanced was merely cumulative.

DEFEND AMERICA
AIDING THE ALLIES

A great national emergency affecting the whole Western Hemisphere confronts us.

To meet that emergency the National Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies has been formed.

Its chairman is William Allen White of Emporia, Kansas.

For the present the purpose of the committee is to concentrate upon the following program of definite immediate objectives:

1—To make available to the Allies as many planes as in the opinion of the President may be released without impairing national defense.

2—To make available a Congressional appropriation of one hundred million dollars to aid the millions of refugees in the French war zone.

3—Stop the export of all war material which may find its way to the aggressor nations.

4—To take any other necessary measures, short of war to assure the fullest possible support to the Allies.

Envoy to Berlin Home to Report

Alexander C. Kirk Here and Denmark Minister Is Coming

America's ranking diplomat assigned to Berlin arrived here yesterday, and the American Minister to German-occupied Denmark was on his way to the capital, ordered home for consultation.

Alexander C. Kirk, charge d'affaires at the embassy in Berlin, arrived by plane, officially "on leave" but prepared to report to the President on long-troubled relations between this Government and the Nazi regime.

Kirk declined to discuss a report that he was bearing to President Roosevelt a letter from King Leopold of Belgium explaining why that monarch had surrendered his country to the invading German army. John Cudahy, United States Ambassador to Belgium, had revealed that such a letter had been addressed to the President after wide criticism had been heaped upon the Belgian ruler.

Kirk has been the Nation's chief representative in the German capital since Hugh Wilson, the Ambassador, was called home more than 18 months ago and never returned to his post.

Kirk made the trip home by way of Rome and Lisbon, crossing the Atlantic by air. He said that he had not been home previously since December, 1938.

Accompanying Kirk was Albert W. Horn, embassy attache. Both said they expected to return to Berlin before the end of their leaves.

Word came, meanwhile, that Ray Atherton, American Minister to Denmark, had left Copenhagen for Washington, and Secretary of State Hull said he had been ordered here for report and consultation.

Thompson's open letter to Premier Mussolini. It asks how Italy can be accused of stabbing the Allies in the back when she made it clear always that she was Germany's ally, that she could not stay foreign to the conflict and that she has her own day of vindication? Then it asks whether the United States would be intervening for a high ideal or just to save Britain and France?

These and other references to the United States show that the Italians are keenly aware of developments there, and are both watchful and resentful. However, there has been no mention in the press or radio of President Roosevelt's contacts with Mussolini.

One hears talk again of peace terms. On the one hand there is an unconfirmed and rather incredible report that at noon today the premier handed a memorandum with the Axis peace proposals to the French and British ambassadors.

On the other, it is a fact that the elimination of Edouard Daladier puts the French government in a better position to make concessions to Italy. Daladier has never been forgiven for his trip to Corsica in January, 1939, when he brandished a Corsican dagger and cried "jamais" (never) to Italy. Some circles today expect Premier Paul Reynaud to make an offer to Italy, but on all sides it is considered to late for conciliation.

Then there are some who are saying now that since the harvest is so close Signor Mussolini will wait until it is in. The trouble with this theory is that the wheat crop has been delayed this year owing to cold weather. In a normal year the crop is harvested as far north as the Po Valley by July 1, but this year it will run well into July for the greater part of Italy.

Anti-U.S. Agitation Mounts in Mexico

Coatepec, Mexico, June 6 (AP).—Hundreds of anti-American pamphlets were circulated today in this section of Vera Cruz State, attacking United States foreign policy and describing the Monroe Doctrine as a "shameful guardianship."

Addressed to "Mexicans," the pamphlets, after warmly praising the feats of the German army, concluded with the following appeal:

"Long live Mexico, free, great, and powerful with her States of Texas, California, Arizona, Colorado and the segment of Chamizal. Long live the German people and welcome to the Italian people."

Mexico to Take Steps

Mexico City, June 6 (AP).—Informed sources reported tonight that an extraordinary session of the Mexican Congress would be called this month to consider legislation for controlling the movements of foreigners, for regulating the possession of arms and for strengthening the republic's army and navy.

Knox Urges All Possible Aid to Allies

Declares Political Leaders Have Played With Nation's Safety

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, June 6.—Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, today advocated aid for the Franco-British Allies and declared that "the failure (in the United States) to provide courageous leadership in these hours has been damnably near treason."

Col. Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News and Republican candidate for Vice President in 1936, addressed the convention of the National Federation of Sales Executives.

He said that the United States should give every possible aid to the Allies immediately, without worrying about payment now, to protect the future of this Nation.

He declared that the United States has played with the safety of the Nation and warned that the Nation must not drag, as England has "dragged through the negligence of its political leaders" in building up national defense.

"We should immediately lend every possible aid to the Allies short of sending an army abroad," he asserted. "This means guns, ships, munitions, without delay.

"We should not do this out of affection, although 90 per cent of the sentiment in this country is for the Allies, but we should do this for our national security at home, for time is the most vital element in getting ready for our defense. If Germany wins a quick victory this summer, it will find us nearly naked in defense."

Couch Urges Immediate Aid

Little Rock, Ark., June 6 (AP).—Harvey C. Couch, president of the Kansas City Southern Railroad and utilities magnate, today urged amendment of existing laws to permit shipment of every kind of supplies to the Allies "on credit, if necessary." He also expressed his willingness to do personal service abroad in any capacity "if worse comes to worst."

Speaking before the Little Rock Rotary Club, Couch asked his hearers to communicate with Arkansas Senators and Representatives and request them "to act quickly and amend the laws so that we may contribute our part to the protection of democracy, our kind of civilization, before it is too late."

Frank, Mumford Resign

New York, June 6 (AP).—Resignation of Waldo Frank and Lewis Mumford, authors, as contributing editors to the New Republic, posts each had held for 13 years, was announced today in the current issue of the weekly.

The reason given for the resignations was diffifferences over editorial policy. Both men feel the publication should advocate immediate aid to the Allies by the United States.

U. S. Tightens Aliens' Visits

United States temporarily," the State Department order said, "must establish a legitimate purpose or reasonable need for their presenc in the United States and must establish that they will depart from the United States at the conclusion of their stay."

Furthermore, aliens entering the country temporarily will be required to provide "proof in advance" that they will be allowed to reenter the country from which they come to the United States or some other country.

Contributing to the Government's show of determination against aliens' subversive activities were these other activities:

Maj. Lemuel B. Schofield, former director of public safety at Philadelphia, was appointed a special Assistant Attorney General to have administrative control of the Immigration and Naturalization Service when it is transferred June 14 from the Labor Department to the Department of Justice.

At a night session of the House, consideration of the bill to deport Harry Bridges, West Coast labor leader, was blocked by three members, and the measure was recommitted to the Immigration Committee.

Legislation to require all American ships to carry a minimum of 90 per cent of American-citizen crews was indorsed in principle by the Maritime Commission and the Commerce Department.

Attorney General Jackson, at the same time, branded as "wholly unwarranted" any inference that the Justice Department contemplates any "massed drive against any group of the population." He said the "misunderstanding" appeared to have arisen as a result of the President's request for more than $6,000,000 in deficiency funds for the department.

Reserve U. S. Navy Planes Transferred for Shipment to Allies

Army's surplus World War materials to Britain and France and referred requests of the Allied purchasing commission to the Secretary of War.

Attorney General Jackson was reported to have approved the legality of such transactions and to have ruled that the naval plane transfers commenced yesterday constituted no infringement of neutrality statutes.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York appealed to the White House for this Government to supply the Allies with "all the planes, equipment and supplies which the President feels can be spared without jeopardizing our national defense." Lehman said "if the Nazis win, our entire way of life will be endangered."

The Senate sent to the White House for signature the $1,492,542,750 naval appropriations bill making regular and emergency appropriations to speed construction of ships, planes and naval munitions and armament.

The President's additional $1,277,741,170 defense estimates for both Navy and Army, providing among other things about 3,000 new Army planes, 2,000 more tanks and 68 additional warships, was approved by a House appropriations subcommittee.

Guard Vote Deferred

The House Military Affairs Committee in a stormy closed session delayed a vote until Monday on President Roosevelt's request for power to mobilize the National Guard in peace-time emergencies. Compromise proposals were advanced to limit this authority. As an alternative, the War Department has proposed that the size of the regular Army be increased.

Senate Republicans in conference followed the lead of House Republicans in proposing that Congress remain in session "for the duration of the emergency."

Secretary of Interior Ickes disclosed that the Petroleum Conservation Committee is studying reserves of gasoline, oil and pipe lines with a view to possible relocation of pipe lines in more strategic points. He said the country is in "good shape" on fuel and power supplies.

The Civil Service Commission started increasing its staff for the investigating and weeding out applicants for jobs in National defense agencies who might prove disloyal.

Kirk Home from Berlin

Alexander Kirk, heading the American diplomatic staff in Berlin, returned to Washington and Ray Atherton, minister to Denmark, was summoned back by the State Department "for consultation."

As the Navy made 50 of its planes available for immediate sale to the Allies, 22 of the ships were flown to the Buffalo airport and there locked in guarded hangars.

Associated Press reported from Buffalo that 21 of these were SBC-4 Curtiss dive bombers and one was a Douglass transport.

The official Navy statement said: "In accordance with an agreement with the Curtiss Airplane Co. of Buffalo, 50 airplanes from various Naval aviation reserve squadrons are being returned to that company for replacement with planes of a superior type, equipped with leak-proof tanks and armor.

"These airplanes are temporarily in excess of requirements due to the fact that many of the reserve aviators normally attached to the reserve squadron have been ordered to Pensacola, (Fla.) as instructors on account of the large expansion of training at that place.

"It is expected that the remainder of these planes at reserve bases will be similarly turned in as replacements are received."

This was the same "trade-in" method advocated in the Senate by Pepper, who proposed that old ships be returned first to the plane companies who would themselves deal with the Allies.

Officials said the program was entirely on a replacement basis, that replacements for yesterday's trade-ins were almost ready, and that additional reserve craft will not be transferred until replacements are ready.

Senate reaction ranged from comment by Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, that it violated no law and was like "turning in an old car on a new one" to a statement by Senator Wheeler that he knew of no precedent from 1914 to 1917 for either selling such property directly or turning it over to a private company for sale.

Pepper said the "whole Nation will applaud" and Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, said that if the companies want to sell trade-in planes to the Allies "that's their business." Chairman Pittman of the Foreign Relations Committee, defended the move as "perfectly legal," while Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, and Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, called it "taking the path to war."

The Allied Purchasing Commission here negotiating with the Treasury and War Departments meanwhile appeared assured of immediate release of a variety of surplus World War stocks. A law passed June 5, 1920, permitted sales of such stock and the War Department was reported lifting a recent prohibition against it.

Army surplus available for release was reported to include some 500,000 Lee-Enfield rifles made here for the British Army in 1917, 25,000 Browning automatic rifles from a stock of 60,000, 500 3-inch Stokes mortars, 70,000 machine guns, 300 light field guns of the British type, heavier field pieces and ammunition.

Mary hated gossip

Writing of Mary, Queen of Scots, one author says, "... One of her most gracious qualities was a danger to her; her absolute self-confidence when she knew herself to be blameless, her contempt for what 'they say,' her sovereign disregard of gossip." Is there any wonder that her friends were as countless as the stars?

Naming Highland Queen whisky for Mary was a tribute of the makers to her gift for friendship. Many years have gone since then. But this whisky is true to traditions. It is a light and delicate whisky, yet it retains rare flavor and bouquet.

Your Gift for Father Should Be Worthy of Him

FATHER'S DAY . . . SUNDAY, JUNE 16TH

It is just one way of showing your appreciation for all he has done the years past. You know, when you come right down to it, Fathers ask for very little—in most cases get less. So remember, you may be "crown prince or princess" 364 days of the year—but on his day your Father is "king". No gift can completely sum up our respect and love for him—but the remembrance and thought behind the giving go a long way toward expressing it—and here at Woodward & Lothrop are the many acceptable gifts to give expression to your feelings. We suggest a few from hundreds.

If Father lives out of town—make your selection now—have it attractively gift-wrapped—and we will mail it without charge if the cost is not disproportionate to the amount of purchase.

Magazine Cine-Kodak is an excellent gift for Fathers whose hobby is good photography. And this Cine-Kodak has the feature of easily replaceable film magazines—simple matter to change from black-and-white to natural color film. With K.A.f.1.9 lens.....$105.30

Scottish 'Ladies From Hell,' British Driven From Somme

Germans Taken By Allies in Flanders Retreat

Troops Withdraw 'Several Miles' Near Abbeville

By Sidney J. Williams.
United Press Staff Writer

London, June 6 (U.P.).—British troops, including Scottish "Ladies from Hell," have been driven back several miles from the Somme by a fierce German assault against the Weygand Line near Abbeville on the Channel coast, it was stated officially tonight.

The British, according to an official eye-witness account of the smashing Nazi assault, "combatted every inch of ground" as they fell back under the sledge-hammer enemy blows launched in darkness Wednesday night.

The eye-witness account, dated this evening, came from the British "advance battle headquarters" on the Somme front and revealed that the German thrusts had forced the British back, in some cases to points "several miles" south of the Somme.

Some Troops Surrounded

"Highland regiments from a famous division today have been fiercely resisting the Germans attacking along the Somme front," the account said.

"These troops are part of the British forces at the front which are holding a section of the line near Abbeville.

"The Germans launched a strong push in the darkness yesterday night along the Somme, where they already held several bridgeheads, and isolated several of our positions.

"There our men, although surrounded, fought on tenaciously.

"The German penetrations have made it necessary to withdraw our lines in certain places to positions several miles south of the Somme and every inch of ground is being combatted.

"British doctors, barristers, solicitors, architects, newspapermen and bank managers are among the men in battle dress who met the German onslaught today, including many militiamen only called to the colors a year ago.

Fight in Shirt Sleeves

"Today's fighting was in blazing sunshine—almost tropical heat—and many fought throughout the day in shirt sleeves.

"Probably the German attack in this sector would have been even fiercer except for a terrific artillery bombardment of several bridges carried out yesterday in which more than 30,000 shells were fired.

"Up to the moment it is not clear whether this attack on the Lower Somme is merely a 'sideshow' to distract attention from the much heavier assault farther eastward which the French armies are so gallantly resisting.

"Whatever should develop, every preparation is being made to meet the situation."

"The fighting on the Somme is the nearest vision of hell in paradise it is possible to imagine," the account continued. "This grim battle, in which tanks, low-diving bombers, heavy artillery and every modern weapon of destruction is being employed, is taking place in a rich, green, pastoral country in all the beauty of early June with sunshine pouring from blue skies. The very contrast enhances the hideousness.

Bombs Frighten Livestock

"Cows with their calves are grazing knee-deep in lush grass and clover between front-line positions. Mares with their foals are galloping madly away from bursting shells and bombs while chickens and ducklings are chasing around machinegun antitank posts as they fire at the enemy.

"Before the German attack began yesterday there were even old peasants and children living in rose-decked cottages within a mile or less of frontline outposts. Bombs exploded all around them and shells shrieked overhead but they were reluctant to leave their old homes. Every effort is now being made to take them back from the danger zone.

"A stark picture of this new blitzkrieg was provided at the scene of the funeral of several soldiers killed in action who were being buried in a plot of ground by the roadside near the front. While a clergyman was reading prayers with a group of soldiers standing reverently beside him, German bombers suddenly shrieked down from the sky, rained bombs and machine-gunned a battery close by the road.

"Several bodies had already been laid in the open graves, but the clergymen and soldiers immediately leaped down into other open graves where they crouched for shelter from the storm of death from above.

"When the bombers roared away they climbed out and completed the service."

Reporter Finds French Front Is One Vast, Roaring Chaos

Line Indefinite in Catch-as-Catch-Can, Unit-to-Unit Fight

By P. J. Philip
Copyright by New York Times

On the Edge of the Fighting Area, June 6.—This is the kind of a battle no war correspondent can ever see, except when, suddenly up in the blue June sky, it comes crashing over him. It is the kind of a battle, too, that the experienced war correspondent is glad to stay out of.

In the first place the men who are fighting do not like to see spectators among them. It is far too grim for that and with life so cheap, accidents may easily happen to spectators.

Then the line, if it can be called a line, is not a fixed system as it was in the last war. There is no continuous network of trenches and no established front with a definite no-man's land between the opponents. The unwary may at any moment wander into enemy territory or suddenly discover that the village which he entered half an hour ago is surrounded by enemy tanks.

That was the case of a village visited only three days ago by some correspondents. The colonel was busy then fortifying it, and how right he was. Yesterday morning in the dawn light the German tanks swept past his village on both sides. All day yesterday and most of this morning he was surrounded, defending his position with everything he had. French airmen flew over during the day and dropped some supplies for which he had radioed.

Today, the French tanks came lurching forward in their turn and relieved the little garrison, which had done its full duty, for it had prevented the enemy infantry from filtering through in the wake of their tanks. That village was one of these "resistance points" which the evening communique had described as being still held. It was held and held effectively without much loss, whereas the enemy infantry was stubbornly prevented, and with heavy loss, from pushing through the gap the tanks had made.

What happened to these particular tanks was not discoverable here, but at another point where the great mastodons had gone lurching through after crossing a wide canal—although the French claim that they have not yet seen any amphibians—40 of them were caught and destroyed by bombing airplanes and by antitank guns and, although it may sound curious, by infantry.

An All Out Fight

These incidents happened during yesterday and this morning in the hottest center of this immense battle, into which both sides are pouring all they have in courage, armaments and ingenuity. Over it all the airplanes soar and swoop incessantly.

On the way out we visited an air command post. The general was one of the great aces of the last war, but he was alert as a man of 20, even more so. He took time off to explain to us, with pride, what these particular squadrons had done. It is a story of incessant vigilance.

In a dugout we heard the telephone reports come in every two minutes. "Four enemy bombers over Z traveling toward Y, at a height of so and so." It was not our sector. The battle had moved to a different point from yesterday, when the pilots of this particular squadron had answered the summons four times, and each time returned with at least one victory and no losses.

Then there are the bombing squadrons. All day yesterday, during the night and again at dawn today, they were out crashing their bombs down on moving columns, on ammunition dumps, on bridges and on mechanized units; machine-gunning marching troops, and doing without respite their special part in contributing to this immense hell, which is the modern equivalent of what used to be battles.

What has changed the whole outlook on this battle compared to that of those tragic days in the middle of last month, is a new steadiness of nerve which the men facing the tanks and the dive-bombers have acquired. When they occupy a position they dig their individual holes in the ground, and a tank may sweep right over them. Then, as has happened, a shower of hand grenades from the rear may put the monster out of action.

Eire to Fight If Invaded, De Valera Says

Warns Both Allies And Nazis Ireland Will Defend Freedom

By Reuel S. Moore.
By the United Press

Dublin, June 6.—Prime Minister Eamon De Valera tonight warned both the Allies and Germany that Ireland's freedom, won in bloodshed and years-long struggle, will be "defended at all costs" against any attempted invasion.

The tall, gaunt-faced leader of Eire told the United Press in an exclusive interview that "the rights of small peoples count for little" in these days, but that Ireland rapidly is strengthening her defenses and moral preparation against any lightning attack.

"Should any attempt now be made by either side to invade us we shall resist with every means at our command," he said.

The New York-born De Valera said that many Irishmen outside Ireland, and particularly in the United States, can be counted upon to come to Eire's aid if an hour of need approaches.

De Valera made it clear that Ireland is arming not only against a possible German blitzkrieg—perhaps a blitzkrieg aimed at seizing bases for an attack at Britain's "back door"—but also against a possible Allied invasion which might be designed to forestall such Nazi attempt. He warned sternly against any attempt by "any of our old friends" to weaken the Eire government—a veiled warning to terrorists of the outlawed Irish Republican Army against which Eire had taken stern measures.

Referring to the "martyrs who fell" in Ireland's bloody fight for independence, he added:

"The bitter fruits of their interference may be the turning of our country into a cockpit for the belligerents, bringing the war upon our peoples and perhaps in the end throwing us back into bondage as hateful as that broken so recently after seven centuries of sublime sacrifice," he continued.

gear up war industries for the full equipment of the next British fighting force that takes the field—in France or in England.

As the whole nation was fitted into the program of rushing the heavy war industries to arm reformed divisions, the fliers of the R. A. F. carried on doggedly Britain's reduced share in the defense of France.

While their home countryside along 270 miles of English coast thundered with the bombs of German air raiders, the British air force struck blows for France behind the battle line.

The air ministry reported explosives poured into Germany's industrially valuable Ruhr Valley, bombings that lit huge fires in the oil supply tanks the Germans seized at Ghent, Belgium, and raids on German troop and supply lines backing up the Somme River battlefront.

Six German Planes Downed

Six German planes were claimed downed. One British plane was acknowledged lost.

American newspapermen were told by Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information, that aid from the United States even a year from now would not come too late.

He said Germany had been forced to change its plans for immediate attack on England, and added:

"I do not believe in the invasion. I think we are able to handle parachute troops in great numbers, and if an attack were made on land, over the coast, Germany likely would be disappointed."

Cooper said "we now are almost on a parity with the enemy in aircraft production." He mentioned antitank guns, submachine guns and "planes and more planes" as the Allies' greatest present need from America.

To swell the ranks of workers in war industries, production of luxury goods was ordered curtailed drastically and Britons were admonished to impose upon themselves a "voluntary rationing" of nonessentials.

Even Bread Restricted

Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin declared the war could be shortened by "nothing but metal" and ordered nonwar steel work sharply reduced.

Even food was affected by trade restrictions. Bread will be delivered only on alternate days.

France's cabinet shakeup, in which former Premier Daladier was removed, and announcement of a secret session of Parliament Tuesday to discuss home defense led to talk of possible British cabinet changes.

Some newspapers suggested removal of former Prime Minister Chamberlain from the cabinet, and other changes.

In the House of Commons, Prime Minister Churchill said Britain recognized the refugee Belgian government under Premier Pierlot in Paris as the only government of Belgium.

Churchill pledged Britain to continue efforts "to secure the effective restoration of Belgium's freedom and independence."

Sign Anglo-Rumanian Pact

Signing of a new British-Rumanian trade pact was announced.

There was no immediate explanation of a report that the Duke of Windsor had resigned from his post as British liaison officer with the French command. He was given the place, with the rank of major general, at his request when he returned from almost three years of voluntary exile and offered his services in the war.

French Launch Counter-Attack

front—from the sea to the Chemin des Dames, the heights between the Ailette and the Aisne—was convulsed in a thunderous struggle.

The masses of the attacking Germans were so vast as to dwarf the legions they threw into the battle of the Meuse.

The German armored cars attacked in waves of 200 and 300 at a time, driving sometimes as far as 7½ miles into the deep French defenses. French aircraft dropped tons upon tons of bombs upon the plunging tanks.

Air Battles Rage

The sky was lurid with air battles. The French said they had shot down 36 German planes, wrecked perhaps 7 more and punished without mercy the troop concentrations behind the German advance.

The German smashes were concentrated in the sectors south of Abbeville, Amiens and Peronne on the west, and east of the Oise Valley and in the Ailette sector on the east.

On the French right, smoke shells rained down in the Rethel area, prelude to infantry assaults against the line of the Aisne.

Southwest of Peronne, the French smashed 25 armored units in one batch.

Then, on the east of this action, the front line ranks before Amiens fell back to let new waves of the monsters through and into the strange labyrinth of fire which Generalissimo Maxime Weygand has prepared for them.

"Hitler luck" in weather—the sort that helped him so much in the Polish conquest—held for him: It was dry and clear. This facilitated the charges of the tanks, some of which smashed through behind the battle area.

But here the Weygand trap went to work, catching the steel cars in a sort of angular and lethal corral back of the main battle area—a steel encirclement made up of "support points" mounting the famous old French 75's, hidden machine guns and antitank guns.

Infantry Supports Checked

Other machine gun nests and pursuit planes were reported to be holding back the main German forces, and thus preventing motorcyclists and truck-transported infantry from coming to the rescue of the tanks.

The front spread 150 miles along the Somme and Aisne from the English Channel to the Champagne Plains. There were new German attacks extending from Abbeville on the west to Rethel on the east.

The whole vast battle area was enveloped in the heat of summer—a heat made more intense by the fires set off by bombs.

Between the extreme flanks the Nazis pushed on where they had started the offensive yesterday, in the Amiens, Peronne and Loan sectors.

The fighting raged in a depth sometimes of several miles—some German tanks pushing through and advancing that far before they were halted—thus illustrating the thickness of a front on which nearly 2,000,000 men were bitterly engaged.

70 Miles to Paris

The main invading armies still had 70 miles to go to Paris.

The German attacks, taking full form, appeared to be aimed in two main directions: A principal thrust on the east side of the front headed south toward Paris and a supporting attack on the west aimed toward Rouen.

The number of mechanized divisions thrown by Germany into the struggle was large, one source reporting that they were using one at each of four main points of attack and one each in two less vital sectors.

Nazi artillery was especially active east of the Oise and along the Ailette River.

Frenchmen heard without comment that the Nazis had figured on reaching Paris within 15 days through the valleys of the Oise and Aisne—valleys which have known the tread of many invaders in the centuries past.

On the home front, Premier Paul Reynaud completed a reshuffling of his cabinet which made him a one-man war director.

As precautionary measures in the areas adjoining Italy—whose entrance into the war on Germany's side has been long indicated—French authorities prohibited the movement of motorcars within the maritime Alps department between 10 p. m. and 4 a. m.

Five former members of the editorial staff of Je Suis Partout (I Am Everywhere), a now-suppressed weekly known for its Hitler sympathies, were arrested on charges of having "menaced the security of the state."

Text of Reynaud's Talk Predicting Victory

Paris, June 6.—Following is the text of Premier Reynaud's address to the Nation today:

In the past two weeks I have spoken twice. Each time it was bad news that I announced.

On May 21, before the Senate, I said the Germans are at Amiens. On May 25 I said the King of the Belgians had betrayed us—the road to Dunkerque was open.

Today, at an hour which remains grave, I bring you reasons of hope, not from words but from facts.

Germany has launched blow upon blow in three enterprises in which she has engaged, as usual, all her brutality and all her astuteness.

The first enterprise—the German propaganda announced the Allied armies which went to fight in Belgium were encircled and would be annihilated. They were supposed to be cut off from the sea, deprived of munitions, deprived of food. The world was going to witness a capitulation without precedent in history. Before the impossibility of repairing this massive loss of combatants the morale of the Allies would be crushed.

But the steel circle could not be closed. Three hundred and thirty-five thousand Allied soldiers embarked at Dunkerque, teaching Germany what mastery of the sea means.

Far from breaking down the morale of our troops, the morale of our country has outdone itself and has been faithful to our forebears.

Our Valor Affirmed

The heroism of the battle of Flanders and the rearguard combats before Dunkerque have passed into history.

During these days the valor of our military leaders has been magnificently affirmed.

I received this morning Admiral Abrial, defender of Dunkerque. Before such men, who have won the admiration of the entire world, France feels a revival of herself.

She feels the revival, eternally young, of the glory of the generals of the revolution and the admirals of the Kings of France.

All this glory has been brought back to life by a thousand obscure sacrifices—which no living witness will, perhaps, ever reveal—of our soldiers of the northern army and our navy.

These heroes have atoned for everything.

After the surprise of the first combats, the soldier of 1940 has established himself as the equal of the soldier of 1914, who never doubted victory even when the Germans were at Senlis.

That was the first German attempt.

The second sought to break the morale of Paris.

Last Monday Hitler organized a spectacular raid on the capital. He dedicated to it hundreds of bombers and chasers. What were the objectives? That is not important, for all the world knows that with the inaccuracies of aiming, women, children and old people were struck like the others. Did that move Paris? Not for second.

Raids Didn't Terrorize

A few minutes after the bombardment I saw the proud faces of our workers, our working women of the people of Paris who do not tremble. We know now that it was a colossal raid. For the soul of Paris it was nothing. This raid, you know, we did not let pass without an answer.

Tuesday night successive waves of English bombers attacked the Ruhr factories. Bombs fell on Dortmund, Frankfurt, Dusseldorf, Cologne, Essen. The fire of the burning gasoline reservoirs was visible 100 miles away.

French bombers flew over Manheim, Ulm, Ludwigshaven and Munich and the colossal factory of Badische Anilline was burned. The fire could be seen from the French frontier.

In the future, for each raid against a French city there will be a similar answer.

Weygand "Satisfied"

The third German attempt, the most decisive, is that which is going on today—the Battle of France. It is an attack on the grand style preceded by a proclamation by Hitler to his troops. Every means which we now know are used—planes and armored divisions seeking once more infiltration and rupture of our front.

The battle has hardly begun. I can tell you nothing more than what Gen. Weygand told me: "I am satisfied," he told me, "with the manner in which the battle has been engaged and how my orders to resist at any price have been executed. On land we are forced to practice resistance. Our army shows that it has adapted itself to the new form of the war. Since the beginning of the battle hundreds of enemy tanks have been destroyed."

The Allied aviation seconds the action of our troops. The entire world follows breathlessly the fortunes of this battle, for the fighting of June, 1940, is going to decide its fate, as Hitler said, perhaps for hundreds of years.

What is the risk? It is to see installed in Europe and beyond Europe, as everyone understands today, a regime of oppression where men of non-German blood will have only the role of slave.

Tricks first, perhaps, then soon orders, persecution, blows on the face of workers, physical and moral destruction of the elite. That is the new world Hilter announces in his proclamation, a middle ages which would not be illuminated by the mildness of Christ. This dream of German hegemony is going to break against French resistance. For the France which is risen today before Hitler is not the France she was between the wars. It is another France, just as the England which fights Hitler is no longer the England of these last 20 years.

One Aim: To Save France

We, the French of June, 1940, have only one thought: To save France.

All members of the government are animated by a common will: To conquer. We will not lose time when the Fatherland is in danger in debate on responsibilities. We will not weaken France by dividing her. We shall all bear the responsibilities such as we are each of us, each of you, each representative, each elector.

Our first duty is to recognize our own wrongs. In their successive governments and in their public spirit the democracies long have lacked farsightedness and daring. The idea of Fatherland, the idea of military valor, have been too much neglected. Let us say it, once and for all, to close this chapter of our history, and to work with the fierce energy of men whose eyes are open.

Who then has any interest in creating the ferment of discords? The propaganda of Goebbels? The French masses listen with disdain to him calling us a plutocratic country. France is calm and proud like her ally.

For some time rumors have been circulating of new conflicts. The Allies have with all other countries of Europe one vital interest in common: To avoid the hegemony of Germany.

Fighting for Others

Thus it is for the independence of all other countries that our soldiers are fighting today on the Somme and the Aisne. There are not peoples with whom France cannot settle by peaceful means divergencies of interests which appear to oppose them. I have said this publicly. I repeat it.

France wants settlement of these problems permitting reconstruction of a Europe in which the independence and prosperity of each people may be assured.

Let all spectators of the drama of the battle of France understand, then, and let them understand quickly, for the stake is immense and their time is measured.

As for us, more than ever we have confidence in our arms.

Germans Admit Stiff Resistance

offensive was on the German right wing, aimed at encirclement of Paris from the west and severance of the lifeline between Great Britain and France.

Immediate objectives apparently were Dieppe and Le Havre on the French northwest coast, and possibly beyond the Cherbourg, which the Germans bombed last night.

If they succeed in driving such a coastal wedge, they will force British assistance to detour to southern French ports and impair the effectiveness of the British-French alliance.

A second drive is aimed northeast of Paris in the Soissons area, apparently the intended left wing of a pincers movement against Paris.

Tonight some Germans were betting Paris would surrender within two weeks.

Except for authorized but unofficial reports that German armies were striking "into the heart of France" there was scant word of operations along the 200-mile Weygand line, other than in the coastal regions.

At the outset the Germans had emphasized that details of the offensive might be slow in coming.

The high command communique was delayed more than three hours and then it devoted only a few lines to the new drive which Germans hoped would be the decisive stroke of the war.

The communique nowise indicated the extent of the claimed advances, but said, in part:

"The operations begun yesterday in France have moved forward according to plan. Our troops have won ground everywhere to the southwest."

Other high points in the high command's report were:

That troop concentrations and columns behind the French front had been bombed and "several airdromes" in central France, the strategic French port of Cherbourg and "numerous airdromes" on the eastern and southeastern English coast had been "successfully attacked" during the night.

That 143 Allied planes were destroyed yesterday that 19 German planes were missing.

That the Allies had repeated attacks on "nonmilitary objectives" during the night in northern and western Germany, but caused "no essential damages," while two Allied planes were shot down over Hamburg and a third in the Netherlands.

That the tabulation of prisoners captured at Dunkerque, the Allies' point of withdrawal from the debacle in Flanders, had risen from 40,000 to 58,000, while the booty in arms and material was "incalculable."

The southwesterly direction of the right wing drive, seemingly aimed to curve around Paris like a scythe after a conquest of the lower Seine Valley, indicated that land assault on the ports of Dieppe and Le Havre might be synchronized with renewed bombing of England's airport, just across the Channel.

On the way back we saw some German prisoners being brought in—in charabancs, used for marriages and fetes, all decked with white lace but without bridal flowers. They were a grim and grimy lot, mostly young, but here and there a veteran and all utterly tired.

Cherbourg lies at the tip of an English Channel peninsula about 85 airline miles west of Le Havre and a land offensive there would represent either a detour from the Paris drive or a separate operation.

The reported German raid on Cherbourg indicated a determination to blast the supply and communication links between England and the embattled French—already drastically impaired by the German victory in Flanders.

Boy, 9, Drowned In Swamp Pool

pool touches on six District lots and is therefore on District land, the highway department drew up plans for the drainage.

This would involve relocating the eastern terminus of a 42-inch drainage pipe laid through the railroad fill in 1936 to drain the water out of the east side of the embankment. The pipe has failed to siphon off the pool, fed by an underground stream, since sliding earth on the east slope of the embankment covered over the terminus there two years ago.

Efforts of the Highway Department on June 1 to secure the steam shovel used for excavation purposes to relocate the buried pipe were unavailing. The shovel was being used in connection with work on the Anacostia Bridge.

With Billy when the tragedy occurred were two classmates at the Keene School, Joseph Weiss, 9, of 4 Longfellow street northwest, and Neil Aiken, 8, 729 Nicholson street northwest.

Young Weiss said they sat for several minutes on a board on the bank, reaching over into the water to catch several tadpoles.

Apparently tiring of the sport, Billy stripped off his shoes and stockings and waded out. He suddenly sank from sight only a few feet from the shore.

Mrs. Browning L. Benton, mother of the child, told police she had warned Billy not to go to the swamp which he also visited Wednesday.

Besides his mother and father, a salesman, he leaves two sisters and two brothers.

The pool is similar to the one recently drained by the District in the 3700 block of Albemarle street after neighbors had complained of the health menace and a child was rescued there after he had fallen in.

Machine-Gunned, Say Survivors Of Refugee Ship

Copyright by New York Times

London, June 6.—How the 680-ton steamer Abukir, taking more than 200 refugees from Ostend to England, escaped German bombs only to be sunk later by a U-boat and how many of her passengers were machine-gunned while floating on the water, was related by one survivor today.

While in Ostend the Abukir was subjected to heavy air attacks prior to leaving there on the night of May 27, and for 90 minutes after heading for England. No bombs found their target.

On the morning of May 28, a submarine fired several torpedoes, one hitting the Abukir amidships. The vessel broke in half and sank in less than a minute.

Downing St. Cats Create Problem Of Feline Protocol

London, June 6.—Downing Street is worried about its official cats.

No. 10, residence of the prime minister, has had its black cat on the government pay roll for years. Known as the "Munich cat," because of its identification with former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, its fate is uncertain now that Winston Churchill has taken the helm.

The cynics suggest that Churchill, unlike Chamberlain, is not fond of cats. Churchill's friends say this is "a gross aspersion," and insist that he is, in fact, "devoted to cats." He has a large ginger cat of his own at his home at Chartwell, Kent, and at the admiralty acquired a black one named "Nelson."

"Nelson," say the tipsters, will follow his master shortly to Downing Street and make a problem of feline protocol. How, it is asked, will the "Munich" cat react to "Nelson?" Will it follow Chamberlain next door to his new home at No. 11, leaving the field at No. 10 to "Nelson?" Or will it refuse to abdicate and call for a show-down in His Majesty's court of justice?

Nazis Stream South on Every Road for 'Knockout' Blow at France

By Ralph W. Barnes,
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

With the German Army in the West, June 6.—With the great drive to the sea ended in the fall of stricken Dunkerque, Adolf Hitler's big offensive to smash the French army and bring France to capitulation is in full swing.

The Fuehrer and his general have no intention of giving either the hard pressed French or their British allies time to catch their breath.

During our tour of the past five days through battle fields of northwestern France and southern Belgium we have witnessed the new offensive in preparation—though the German officers who have accompanied us took care until the official bulletin appeared not to interpret for us what we were seeing.

Great masses of troops, many of them veterans of the drive to the sea, have been moving southward. We have passed them on the highways. There are none on the railways, which are ruined. Here and there we have been forced by the big parade to halt or make detours.

All Arms on March

Infantry afoot, infantry on bicycles, infantry in trucks, horse-drawn field artillery, motor howitzers, motorized antiaircraft artillery, columns of tanks, horse-drawn supply trains, motorized supply columns—all these we've seen marching or rolling southward.

As recently as last night we passed a detachment of medium sized tanks rumbling along toward the southern front. Just outside of La Chapelle we encountered the advance detachments making their way—southwards—across an emergency bridge, spanning a canal, which had been recently erected by German "pioneers" to replace a demolished stone bridge.

Our automobile caravan was moving northward at this point. Since the bridge was wide enough only for one-way traffic, the infantry halted its advance to let us through. The heavy Mercedes car in which I was riding traversed the bridge but stuck in the mud of the steep incline of the northern end. Planks were placed in the mud and German pilots, German officers and American newspapermen alike put their shoulders to the car, but the wheels did nothing but spin furiously.

This was too much for the first lieutenant in command of the infantry detachment halted at the bridgehead. The big offensive southward was being retarded by the vehicles conveying a handful of foreign correspondents. Out of temper, the first lieutenant approached the lieutenant colonel in charge of our party and gave him a piece of his mind.

"Herr Oberst," he shouted, "you cannot hold us up like this. I'm responsible for getting my men forward."

Apparently under German military regulations, confirming the right-of-way to an advancing column, the first lieutenant was within his rights and not guilty of insubordination. In any case, the reply of our accompanying officer was apparently ineffective.

Finally, our car was pulled out of the mud by another Mercedes. Though the main trend of the military traffic has been southward, we have passed many detachments moving in the opposite direction, of course.

Outfits which participated in the preparatory stage of the offensive on the southern front were now en route to the rear to refit, supply columns moving back to replenish and likewise ambulances bringing in the wounded.

With few exceptions, we have found the highways in northwestern France as well as in Belgium in excellent condition despite the warfare they have seen. Along stretches relatively free of military traffic, columns of Allied prisoners and civilian refugees, we have sped forward at 40, 50 and even 70 miles per hour. The majority of the bridges, it is true, were wrecked. The crossing of the emergency spans which replaced them, usually results in delays, sometimes in detours.

Only very occasionally have we encountered a shell hole or a bomb hole in the pavement. In order not to retard the advance of the land forces, especially tanks and other mechanized equipment, the German bombers, including stukas or dive bombers, have observed for the most part the strict instruction to drop their loads at the sides rather than on the highways.

Railroads Unusable

The swiftness of the German mechanized advance apparently left the retreating Allies themselves no time in which to resort to the destruction of the roads. As announced by the French government, even the elementary precaution of blowing up certain of the key bridges along the Meuse was not taken.

In contrast to the highways, the railway system has collapsed. Throughout Belgium and the German-occupied section of France, we have not seen a single train in operation. Thus, the Germans are depending entirely on the highways for the movement and supplying of their land forces in the offensive against France, which has now begun. This means, of course, a tremendous consumption of fuel.

Parking Lot Case Settled for $2,400

Samuel Lovenbein, former concessionaire of a parking lot at John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, settled with the District government for $2,400 for use of the land in United States District Court yesterday.

The District government sued for $3,135. Lovenbein recently lost his case in the United States Court of Appeals to retain the property.

2 Army Officers Named to Train 200 Civil Service Investigators

Checkups to Bar Reds, Bunders From U. S. Jobs

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Two Army reserve officers yesterday were assigned to train investigators for the Civil Service Commission and build up the investigating staff to more than twice its present size.

The staff, officials announced, will be enlarged to 200 men to investigate applicants for Government jobs. Their announcement said:

"The commission's investigations will, among other things, deal with the question of the applicant's loyalty to the United States Government."

Stricter investigations were planned in line with the commission's new policy to bar from Government jobs members of the Communist Party or Nazi Bund.

Meanwhile, Secretary Ickes said that "I didn't find one subversive employe," and "I don't expect to find any, either."

Secretary Ickes this week ordered all his Interior Department employes to state in writing, under oath, whether they belonged to any political party or organization advocating overthrowing of American constitutional Government.

Yesterday he told his press conference that the move had been ordered because it seemed to come within the spirit of the Hatch Act. He said he did not see any reason for an employe who is not a member of a subversive organization to object, and added that he thought his action was a "clearer, franker" way of finding these members than putting out a lot of investigators.

The Civil Service Commission's program calls for all new job applicants to answer a similar question under oath, and to enforce the ban on Communist Party and Bund members.

Director of the enlarged investigation program will be James E. Hatcher, World War Marine Corps veteran and a major in the Army Reserves.

Captain Dengler to Help

In addition, Capt. Harry Dengler, training director for the Treasury Department's investigators, and an Army Reserve officer, will help in training the new staff.

Investigations for job applicants in defense agencies, officials said, will be handled in cooperation with investigators of the Treasury, Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Intelligence Services of the military departments.

Hatcher has been employed at the commission for 10 years. In recent weeks he has been acting director of personnel, a job which will be taken over now by Harold Leich. Before entering the Government service he was a deputy prosecuting attorney in Indianapolis for six years. He is a former investigator for the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Dengler has trained several thousand investigators for the Treasury Department. His work there started in 1927 with the assignment to train prohibition enforcement agents. The Treasury now employs about 2,600 investigators, and enforcement officers, in the Secret Service, tax divisions, narcotics agency and Coast Guard.

Along with Hatcher's appointment, William H. McMillen, commission investigator for ten years, was named field training supervisor.

Jobs: First copies of a new weekly report of skilled labor examinations for defense agencies were sent out yesterday to about 5,000 local branches of the Civil Service Commission.

Washington Navy Yard is seeking machinists, and precision lens, prism and test plate makers. In seven other major navy yards, along both coasts, heaviest demand is for shipfitters and loftsmen. Several reported extra demand for shipwrights, coppersmiths, and toolmakers. Machinists and toolmakers are wanted at the Army arsenals in Watertown, Mass.; Watervliet, N. Y., and Philadelphia.

$3,000 Money Belt Of Actor Reported Stolen in Hotel

The $3,000 that Walther Sidney, vaudeville performer, put away in a money belt "rainy day" vanished yesterday and, French-born, he summoned what English he could to describe his distress.

He took his money belt to the public bathroom of his downtown hotel yesterday. His bath concluded, he went out, forgetting the belt. A half hour later he returned and it was gone.

The performer, who has been appearing at the Earle Theater, told police the belt contained a $300 bill; 25 $100 bills and some smaller ones.

Wilbur John Carr, Ex-Envoy, Elected To G. W. U. Board

Wilbur John Carr, former Assistant Secretary of State and the last United States Minister to Czecho-Slovakia, has been elected to the board of trustees of George Washington University, it was announced Wednesday. He will serve a three-year term.

Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, was re-elected chairman of the board. Carr and Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, who was reelected for a three-year term, were nominated to the board by vote of alumni throughout the country. Senator Clark has served as alumni trustee since 1934.

Other members of the board, re-elected for three year terms, include Charles S. Baker, Washington attorney; John St. Clair Brookes, jr., Washington attorney; John Henry Cowles, of Washington; Charles Carroll Glover, jr., of the Riggs National Bank; Arthur Peter, Member of the District bar; Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, of Washington, and Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nation's Business.

Civic Group Asks Land Purchase

A resolution urging Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission to expedite purchase of lands in the Anacostia Valley to aid in flood control was adopted last night by the Prince Georges Federation of Citizens Associations. The association met at the Bladensburg Firehouse.

Offered by Fred W. Gast, of Cheverly, chairman of the waterways committee, the resolution asked the flood control plan recommended by the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, be followed. The Calvert Hills Citizens Association was voted into membership.

Farm-Aid Program Given Roosevelt; U. S. Exports Drop

The American Farm Bureau Federation, through its president, Edward A. O'Neal, yesterday urged upon President Roosevelt a 12-point program to cushion farmers against the economic shocks of war abroad.

Notably, O'Neal proposed making mandatory the present discretionary power of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to barter surplus farm commodities for strategic raw materials.

Meanwhile, the Department of Commerce reported that exports to Europe in April declined $19,000,000 to $140,000,000, but imports from that continent survived the blitzkrieg shock without appreciable reduction.

O'Neal also suggested to the President that Congress appropriate $100,000,000 to the American Red Cross for assistance in the form of food and other supplies to European war refugees.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Community Center Department presents the Columbia Light Opera Company in "Blossom Time" Thursday evening in Roosevelt High School auditorium. Conductor: Ethyl Manning. Cast of principal characters:

Franz Schubert.....Howard Moore
Franz von Schober..Alexander Hill
Mitzi Kranz..Edith Hoffman Jones
Bellabruna.....Lola Sanders
Christopher Kranz..Eugene Kressin
Johann Michael Vogl..Bob Boehler
Moriz Schwind.....Mayne R. Coe

With the excellent teamwork and the spontaneity characteristic of all their offerings, the Columbia Light Opera Company gave an enjoyable performance of "Blossom Time" last evening in Roosevelt High School auditorium. The choral singing was fresh and sprightly, the principals carried their vocal parts with credit and the production had good timing under the direction of Ethyl Manning. The approving audience was not as large as the show merited, and it is to be hoped that the second performance tonight will be before a crowded house.

BROWN

Howard Moore, although just a little too tall for Franz Schubert, who stood only 5 feet 1 in his stockings, transformed himself with make-up into a fairly close resemblance to the round-faced and stocky composer, and his acting had the needed gentleness and modesty. Alexander Hill impersonated very credibly the debonair and gallant Baron Franz von Schober, while Bob Boehler was the operatic tenor, Johann Michael Vogl, and Mayne R. Coe the portrait painter, Moriz Schwind.

Eugene Kressin did a keen bit of comedy portrayal as Christopher Kranz, and his three charming daughters, Mitzi, Fritzi and Kitzi, were engagingly acted by Edith Hoffman Jones, Elizabeth Kaplan and Ruth Coberley. Lola Sanders gave a convincing display of the temperamental tantrums of the operatic diva, Bellabruna.

While Sigmund Romberg's name has a prominent place on the title page of "Blossom Time," his actual responsibility for the musical score was mainly that of a carpenter and joiner, and the tonal beauties are primarily those of Schubert. The operetta has a rather curious story in its progress from hand to hand.

It all began with a romantic novel by Rudolf Hans Bartsch entitled "Schwammerl" which was published in 1912. "Schwammerl" (Fatty) was a nickname bestowed by Johann Mayrhofer on Schubert, and the novel is an entertaining picture of the life of the composer and his friends in Vienna, with a purely fictional love episode.

"Blossom Time" must not be taken seriously when it shows us Schubert renouncing his love and aiding his friend Schober in the winning of Mitzi Kranz through the medium of music. As a matter of fact, Schober was a dashing and carefree Don Juan who needed no help in his conquests, and who did not settle down to a staid married life until he was 60, and that was 13 years after Schubert's death. Thus does the prosaic truth prick the bubble of romantic imagination.

Correct Constipation Before—Not After!

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of emergency relief. Why let yourself suffer those dull lifeless days because of constipation, why bring on the need for emergency medicines, when there may be a far better way? That way is to KEEP regular by getting at the cause of the trouble.

If it's common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, a pleasant, nutritious, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—goes straight to the cause by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this crunchy toasted cereal regularly, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

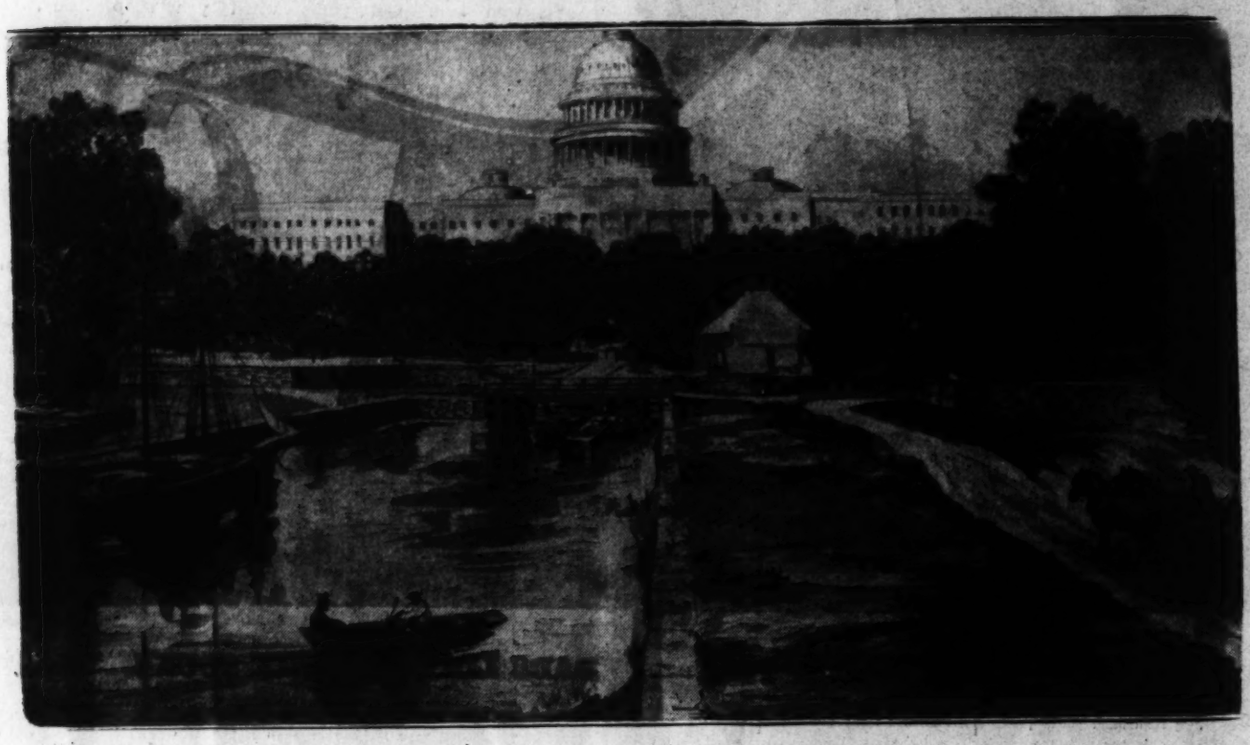
ON THE BEGINNING OF HIS 75TH YEAR IN THE BREWING INDUSTRY

With the Compliments of BARRON G. COLLIER, Inc. TRANSPORTATION ADVERTISING

In His Seventy-fifth Year of Brewing

Christian Heurich Recalls Many Colorful Events In The City's History



...ew of old C. & O. ...anal joined at foot of Capitol Hill by Tiber Creek.

Tiber Creek and the C. & O. Canal Were Still Familiar City Sights When Heurich Wagons Served Quality Beer to Washington

THIS MONTH Christian Heurich inaugurates his 75th year in the brewing business. In the passing of time the Christian Heurich Brewing Company has spanned a colorful period in the city's growth—and history . . . a period beginning just after the ending of a civil strife between the states and the start of a modern era in America as a nation.

When Christian Heurich established the Christian Heurich Brewing Company in Washington there was as much difference in the city of that day and this as there is between the brewing business of today and that of 75 years ago.

Washington—A "Hill Billy" Town Without The Hills

When horse-drawn Heurich wagons first rumbled out on the streets of Washington there were no modernly well-paved thoroughfares. Snake-like and muddy, Tiber Creek crossed lower Pennsylvania Avenue—frequently rose up and guttered the streets with its muddy flow. The city was so low, swampy and ill fit for government that a serious national effort got underway to re-locate the capital. St. Louis was proposed and offered to spend several millions of dollars for public buildings. The movement was killed.

But the town was not the tourist-talked-about center of scenic interest it is today. Booth had but recently galloped down the "Avenue" and over the bridge into Maryland. Crafty carpet-baggers skulked across the Virginia hills southward. Washington streets were muddy, ill lighted, and frequently high water threatened the city.

U. S. GRANT IS INAUGURATED

WORK WAS RESUMED ON THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT AFTER LAPSE OF 32 YEARS

HORSE CARS WERE RUNNING FROM GEORGETOWN TO THE NAVY YARD

History Marches On

Slow-moving horse cars were the only serious traffic opponents to Heurich wagons in those days . . . in the early days of burly "Boss" Shepherd, "Governor of the District," who started the city's modernizing program.

As sentiment outside grew Congress saw the city's need and laid out money for public improvements. President Grant supported the movement and about this time the bearded President issued his famous statement: "Washington is rapidly becoming a city worthy of the Nation's capital."

The City's Growth Continued

All through this period of growth the Christian Heurich Brewing Company was becoming the city's most popular establishment. As methods for the making of beer improved Christian Heurich was the first to seize upon the improvements. Advancements in brewing equipment, delivery and service to customers constantly created changes at the Christian Heurich Brewing Company. But the standards upon which the original Heurich Brewing methods were founded have never changed. The original secret formulas calling for the finest malt and hops, time-mellowed by careful ageing and controlled methods of brewing still bring you beer and ale at their finest, brewed by Christian Heurich.

The original Heurich Brewery, which gave Washington its first beer made to Old World standards.

Seventy-five years is a long time to be in any business. In the brewing business it can mean only ONE thing, that brewing as an art has been perfectly mastered.

Modified NRA Urged to Avert Post-War Crash

Dr. McGowan Makes Proposal at Interfaith Unemployment Parley

A modified NRA program was among proposals to reduce United States unemployment and avert a post-war economic collapse urged yesterday by leaders in industry and religion at the closing session of the Interfaith Conference on Unemployment in the Departmental Auditorium.

Dr. R. A. McGowan, assistant director, department of social action, National Catholic Welfare Conference, suggested that the next Administration call a conference of organized employers, organized labor and farm groups along with consumer representatives to form "a self-organized, self-governing economic democracy."

Proposal Explained

"Let the people freely organize themselves into their own employers' association, labor unions, farmers' cooperatives and consumers' organizations and rule their own organizations," Dr. McGowan declared.

Explaining this "NRA with major differences," he said: "The code authorities would head up directly in a congress of the industries, farmers included, and not directly in government. Whatever the help they would get from government, including pressure when it is necessary, they would be the first functioning body, and the Government would stand in the second line of action and defense."

Philip Murray, vice president, Congress of Industrial Organizations, also urged some form of national economic planning. He said: "It is obvious that economic planning on a much larger scale than has hitherto been practiced is necessary for the successful execution of the national defense program."

Specialist Speaks

He advocated a continuance of such planning as a permanent program to prevent a "complete collapse of our domestic economy when the rearmament program and or war orders stop, and shift industrial production from rearmament to domestic purposes."

Another speaker in favor of a planned economy, George H. Houston, industrial management specialist from New York, who, nevertheless warned that the "necessary supermen are lacking for this task" involving a vast centralized economic organization.

"The kind of planning we need in America is the fixing and maintaining of public policy so as to encourage rather than discourage the individual to plan, to strive, to achieve."

Prominent visiting scientists as well as alumni will give lectures and demonstrate advances in medicine and surgery at clinics held in cooperation with local hospitals. The Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of the university, will welcome alumni.

This evening at 7:30 seniors at the law school will conduct class day exercises and present the school with a parting gift. Jesse B. Hawley, jr., president of the afternoon section of the senior class, will preside in John Carroll Auditorium.

Painter Is Accused Of Stabbing Veteran

Caleb Thomas, 60, a painter, of 907 M street northwest, last night was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon—a knife—in connection with the stabbing Tuesday of Kurt Schoenau, 47, a disabled World War veteran.

Schoenau was critically stabbed three times in the chest and abdomen during a war dispute in front of 905 M street northwest, the injured man's home, police said.

New Guide Book On Old Dominion Has 700 Pages

Major facts of Virginia's history, folklore and economy, and a detailed tourist's guide to its points of particular interest are contained in the most recent volume of the WPA American Guide series, "Virginia: A Guide to the Old Dominion," which has just been released by Oxford University Press, publishers.

The book has 700 pages and is illustrated with nearly 100 photograph and 13 maps.

The first part contains chapters on the history, economy and culture of Virginia. A second section is devoted to the 14 principal cities and the Hampton Roads port. The third part, occupying more than half of the entire volume, gives mile by mile information on the country traversed in 24 recommended automobile tours.

Several of the tours described cover territory in northern Virginia familiar to many Washingtonians. One follows U. S. Route 1 through Fredericksburg and Richmond to the North Carolina line. Another covers the route through Fairfax Courthouse, Warrenton and Charlottesville. Tour 12 describes the points of interest to be seen along U. S. Route 50 between Fort Meyer and Winchester, while Tour 13 follows State Roue 7 from Alexandria through Falls Church, Leesburg and points west.

The book is a product of the WPA Writers Project and was sponsored by the Virginia Conservation Commission.

Zimmermann Dies; Wrote Berlin Note to Mexico

Berlin, June 6 (INS).—Arthur Zimmermann, 81, German secretary of state during the World War and author of the notorious "Zimmermann Note" in 1917, died today.

On January 19, 1917, Zimmermann addressed an invitation to Mexico to enter into an alliance with Germany, and to sound out Japan as to her willingness to also join the Central Powers.

To Mexico, as payment for this alliance, Zimmermann offered the American States of New Mexico, Texas and Arizona.

The proposal was sent to Mexico City through the German minister, Von Eckhardt, but it was intercepted in America and on March 1, 1917, President Wilson published it.

Chest Campaign Raises $15,550 in Frederick

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., June 6.—This city's third annual Community Chest drive closed today approximately $1,000 short of the goal of $16,550, Lewis R. Dertzbaugh, campaign chairman, informed directors. Other campaigns carried on in Frederick since first of the year were partly responsible for failure to meet the goal, Dertzbaugh said. Six local organizations receive support from the Community Chest.

New Demands On Lithuania Are Hinted

Kaunas Premier Off To Moscow Talk; Nazi Gains Alarm Soviet

The newspaper Aftonbladet, in a dispatch from Kaunas, Lithuanian capital, said this talk of new demands is directly associated with the increasing anxiety with which Russia is said to be watching Germany's military success.

Lithuania may be asked to join in a closer military alignment with Russia as part of Moscow's broadening Baltic defense program, it was said.

Fortifications Speeded

Reports of Soviet fortifications at Hango being rushed to completion and of heavy Soviet troop concentrations still remaining back of the former Salla front in northern Finland are increasingly prevalent.

The Russians are said to have completed their share of the new railroad from Kandalatchka to Kemijarvi, which will provide direct traffic across northern Finland, as provided in the Russian-Finnish peace treaty.

In the present trade negotiations with Sweden, Russia is said to be dickering for Swedish precision machinery in exchange for oil, among other things, but there is conjecture whether Russia may not be willing for other reasons to provide Sweden with airplanes as well.

Defense Plans Upheld

Support of the President's rearmament program is urged in a resolution adopted by the Young Women's Democratic Club of Silver Spring, Md. Copies have been forwarded to Maryland Senators and Congressional Representatives.

The club also has pledged support to Representative William D. Byron, who is opposed for reelection by Walter Johnson, baseball hero.

AERIAL THRILLERS that will make your eyes pop and your heart turn over are being booked by Max Lowe for July at the Shoreham Terrace. These high altitude acts will work so far up in the air that they'll be visible from the Taft Bridge. The terrace is the only spot in town that has the facilities for these daredevil aerial acts, and sagacious Max is picking the cream of the crop . . . Next week's sensation on the Terrace will be the "Golden Pair," a duo of living gilded statues who do extremely difficult hand balancing.

ELLINGTON DOES "CORRIGAN." The reason that Duke Ellington was almost two hours late for his recent concert at the Howard was because he (tee! hee!) got the idea that he was playing in Philadelphia. The Ellingtonians barged around Philly, finally got unwound and in a Washington-bound plane while the Howard audience patiently waited.

Senate Committee Votes Trust Probe

The Senate Banking Committee voted, 24 to 1, yesterday in favor of legislation to subject investment trusts and investment companies to regulation by the Securities Commission.

Chairman Wagner (Democrat), of New York, said he would attempt to bring the bill before the Senate next week and anticipated no major opposition.

The proposal has been recommended for enactment at this session by representatives of both the industry and the SEC.

Precedence Given Hatch Measure

The House Rules Committee granted legislative right of way yesterday to the Hatch bill regulating political activities of State and local employes paid in part with Federal funds.

The action greatly enhanced the chances of House action on the Senate-approved measure despite Administration leaders' plans to wind up this Congressional session by June 22.

Beside forbidding political activity on the part of thousands of workers, the bill also would limit the expenditures of national campaign committees to $3,000,000 and would place a top of $5,000 on personal and corporation campaign contributions.

BILL CORUM, popular sports columnist, was recently invited to taste and compare the Seagram's Crown Whiskies of today, both the 7 and 5, with the Crown Whiskies that won national fame and leadership in the months that followed Repeal. Spoke up Mr. Corum: "I'll say they are smoother today. I thought your 1934 Crowns were marvelous whiskies—but the present Crowns have them beat a mile. Bergdoll Granted Return of 80% Of Seized Wealth

Justice Jennings Bailey ruled yesterday in Federal District Court that Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, World War draft dodger, was entitled to the return of only 80 per cent of the $535,540 in cash, securities and real estate which the Government seized from him.

Attorney General Murphy allowed a claim by Bergdoll to the extent of 80 per cent of the property October 27, 1939, but Bergdoll sued for the full amount.

Justice Bailey ruled, however, that when Bergdoll was convicted of deserting the Army in time of war he had forfeited his rights of citizenship, and was not entitled to ask return of 100 per cent of the property as a citizen of the United States.

Bergdoll now is serving a sentence in a military prison.

D.C. Artist Held After Wife's Friend Is Shot

Estranged Husband Jailed in N. Y.; Woman In Serious Condition

A young Washington newspaper artist, who went to New York hopeful of bringing his estranged bride home, was in jail there yesterday after her roommate was shot during an altercation.

Miss Andrews

New York police said Cecil John Mayo, 26, admitted accidentally shooting Laura Belle Andrews, 21, when she "got smart" and taunted him for his efforts to persuade his wife, Mrs. Joan Vest Mayo, 21, to return here with him.

Shooting Reconstructed

Police said he also told them his bride was induced to leave him after less than a month of marriage by letters from Miss Andrews describing "bright lights and good times" in New York.

As police reconstructed the shooting, Mayo was in the apartment the two girls shared and exhibited a pistol when Miss Andrews attempted to persuade Mrs. Mayo to remain. She threatened to call police and, when the telephone rang the gun was fired when he attempted to prevent her answering it.

Cecil Mayo

She was taken to a hospital in a critical condition. Mayo forced his wife to flee with him, police said, but she escaped.

"Acted Strangely"

The artist's mother, Mrs. Frank Hite, of 1201 Thirteenth street northwest, said last night her son married the girl, a waitress, in Maryland January 4 and that they took an apartment at 1101 Fifteenth street northwest. Until the bride left him February 9, she said, the two were estranged because of her opposition to the marriage.

Joan Mayo

Mayo returned to her home to live after his wife left, her mother said, and had been "acting very strangely."

Young Mayo came here from Birmingham, Ala., ten years ago, his mother said, and attended Livingston Art Academy here. He was employed for a time by the Evening Star, his mother said, leaving there to try for a place with the Disney Studios in California. He was employed by the Times-Herald since his return, she said.

2 Marines Given 15-Year Terms In Park Slaying

Two Quantico Marines received 15-year sentences yesterday in the United States District Court at Alexandria for the Fort Hunt picnic-ground slaying of a Virginia tobacco salesman. Both entered pleas of guilty to second-degree murder charges, but one later took the stand, repudiated a signed statement and fervently maintained his innocence.

Boy, 7, Killed 'Hooking' Ride

Crushed under the wheels of a truck on which he tried to "hook" a ride, William P. Brown, colored, 7, of 1607 Fifteenth street northwest, was killed instantly yesterday.

This mishap was one of four here yesterday in which children were seriously hurt. Three other victims, oldest of whom was 10, last night lay in Washington hospitals in critical conditions.

A bad brakes charge was placed against John Q. Thompson, colored, 24, the truck driver, who police say struck the Brown boy, was held pending a coroner's inquest. He gave his address as 2115 Ninth street northwest.

Police said the boy, playing in an alley in the 2000 block Fourteenth street northwest, ran from behind a parked car and attempted to jump on the truck. He fell beneath the dual wheel on the right side of the truck, police said. His death raised the traffic toll this year to 27, 11 behind the number of this time last year.

Joseph Hickerson, 4, of 817 Fifth street northwest, suffered body injuries and a fracture of the skull when he was struck by an automobile driven by Samuel A. McMurray, 41, of Baltimore. The boy was crossing the street in the 400 block of I street northwest. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Robert Mooney, 5, of 308 Seventh street northeast, while running across the street in the 600 block of Sixth street northeast, was struck by a car police say was operated by Alton C. Millard, 29, of 1028 South Capitol street. Robert was treated at Casualty Hospital for serious head injuries.

Norman Watson, 10, of 1415 First street northwest, was hit in the 100 block of O street northwest by a car police say was driven by Walter F. Breckinridge, 42, 509 Twenty-first street northeast. In Freedmen's Hospital, Norman was treated for a fracture of the right arm and head injuries.

Maurice P. Finley, 23, of 4466 Conduit road northwest, last night was waiting the result of a grand jury investigation of the death of Herman Bunch, 67, of 3220 Seventeenth street northwest, a recent traffic victim. Finley was held for the jury by a coroner's jury Tuesday.

At a second inquest Tuesday, James R. Carrier, 39, of 318 Rhode Island avenue northwest, a streetcar motorman, was exonerated in the death of Charles W. Arthur, 75, of 1311 New Hampshire avenue northwest. Arthur was killed by a streetcar at Twenty-first street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, Monday.

Japan Reported Ready to Seize Shanghai Zones

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Shanghai, June 7.—Japan plans to seize the Shanghai international settlement and the French concession if Italy enters the European war, according to an article featured today in the vernacular press of Chungking.

The Chinese newspapers say the plan includes establishment by the Wang Ching-Wei government of a committee to take over special courts to police public utilities in both foreign areas; the launching of a campaign against the French and British and shutting down of the water and power plants, which are in Japanese-held territory, now supplying the International Settlement and French concession.

A Broader Tax Base

The tax bill introduced last week by Chairman Doughton was an obviously make-shift measure designed to raise revenue by the superficially easy method of imposing a flat increase of 10 per cent upon all income-tax payments. There may be at the moment little time and less inclination to undertake overdue constructive revisions of the tax structure. But at least the much discussed plan for broadening the income tax base has come nearer to realization.

Under the spur of a search for new revenue, the House Ways and Means subcommittee has tentatively approved a proposal that would, it is estimated, make an additional 2,000,000 persons liable to payment of income taxes. This proposal looks toward a reform of our present system of income taxation, which should have been effected long ago.

The lowering of exemptions will not produce a great deal of revenue. But it will make a large number of Americans realize that meeting the cost of Government is a basic duty of citizenship. When contributions take the form of indirect exactions the actual burden, however onerous, is not fully appreciated.

Fearing the political consequences of making the small income classes tax-conscious Congress has heretofore shied away from recommendations for broadening the tax base. With the public aroused to the vital need of increasing defense expenditures the danger of political repercussions from the proposed changes is greatly diminished. It is a propitious moment to call upon the people to make sacrifices in a common cause.

Members of the Ways and Means Committee evidently view the broadening of the income tax base as a desirable permanent reform. This appears from the fact that the present plan is to make the lowered exemption a part of the present tax laws, instead of limiting it to a five-year period as in the proposed 10 per cent supertax.

Getting At The Source

An executive order issued by President Roosevelt bars the entry of aliens into the United States whenever their admission would be contrary to the public safety.

This is a move to deal with a difficult problem at its source. It is obviously far wiser to exclude aliens who might reasonably be suspected of unfriendly purpose than to keep watch on such individuals once they have established themselves in this country. And it is also a much more humane procedure so far as the generality of aliens are concerned.

From the hysteria generated over the "fifth column" danger has emerged demand for most un-American types of action against aliens. In Georgia, for instance, it has been proposed to take away the business occupation licenses of all foreigners except those who have taken out their first papers. A measure now before Congress would limit the number of aliens employed by a concern engaged in interstate commerce to 10 per cent of the total.

These measures are designed to hit subversive elements. But they are more likely to injure innocent individuals who are not and never would be in any sense inimical to the best interests of the United States.

Tipless Red Caps

Under the customary tipping system it is virtually impossible to apply the provisions of the Wage-Hour Act to red caps at railway terminals. Hence the roads have been gradually putting a new system of payment into effect in an endeavor to meet the requirements of the law in a more satisfactory manner. Washington has been operating under this system for some time and last week it was extended to cover New York City terminals.

Instead of tips, fees of 10 cents per bag are charged. Collections are turned over to the railroads and the red caps are paid a fixed wage. To guard against withholding of these fees passengers are given receipts for each bag carried.

It is very difficult to obtain reliable data on the amount of tips received by red caps. Hence it is impossible to determine whether the wages paid them under the new system are likely to approximate their earnings under the old tipping system. But there is little doubt that the new method of payment is a great improvement. For the worker who is forced to depend upon uncertain gratuities cannot plan his expenditures intelligently and often undergoes great hardships due to a run of bad luck.

From the viewpoint of the traveling public the fee system also offers distinct advantages. Charges are adjusted with some regard for the amount of service performed. The generous traveler does not have to help pay for the inadequately remunerated service exacted by inconsiderate persons.

There is still a fly in the ointment, for the red caps expect tips in addition to fees. There is also danger that complete abolition of tips may result in poor service. For despite its defects, the tipping system offers a special incentive to effort under conditions that make it difficult for employers to supervise their employes. If the advantages of a tipless system are to be obtained without the offsetting disadvantages of slower, less willing service, it will doubtless be necessary to maintain closer supervision over red caps in the future.

Impossible To Believe

It may be hoped that Gen. Weygand's heroic soldiers, struggling grimly to hold back the onslaught of some 2,000 German tanks, will be cheered by the news that in return for cash down their government may now be able to purchase in this country certain antiquated war material no longer regarded as satisfactory for our Army.

Such, at least, seems to be the effect of the Attorney General's ruling that a law of 1920, permitting the sale of surplus weapons left over from the last great war, should take precedence over a regulation issued under the neutrality legislation. It is unlikely that the German government will contest the ruling. Even if this obsolete equipment can be shipped immediately its value against the streamlined arsenals of the Nazis will be problematical.

The importance of Mr. Jackson's ruling, however, is not necessarily confined to the military value of the surplus stores at the moment in question. If those of an antiquated character can be sold for transport in foreign bottoms under the neutrality law, the same procedure would seem permissible for equipment of a greater military value. And such an interpretation of the law would forward action under Senator Pepper's plan of selling the Allies modern stocks, on the understanding that they would be replaced out of current production. The helpful action by the Navy Department last night indicates that this course will be followed.

Certainly there is nothing in such an arrangement, assuming cash sales and transfer in foreign bottoms, which seems in any way repugnant to the misnamed neutrality law. The actual requirements of neutrality, of course, would be observed even if these supplies were sold on credit and moved in American ships.

While soldiers of France were yesterday giving their lives to stem the German onslaught, Premier Reynaud in Paris tersely summarized the meaning of the present battle. It may, he said, "decide the fate of the world for hundreds of years."

The fate of the world includes the fate of the United States. And few Americans now question that the future of their country is involved in the outcome of the fighting now forcing the French soldiers slowly backwards, and away from the Channel coast which must be held to maintain communication with their British allies. It seems impossible to believe that in such an issue the contribution of America will be recorded by history as the meticulous observance of a false neutrality.

"... And Did You Hear?"

So profoundly has the psychology of the human race been altered by events of the past month that it now seems no scheme the strange mind of Adolf Hitler can conceive is too fantastic to be improbable. But now comes what purports to be the revelation of a plan so audacious as to paralyze the imagination.

It concerns an alleged Nazi intention for Ireland and is based upon statements supposed to have been made by a member of the German legation at Dublin. This diplomat, according to the story, told some dinner guests that Hitler might decide to deport all Irish Catholics to Silesia. He would replace them, it is said, with German Protestants, who with their well-known genius for organization, would really make something of the island at last.

Here, indeed, is a flying in the face of history. This is not, of course, to say that any such mass deportation is impossible, for the tragic story of Poland has proved otherwise. But Ireland affords a classic illustration of the anthropological rule that a vanquished people imposes its traditions and culture upon its conquerors. Hence the proverb: Hibernis ipsis Hiberniores. The Gaels became more Irish than the Firbolgs before them; the Normans and the Danes, more Irish than the Gaels. And there are many who insist that the descendants of the Scotch and Saxon settlers are the most Irish of all.

Sooner or later the Germans, too, would surrender to the seductive atmosphere of Ireland. To this the German temperament, with all the sentimentality that lurks beneath its ferocity, should prove a much easier victim than the tough and prosy Norman or the stolid English. You may be pretty sure that, not so many hundred years from now, the children of these potential German conquerors of Ireland will be making mournful poetry about the Schwarze Rozaleen.

Italy And America

Should Italy enter the war it is not merely the Allies who would feel the disturbing impact of that event. The development would probably have profound repercussions in South America.

Already there is considerable and not unjustified alarm in this country over the presence in various parts of Latin America of well-organized Communist and Nazi elements. The entry of Italy into the war would mean the addition of another large and well-organized "fifth column" which, in cooperation with other totalitarian sympathizers, might easily imperil the internal and external security of more than one Latin-American nation.

Italians constitute the largest single foreign element in such important nations as Argentina and Brazil and are numerous elsewhere in Latin America. Fascist propaganda has long been active among them. And the situation would be still further complicated should Gen. Franco follow the lead of his erstwhile ally and involve Spain in the struggle.

It is apparent, therefore, that President Roosevelt, in repeatedly urging Premier Mussolini not to drag Italy into war, has not been moved solely by humanitarian desire to prevent the spread of the conflict. He has also acted out of a keen awareness of the disturbing effect Italy's participation would have on Latin America and on the problem of defending Latin America.

That the President's efforts to limit the sphere of conflict have, at least temporarily, given Mussolini pause is suggested in an editorial written by Virginio Gayda, Mussolini's journalistic mouthpiece on foreign affairs. In the Giornale d'Italia yesterday Gayda warns the United States against "intervention" in the European conflict because the "time might come when some great European power may intervene" against America.

The threat which Signor Gayda holds over the head of the United States is somewhat disingenuous. If Hitler wins in Europe, he and Mussolini will hardly be likely to show any particular regard for American susceptibilities no matter what attitude this country may have taken or failed to take on the question of assisting the Allies. In the case assumed the dictators would refrain from intervention in this hemisphere only to the extent that the United States is strong enough to make such intervention expensive and disastrous.

Jobs For Graduates

Some 155,000 young persons are stepping this month from colleges and universities into a world that is increasingly eager for their services.

A general rise has been noticed in direct appeals by business and industry for trained personnel. One survey shows that two-thirds of the schools have received more calls for June graduates than they did last year, and over three-fourths of these institutions expect 75 per cent of their job seekers to be successful within the next six months. Starting salaries, in many cases, were found to be $5 to $10 a month higher.

The greatest demands reported have been for engineers and graduates of business administration schools. The general business picture, however, lends encouragement for all. The improvement in business indices and the shortage of skilled workers point clearly to increased opportunity of a wider scope.

The applicant need no longer fear that, everywhere he turns, the only question will be, "Experience?" and his dismissal a sympathetic shake of the head. In many lines of endeavor the experienced men already have gone back to work where their peculiar abilities are most needed, leaving room for fresh minds and hands.

Undoubtedly there must be much shuffling. The automotive engineer may find it advantageous to work as a mechanic, the poet may have to become a clerk. But there has not been a time in years when ingenuity was more welcome, when trained minds were more urgently wanted.

The graduates of 1940, far from being dismayed at the world of change into which they are being ushered, should take heart because of its fluidity. The future belongs to them as it has belonged to none of their predecessors for a decade.

Incentive To Learning

From the Household Magazine

Here is the best animal story of the month—maybe of the year. Ethel Barnett de Vito has a cat that is inordinately fond of shrimp. So far, not strange. But our friend found the cat getting too excited when the word shrimp was mentioned, and she had to take to spelling it. Now Kitty recognizes the spelling and rushes for the refrigerator when she hears the letters pronounced.

Challenge To G. O. P.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a lifelong Republican whose father voted for Lincoln I am alarmed lest the leaders of the party place partisanship above patriotism in this grave national emergency.

Granted that the present Administration may profit politically from this war situation, this cannot justify opportunistic politics by the Republicans. Great national interests are at stake. We must present a united front against the enemies of democracy from without and from within.

Whatever political profiteering may result, one thing is certain: the Administration has never failed to denounce openly the totalitarian enemies of democracy. The Republicans cannot afford to do less. The Administration has denied any intention to send American soldiers to Europe. The Republicans cannot afford to do less. The Administration has favored the victims of Hitler's gangster methods. The Republicans cannot afford to do less.

There are many Republicans—some of them who have held high office—who are saying openly that they will reluctantly vote the Democratic ticket in November if the Republican Party fails in its duty at this time of national crisis.

We must not let the great party that started in a crusade for freedom stigmatize itself as lacking in its earlier idealism and patriotism. We should reject with scorn any candidate who fails to recognize that the fate of democracy now depends on the victory of France and Great Britain. It is most disquieting that only one of the Republican candidates for the Presidency—Wendell Willkie—has recognized this fact and had the courage to urge that we should give our economic and moral support to that thin wavering line in France which is heroically standing between the United States and Hitler. He has pointed out that it is entirely out of the question to talk of sending soldiers to Europe. The least and the most that we can do is to throw the weight of our vast material resources on the side of the Allies.

Urges Action

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because we have executives and not rulers, our administrators cannot help but be guided by what they think is public opinion. The press is supposed to be the voice of public opinion. We all believe that the press is smart enough to get at all of the truth and, although it has long gone against the grain of many of us, we have accepted what has appeared to be the voice of the people. Discussions with many friends and acquaintances lead to the belief that what we have heard is the loud voice of but a very few. Can't you get at the popular belief? Can't you convey the popular belief to our executives?

There's an army of tigers loose and not just a flock of skunks, as the American public were lulled into thinking. The people realize this but are still happy in the belief of 3,000 miles of water and the barrier of the British navy. There might not be a navy.

All this prattle about America rebuilding the broken world after the end of the war is ridiculous to me. We'll be so busy defending our place in the sun against the united savages of the world that our happiness and prosperity will be mortgaged forever. We ought to be there, tooth and nail. We've got to help save that British navy. That's our immediate job.

Let's have planes, tanks, guns, trucks and everything else, fast. Orders ought to be in the plants now. Men ought to be training now. Train them wherever we can, at Coast Guard stations, at commercial airports, wherever we can, but now.

Profit And Defense

To the Editor of The Post:—Sir: I see everywhere articles insisting that Americans can have no confidence in our war preparations unless control of these preparations is put into the hands of the same group in whom Americans strikingly lost confidence a few years ago. The writers of these articles state invariably that recent labor reforms stand in the way of preparedness and must be "temporarily" canceled. Apparently, they see in the present emergency chiefly an opportunity for control of government by and for big business, a laughable start toward achieving a united citizenry. The first need of preparedness here or anywhere is a united nation, ardently aware of the value of its citizenship. If you take away the Roosevelt reforms and recent help given to farmers and labor, you can scarcely expect underpaid workmen and migrant farmers to feel intensely patriotic.

A law is proposed to forbid strikes in the industries where profits will be largest in case of war. It does not seem to occur to them that prevention of strikes could be secured more certainly and safely by a law requiring all profits over 6 per cent to be divided equally between labor and stockholders.

Desire For Peace

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I'm becoming alarmed at the preponderance of pro-war letters which you are printing in your very interesting forum. Unfortunately, I don't believe the reason for this is that fewer letters expressing a peace and "keep America out of war" sentiment are received by The Post. Rather, I'm inclined to think your editors are distinctly partial to any material which proclaims the glory of the Allied powers and urges American involvement in order to save these great "democracies."

I want you to know that I am not alone in earnestly voicing a desire for peace. Look at the most recent Gallup Poll. Nor do I stand alone in urging that our country take no steps which are unneutral, such as loans to either belligerent, or help in creating a war hysteria throughout the land.

Americans want peace and security, not war, disease, starvation and death. So please let us see in print some of those other letters which substantiate my plea for peace and happiness.

Scores 'Witch-Hunt'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your clear-headed editorials on the "Fifth Column," the La Follette bill, and civil liberties in general have been excellent. There is obvious danger that the Bill of Rights may be the first casualty in our present war of nerves. If we can't have democracy at home in time of peace, what will it be like if we ever get drawn into the war?

Now comes news that the Detroit police and a veterans' organization are organizing a "Sixth Column" to combat the "Fifth Column." What we need now is a Seventh Column to keep an eye on the Sixth Column and make sure that it doesn't destroy our civil liberties while it is out witch-hunting.

Our Interests

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The United States and all the American republics must keep out of Europe's conflict. The first World War was the result of (1) secret alliances, (2) militarism, (3) nationalism, (4) economic imperialism and the forces of greed, fear and hate. We played no part in causing that war and only became infected with their poisonous hate and fear; we have kept free of all entangling alliances, greed and fear since the treaty of Versailles, which in itself was the instrument of revenge of one victorious group of nations on the defeated peoples. However, we made the mistake of letting our ships carry contraband, of letting Allied propaganda disturb our convictions, and our own selfish economic interests draw us into a war. We lost large numbers of our youth, despoiled our natural resources and planted the seeds of the economic breakdowns and depressions which have made millions suffer (also giving subversive organizations a large audience).

There is no doubt that it is to our advantage and interests to have the Allies win. But we must not allow ourselves to be drawn into the present conflict where we will lose even more than in the World War I. Very probably the rudiments of democracy, and most certainly our personal freedom will be lost, such as England and France have been forced to sacrifice already. These losses, with the inevitable breakdowns to come after any war, would make the reestablishment of a democratic government very difficult. America must remain free, unstained and strong in order to maintain a great democratic force to combat the threat of Russia, waiting for Europe to expend its life blood then have a complete world revolution.

Proposes Voluntary Tax

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A few years ago I came to the U. S. A. to make my home. Although I had very little to start with, yet with kindness and consideration shown to me by various persons that I met, I was able to organize a business that brings me a reasonable income.

Notwithstanding the fact that prior to my coming to this country I was very well off and could afford many of the luxuries that are entirely out of my reach today; notwithstanding the fact that I have lost everything partly because of the effect the U. S. A.'s silver program had on the country I lived in; notwithstanding the fact that during these three years of my life here I had to work very hard and deprive myself of many normal diversions, yet every single day I was and am happy that I am in this country, and every single day I am deeply grateful to fate for this.

May I, on the strength of the past experience in other lands, plead that:

All political differences be temporarily rested and full-hearted support be given to the present Government, showing to the world at large a complete harmony.

A voluntary tax system, separate from existing ones or any additional ones that may be passed by law, be organized in the form of printed stamps of various denominations and placed for sale in every post-office in the country, so that each citizen or concern may purchase as few or as many of such stamps, and cancel same with each purchased or sold item of merchandise, service, etc.

Proceeds of such sales to go to the Government to be utilized in any manner they will deem advisable.

Beautiful Spring!

Some day I hope to be brave enough to attempt the organization of an order which will be of inestimable benefit to husbands. Unless a better name occurs to me within the next few moments I shall call this organization "The Anti-Foliage Gatherers' League." Membership shall be confined to husbands, regardless of race, age, creed or sex.

Our league shall have but one objective and members shall only be required to take one oath. The object of banding ourselves together is disclosed in the oath of fealty, which shall be stated in a simple, concise manner, something like the following:

"I, Herman Sleplether, being a husband and as sound in mind and body as could well be expected, do most vociferously and passionately swear and promise that I will never allow nor permit myself to be induced nor persuaded by the threats, tears, cozening, coquetry or similar wiles of any female person or persons into gathering, at any time, any plant, weed, flower, blossom, shrub, tree, vine, fern or herb.

"I furthermore promise and swear that I will use any necessary means, not excluding mayhem, to prevent any female person or persons from gathering such plants, weeds, blossoms, et cetera, and piling, cramming or bestowing in any manner such articles, with their appurtenances of soil, bugs, bees, et cetera and such, into my nice, new, clean automobile, so help me Hanner!

"Should I at any time violate or transgress this, my most solemn obligation and pledge, I will not be surprised. Yours truly, Herman Sleplether."

Every Saturday afternoon, in season, I carefully clean and polish the family chariot, inside and out; on Sunday afternoons I bedeck myself in purples and fine linens and white shoes, drive around to the front stoop and proudly fill it with the family.

As we start out, each member of the family faintly recalls the fight which we had the preceding Sunday, so all is well for a few miles. Just as I begin to relax and to congratulate myself, my wife timidly inquires of my eldest daughter, "Jane, did you notice that pretty fern we just passed on the right?"

No, Jane hadn't noticed it, but she had observed a lovely covey of hollyhockers or geraniups on a cliff to the left.

I stiffen.

Now that the ice has been broken hints begin to be dropped with frequency, and every member of my family is seeing orchids and American Beauties growing in rank profusion upon every hand. Vainly I attempt to stem the tide by calling attention to attractive hot-dog stands, billboards, filling stations, cows, hitchhikers—anything. All is to no avail.

The climax is approaching rapidly as my wife innocently requests that I pull off the road and stop for a moment so that she may procure a drink from a spring of sweet water, which she says she sees gushing from a hillside.

Dumbly I point to a thermos jug upon which my wife is resting her feet. Just before leaving home she filled it with the clearest and purest of water, icy cold. My wife shakes her head vigorously and again points to the adjacent hillside.

I am reminded of a near fatal incident, involving an old friend who contracted typhoid or something from just such . . . I am shouted down by the entire family. Sorrowfully I drive off the roadway and slump down under the steering wheel, while the whole family scrambles out.

Within an incredibly short space of time my family is scattered over a territory equal in size to the State of New Jersey, each member of the family has discovered a plant of rare beauty and charm and must needs have papa come and pluck it, pull it, grub it or climb for it.

"Papa, come shinny up this walnut tree and get me some of those lovely mistletoes." (Did you ever shinny a walnut?)

"Papa, come pull this" . . . "Papa, see if you can climb this bank and get me that violet" . . . "Papa, come dig me this thing" . . . "Papa, Papa . . ."

My linen suit is melted, my shirt is torn, my white shoes are wrecks and I have contracted poison ivy.

"Papa, come and grub up this little oak tree. I want to set it out in the back yard. It will be so nice for Junior to climb when it gets big enough."

Timidly I advance the argument that Junior will be an octogenarian before that tree grows to be of sufficient size to support his weight. Then I dig up the tree and put it upon the back seat.

The most botanical member of the family is at last convinced that the car will not hold anything more, unless it be a couple of violets. These are procured and it is decided that we will leave the remainder of the forest until next Sunday. I agonize in silence and we head home with the booty.

Bees, bugs and butterflies emerge from the foliage and attack us. Strange, overpowering odors arise from the mess. Junior belabors my bare neck with a blackberry vine . . . I drive with one hand while I choke him into unconsciousness.

Every hundred yards or so we pass a nice, new, shiny car parked by the roadside. A bedraggled, discouraged looking man is stuffing it full of weeds, while females of all ages and shapes scurry madly about the countryside, giggling excitedly and shrieking, "Look, Papa!"

Arrived home, I clamber out stiffly. The family emerges and pauses to gaze ruefully at the mess of stuff in, over and around the car. After poking around in the pile for a few moments Mother and Jane pick out four dandelions and decide that everything else is hopelessly crushed.

"If you please, Papa, dump it back there somewhere and we can burn it when it is dry."

Word Made Flesh

By Dorothy Thompson

An Aviator's Creed

IT IS NOT WHAT prime ministers and foreign ministers said that I remember from these never to be forgotten weeks in Europe. I wrote down what they said in a diary afterward, at night. The viewpoint and information were interesting, even important, but other things that people said I did not need to write down. They were words that could not be forgotten.

IT IS PERHAPS a year since I read that beautiful book, "Wind, Sand and Stars," by Antoine de Saint-Exupery. It seemed to me to express the knightly spirit of an epoch not yet born. It was hard, heroic and humane. In it I caught a glimpse of that society that Whitman prophesied. A society based upon "the dear love of comrades," where differences of birth and social rank and inequality of gifts were harmonized in no regimented or mechanical order, but in a symphonic music of life; the admiration of the poet for the mechanic and the mechanic for the poet; the attraction between the gentle and the rough, each strengthening or polishing the other; a natural order of society, based upon devotion to a command aim. A brotherhood.

These airmen, I thought, know nationality no longer, in terms of geography. They fly so high, so swiftly and so far. Borders between nations are invisible and senseless in that transcendental sphere.

When they asked me in Paris whom I wished to see, I said "Antoine de Saint-Exupery," thinking, "a man at home on earth and in the sky."

But he was at the front, flying a reconnaissance plane.

STILL, HE HAD two days' leave, and so we met in Paris.

It seemed to me outrageous that he should be risking his life daily in the most dangerous of the services. Reconnaissance planes are slow. They fly deep into the heart of enemy country, and fly alone, photographing fortifications and factories and troop movements. They are insouciant spies . . . open espionage dangerously arrived at. They cannot insinuate themselves into information, posing as friends and allies. They are easily detected by the airplane finders. Casualties in their squadrons are very high. A man hardly has a fifty-fifty chance over a course of weeks or months.

I told him so. After all, other men can fly planes, I said. But you can write . . . you see things, things ahead. France will need you. Europe will need you.

"YOU ARE ABSOLUTELY wrong," he answered. "Nobody has the right to write a word today who does not participate to the fullest in the agony of his fellow human beings.

"If I did not resist with my life, I should be unable to write. And what holds true for this war has got to hold true for everything. The Christian idea has got to be served; that the word is made flesh. One must write with one's body."

He tried to elaborate this, rather hastily. "The reason why we are in this war, why there is a Hitler, why our whole civilization is crumbling up is because this has not been so. Our words and our actions are not one. We say things and pretend to believe things, but what we say is not translated into the deed. And the deed is divorced from faith from the word. And so, since we have not been all of a piece ourselves, personally, and in all our institutions, we have been divided souls and a divided society, and, therefore, we have been an impotent society. To be free, means to be trustworthy. Otherwise no one is safe in freedom. A democracy must be a brotherhood. Otherwise it is a lie."

I do not say that Antione de Saint-Exupery "represents" French opinion." But he is representative of something growing in France, and, in another way, in England. There is a mysticism of this war. Among the intelligent youth one hears fewer attacks on the Germans than one hears against themselves. They speak of Hitler as the antichrist, but they say that this scourge and destruction have come because of their own faults.

When Paul Reynaud said, in one of his last speeches. "If you say that only a miracle can save France, then I answer that I believe in miracles, for I believe in France," there was more than empty pathos behind his words. The belief in France has nothing to do with the old association of "gloire"—glory. It is marked by a profound humility.

I DOUBT WHETHER, in generations, the legend of St. Joan, of the maid who saved France, by a miracle, because she fought with God, has been so vivid as it is now. People say quite simply, "We will win in the end, one way or another, if we are good enough."

They know now, in France, that frivolous waste of time, inconsequential playing of politics, weighing of personal interests and downright corruption have contributed to the French military weakness and lack of coordination. They do not talk much about the personalities responsible—there is too much to do now—but they will certainly remember them, once this war is over, and however it concludes. Whatever happens, the existing political and economic system will be altered in a revolutionary way. One hears words of praise for aspects of the German organization. One hears expressions of scorn, contempt and disgust rather than hatred for the Nazi values, philosophy, spirit and aim.

It is a curious experience to see France in the greatest and most tragic crisis of her history and to feel nevertheless that out of that crisis and out of agony and humiliation will come something wonderful. At any rate, whatever rebirth France may have will be in the opposite spirit of the Nazis, it being with humility and with a will to virtue.

Fair Enough

"Mysterious Force"

BOTH CHARLES LINDBERGH and Henry Ford have referred vaguely to a mysterious force which they say is trying to push the United States into war. Neither of them identified this evil influence, although it would seem that if war can be prevented by the naming and thwarting of such a power no American has fulfilled his patriotic duty by tossing out a hint in the manner of a gents'-room journal writing. "What's this talk about Joe Dokes, the button-hook tycoon, and his wife?"

"The only reason that we are in danger of becoming involved is because there are powerful elements in America who desire us to take part," said Lindbergh. "They represent a small minority of the American people, but they control much of the machinery of propaganda. They seize every opportunity to push us closer to the edge."

"With tremendous, so-called 'defensive armament' we are in just the position the war-makers want us to be in order to be pushed into a conflict in which we should have no part," said Ford. "Pushed in by an insidious middle group that is fighting neither Germany nor England but getting them to fight each other solely that this group might profit financially."

I WOULD LIKE to speculate on the identity of the sinister power which these men do not name or describe in detail. It goes without saying that no rich American industrial capitalist wants a war, because already it is certain that there will be no profits. From Great Britain warning comes that when a nation deeply in hock to itself goes to war with all its human and economic might the capitalistic system goes into a state of coma. Capitalism and the human rights which exist only under capitalism may never be revived in Great Britain, even should the Allies win.

In fighting to protect their possessions they have been compelled to melt them down, load them into guns and shoot them at the enemy, and those possessions include their human rights as well as their property rights. Ford himself would be one of the most important American munitioneers in a war, but he would not make money. By comparison with his peacetime earnings he would lose money. And his industry, once nationalized under an emergency plan like the desperate British expedient, which was copied from the Nazi system, might remain a possession of the state with Ford or his heirs in purely nominal ownership as state managers.

I vindicate the British and French rich and middle classes of Lindbergh's and Ford's suspicion, because they do not fit the meager description. That eliminates our capitalists and the British and French rich and middle classes, although the Allies of all classes are more eager than any other element on earth to hear that the United States has joined up.

NOW I COME to the Jews. Hitler for years shrieked to the world that bolshevism and Jewishness were synonymous, and yet those Jews who do believe in bolshevism are angrily and perniciously opposing the American attempt to rearm. The Communist Party which fought Hitler in Spain are now his Allies, and some of them are likely to go to prison yet for obstructing American rearmament on his behalf. So, even if they are the ones that Lindbergh and Ford had in mind the facts disprove the charge. The Communists aren't in this for money. Power is what they want.

The Jewish capitalists are in the same boat with other American capitalists, including Ford. They can't make any more out of war than he can, and would stand to lose their property and human rights, the loss of which first by the German Jews and then by all the other Germans, is their reason for hating Hitler.

Not for our sake, nor for Germany's the Moscow government wants us to stay out so that Nazism will win, there being no difference between Naziism and communism and no pretense of a difference since the alliance was made.

Yet Ford says that financial interests which make money out of war are trying to push us in. What kind of money? Who can say that there will be any money left when this war is over if the United States should go in?

The Coughlinites, if they are enough to matter, don't want us to fight for Britain, because they are anti-British and pro-Franco, who is pro-Hitler, who is anti-Christian and, in particular, anti-Catholic. So that lets them out.

I can't identify this mysterious, un-American force which would make money out of the war, but do observe that the only nation which has frankly proclaimed a profit motive is Nazi Germany. The Allies and the conquered neutrals were content with what they had and feared war, and Britain went to Hitler on bended knees to avoid it.

Is the Lion Growing Soft?

AMERICAN OPINION seems to be swinging toward more active assistance to the Allies. The propelling force of this movement is the realization that Allied sea power is an important element in our national security. The possible consequences of the worst that could happen—the surrender of the Allied fleets to Germany—have been pointed out in this column several times.

The response from a number of British sources has been curious. A British journalist of broad experience, whose acumen I have long admired, informed me that his letters from England showed that feeling against the United States is rising. He was referring to the attitude of influential Englishmen three weeks or so ago, before the present trend of American opinion had become apparent. He was reporting accurately, I know, because I know him and some of the sources of his information.

Perhaps opinion in England is growing more and more anti-American, for all I know. What of it?

When I asked my British friend whether he thought Hitler could blackmail the British fleet out of the British, he replied in the affirmative.

ANOTHER BRITON, whose identity I don't know, has written a letter to The Washington Post, concluding:

"Mr. Lindley suggests America might 'do a little to preserve the morale of the Allies' and guarantee them unlimited economic assistance.

"If Britain is beaten to her knees and her fleet demanded on pain of annihilation of many civilians, it is safe to assure Mr. Lindley, Germany will be given the fleet and America will be given all our sympathy for the preservation of her morale. America will need it."

Two other Englishmen have assured me that, under such circumstances, the British would, of course, surrender the fleet.

Admittedly, if the British are confronted with such a frightful decision, we cannot be sure that they will not surrender their fleet and that their naval officers will not obey. But when responsible Englishmen take pains to assure us that, under such circumstances, the fleet will be surrendered, it indicates one of two things:

1. The British character is no longer what it once was. The British have gone "soft."

2. They think they can blackmail us into declaring war on Germany.

Such tactics are likely to make us hesitate to increase substantially our aid to the Allies. If the British have gone "soft," nothing that we can do can save them or even measurably postpone the destruction of Great Britain as a seat of world power. And obviously American opinion will not respond favorably to blackmail. The British will never get further help from us by saying: "If you don't save us, we will turn our weapons over to our enemy and, in our misery, at least enjoy watching him destroy you."

SUNDRY BRITISH are now complaining also about the absence of more effective American aid up to now. The Briton who wrote to The Washington Post said:

"Beyond charging the British and French governments specially high prices for warplanes and thereby limiting the number they could buy, beyond withholding release of up-to-date models until out-of-date models had been bought up, beyond expressions of sympathy and a cutting off of normal credit processes by which all governments, including the United States, normally conduct their business, it is difficult to see exactly what American assistance has been or is likely to be forthcoming which requires as a quid pro quo the sacrifice of Allied civilians to prevent the Allied fleet being used by Germany against America."

The Allies have billions of dollars worth of ready purchasing power in this country. The Allied purchasing agents have been proceeding until now on the comfortable thesis that this would be a long war. Their haggling over pennies and slow motions have amazed well-informed officials in our Government.

It is true that our most advanced models of planes were not released to them until March of this year. But these were models the quantity production of which had not yet been begun.

THESE MODELS have been made available to the Allies as rapidly as they have been made available to the United States Army. Now, in fact, the Allies are clamoring for the older planes which two months ago they considered out of date, recognizing that despite their deficiencies they can be extremely useful.

Insofar as American regard for national security can be made to extend further aid to the Allies, it will not be inspired by the effort to pass on to us the blame for the failure of the Allies to prepare themselves adequately for the present challenge by Germany, nor will it be inspired by the hints of blackmail or of abject defeatism reflected in the statements quoted above. American spirit is far more likely to respond to the brave words of Prime Minister Churchill: "We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches, the landing grounds, in the fields, in the streets and on the hills. We shall never surrender. And even if, which I do not for a moment believe, this island or a large part of it were subjugated and starving, then our empire beyond the seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, will carry on its struggle until in God's good time the New World, with all its power and might, sets forth to the liberation and rescue of the Old."

Knowing as I have known, and do know, many Englishmen, I believe that their real qualities are better expressed by Churchill than by the sundry minor diplomats, official and self-appointed, who think that the American people can be persuaded to render aid to the Allies by announcing that the British are ready to throw up the sponge when the going really becomes tough.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Idea For Plain Talk

Fellow Americans, Friends and Neighbors:

Let's admit three things to begin with: (1) We've all been asleep, not merely dozing but in a deep slumber; (2) we've been living in a fool's paradise; (3) we are now out on a limb. In plain words, the reason democracy is in peril and civilization at stake is that England, France and America chose to go along assuming that Adolf Hitler was bluffing.

* * * *

The word is all these countries was "Germany won't rush into another world war as soon as this." The statement "Hitler is out to get all he can by bluffing, but he is too smart to risk everything he has accomplished so far by plunging Germany into war" was the confident cackle everywhere.

* * * *

No matter how strong we all are for preparedness now, the answer to any plea for millions for defense two years ago would have been "Whatcher trying to do—stir up a war scare?" We were dopes, and not just run of the mill dopes, brother; we were super dopes. We joined with England and France in sizing up Adolf as a loud mouthed bully who wasn't any more eager for a real fight than the average gasbag. And we were willing to risk civilization on that judgment.

* * *

We weren't smart enough to get ready to fight just in case it turned out that Hitler was more of a madman than we thought. We were naive, childish, simple, yes, plain damphools. We not only fiddled while Rome burned but did our fiddling in limousines and in our play clothes.

* * * *

While the most brutal war lord in history, a fellow who would have made Attila look like an orchid fancier, prepared the most terrible war machine of all time right before our eyes, we concentrated on bigger bathing beaches, longer week-ends for all and the continued love of baloney, on white or rye. Don't say we didn't know all about it. Adolf didn't do it secretly. He almost made a super spectacle of all his war preparations, did the work practically with radio accompaniment and matinee and evening threats.

* * * *

Chamberlain, Daladier and Roosevelt can't be blamed. If they had yelled their heads off for bigger armaments three years ago the people would have looked up from their beach picnics with annoyance and demanded "Why talk that way? The first thing you know you will bring on a war." Every time some leader had courage enough to demand more planes and ships and guns the people munched another all-hot and said, "We want peace. Please, don't be a trouble maker!"

* * * *

It was just the same as if your next door neighbor got out on the roof with a complete supply of dynamite, machine guns, flame throwers and cannon while you dozed in your porch hammock and said, "Something oughta be done about that fellow. Let's write a letter to a newspaper."

* * * *

And there you have the frank, honest story, fellow citizens. Nobody is to blame but you, and you and you. We can never blame our leaders. For once it is plainly our fault and our responsibility. The thing to do now is to stop those long naps. And cut out those sleeping pills. I thank you.

Secretary LaGuardia

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York, has been mentioned as an Assistant Secretary of War or for some other place in Mr. Roosevelt's emergency Cabinet. The very idea is staggering. Fiorello might or might not keep us out of this war, but he would start so many others that we would forget all about the present crisis. We can see him now, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, attired in fire helmet, rubber boots and naval blouse, carrying a fire hose in one hand and a pair of binoculars in the other, ready for all comers.

Mayor LaGuardia is the only man in America who could plan a naval battle, dedicate a viaduct, open a new school, issue an ultimatum to Germany, deliver a talk on kitchen economics, put through an aviation program, throw out a first baseball, denounce the press and lead a tank attack, all in one afternoon.

Lest We Forget

By Barnet Nover

There Are Four Other Columns

EVERY NATION has its fifth column. But in the panic produced in this country by the sudden realization of this disturbing fact there lies a real danger. The danger is that in our preoccupation with the fifth column we may forget the crucial significance of the other four. Yet almost the only danger from the fifth column arises out of its potential relationship with those other four columns.

The history of recent years makes that very plain. The term "fifth column" originated in 1936 during the Spanish civil war. Its author was Gen. Mola, commander of the forces marching on Madrid. The poorly equipped Republican legions seemed to be no match for the better armed and better trained Nationalists who already at that time were receiving aid from Germany and Italy. Mola was confident that the fall of the capital was a matter of days and openly said so. Besides the four columns advancing on Madrid, he declared, there was a fifth column waiting inside the city to cut off the Republican retreat. The remark was picked up by the "radio general," Queipo de Llano and given wide circulation.

GENERAL MOLA

WHAT HAPPENED is instructive. Madrid unquestionably harbored a fifth column. But the Republicans had no difficulty in meeting the threat from that quarter so long as they were able to fend off the other four columns. Indeed, Madrid managed to hold out to the very end. And Madrid today, its fifth column notwithstanding, would still be a republican city instead of the capital of a totalitarian state had the Loyalists not had to fight Franco and his German and Italian Allies with their hands tied by the misnamed nonintervention agreement.

There were fifth columns in Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium. We know the role they played in the conquest of those countries by Hitler's legions. But let it not be forgotten that what destroyed the independence of those countries was primarily the German army, only incidentally the Nazi fifth column. Had it been possible to fight the external foe to a successful conclusion the Norwegian, Dutch and Belgian governments would have had no trouble in taking care of the enemies within their gates.

IF THE BATTLE now raging along the Somme and the Aisne rivers in France results in a German defeat or even in a stalemate which will give the Allies the time they so desperately need to equal Germany in mechanized equipment and air power no nation in this hemisphere will have to worry about its fifth column. But if the opposite proves true, if the French army is smashed and Hitler triumphs, action against fifth column elements will obviously not be enough to preserve the internal stability and protect the external security of American countries.

A healthy body does not mean, physicians tell us, a body free of germs. The microbes of a hundred diseases lurk constantly in every constitution, however robust. But these microbes only become a danger when resistance is weakened.

So it is with fifth columns. Almost a quarter of a century has elapsed since the Bolshevik revolution. Yet in that time very few countries have seen the rise of Communist governments and those that have, Hungary, for instance, reacted violently against the system. Fascism has had better luck. Having conquered Italy, it later conquered Germany. But in the countries where democracy had firm roots, Great Britain, France, Switzerland, the Scandinavian kingdoms, the Low Countries, democracy survived Nazi propaganda and fifth-column machinations. In Denmark, Norway, Belgium and the Netherlands it could not survive the impact of armed force. And that will be true in the remaining democracies of Europe if they are overrun by the Nazi juggernaut.

WITH A PROMPT realization of the dangers which threaten our external security and the security of this hemisphere the Administration, Congress and the American people have undertaken vast defense measures. Measures are also being considered to meet the fifth-column menace. It is wise that these measures be taken. Yet if we forgot the meaning for us of the fight which the Allies are making to prevent the German army from riding roughshod over France and England, if we fail to do everything we possibly can to help those nations in the epochal struggle they are waging, our defense measures may prove belated, our antififth-column measures inadequate. And we have no time to spare.

French to Execute Former Captain

Paris, June 6 (AP).—Charles Julien Masson, former captain of the French air corps, and three other men were sentenced to death yesterday on charges of operating a spy ring that dealt with French aviation secrets.

The military court said it was due to Masson's activities before the war that the Germans were able to bomb French airports with comparative ease.

Huff Reported Chosen as Head Of McNeil Prison

By the Associated Press

Raymond L. Huff, general superintendent of penal institutions for the District of Columbia, was reported to have been chosen for the post of warden of the Federal prison at McNeil Island, Wash.

Huff conferred with James V. Bennett, director of the Federal Prison Bureau, and it was understood that arrangements were virtually completed for Huff to take over the institution in Puget Sound around July 1.

He will succeed Edwin B. Swope, who has been named warden of the new Federal Medium Security Institution at Terre Haute, Ind.

Friendship Group Elects Flickinger President Again

Samuel J. Flickinger Wednesday night was reelected president of the Friendship Citizens Association for the seventh time at the annual election held in the Janney School, Albermarle street and Wisconsin avenue northwest.

Other officers for the coming year are Martin A. Cook, reelected first vice president; Miss B. L. Pulizzi, reelected second vice president; J. H. Mills, reelected secretary for the third year, and John Slattery, treasurer.

The association called on District police officials to drive against distribution of indecent publications, and urged making the laws more stringent in this respect. The members voted approval of the President's defense program.

'Queen of Comic Opera' Is Celebrated in Film

'Lillian Russell' Reaches Palace Screen With Alice Faye in the Title Role; 'The Flag Speaks' Is Timely Short Reel

"LILLIAN RUSSELL." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a screen play by William Anthony McGuire, featuring Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Edward Arnold and Warren William, with Leo Carrillo, Helen Westley, Dorothy Peterson, Ernest Truex, Nigel Bruce, Claude Allister, Lynn Bari, Weber & Fields, Eddie Foy, jr., Una O'Connor, Joseph Cawthorn and many others. Directed by Irving Cummings. Previewed Tuesday, June 4. At Loew's Palace Theater.

TO THOSE who are able to detach themselves from the actualities, "Lillian Russell," opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, will prove a diverting entertainment. While it lacks something of the radiance and warmth that invariably attached to the personality of its titular figure, and is not always so sprightly as it should be, the picture is rich in old-time melodies and traces with some romantic effectiveness the stage career of a "comic opera queen" that has become almost legendary.

BELL

The action begins with the birth of Helen Louise Leonard, in Clinton, Iowa, in the warlashed days of 1861, and then leaps hurriedly to her debut at Tony Pastor's Theater in New York; her marriage to "Ted" Solomon, the composer; a harried experience in London, and her return to the States to take her place as the star of stars. Into this movement of the narrative has been woven the bejeweled romanticisms of Jesse Lewisohn, "Diamond Jim" Brady, Edna McCauley and the distant adoration of Alexander Moore, who, in the picture, as in life, was Lillian Russell's fourth and last husband.

The spectacular climax of the film is reached in a grand finale at the Weber and Fields Music Hall, where Miss Russell was one of the foremost of an extraordinary galaxy of stars.

My chief personal objection to all this is that William Anthony McGuire, author of the screen play, has flagrantly distorted the chronology of events and packed his "biography" with anachronisms. Two of Lillian Russell's marriages are totally ignored; she sings songs in 1880 that were not written until some 10 or 15 years later; the dates of her stage appearances in certain of her most famous vehicles are hopelessly jumbled, and her famous feud with Gilbert and Sullivan is passed along to her husband, "Ted" Solomon, the tunesmith. The Weber & Fields Music Hall finale is executed in the proportions of the Radio City Music Hall, instead of the little house on Twenty-ninth street that seated less than 700. To the present generation of theatergoers all of this will not matter much.

Alice Faye, in the title role, is at her best as the young "Nellie" Leonard. As time and the play progress, she is less and less like the bounteous beauty she is called upon to impersonate. Her singing of such songs as "After the Ball," "Come Down, My Evening Star," "Rosie" and a score of others is in her best manner. Don Ameche also is assigned a number or two, and Henry Fonda, Edward Arnold, Warren William, Helen Westley, Dorothy Peterson and Leo Carrillo give the piece dramatic substance. Weber and Fields demonstrate that public taste in comedy changes considerably in half a century, and Joe Cawthorn that an ace comedian can become a fine character actor. If Lillian Russell might view this film of her life, she probably would wonder where all of her "effulgence" went to in the making of it.

"The Flag Speaks," the chief Technicolor supplementary of the new bill at the Palace, is a patriotic subject particularly appropriate to the times. John Nesbitt, as the voice of the Stars and Stripes, is immensely impressive. A cartoon comedy, "A Rainy Day," and a new release of the "News of the Day" complete the bill.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

(While Louella O. Parsons is on her Honolulu vacation, this column is being written by her daughter, Harriett Parsons, producer of "Screen Snapshots.")

Hollywood, June 5.—Would you fans like to see Tyrone Power in a really swashbuckling role? His boss Darryl Zanuck, thinks you would and has decided to star Tyrone in "The Californian," based on Douglas Fairbanks, sr.'s great silent hit, "The Mark of Zorro." John Taintor Foote is writing the screen play and Ray Griffith will produce.

LOUELLA PARSONS

"The Californian" will go into production as soon as Ty finishes "Brigham Young," probably early in July, and replaces "The Great Commandment," previously announced as the next Power vehicle.

When Judy Garland finishes "Strike Up the Band," with Mickey Rooney, she'll step out on her own in her first solo starrer. M.-G.-M. has picked "Little Nelly Kelly," the old George M. Cohan hit musical, for Judy's next and she'll play two roles, Nelly and Nelly's Ma. Norman Taurog will direct. There seems to be a definite trend toward reviving tried and musical comedy successes of other years. RKO did so well with "Irene" that they recently purchased "No, No, Nanette" and "Sunny" as follow-ups for Anna Neagle.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: When word got around that Alice Faye and Bob Preston were dining at the Hollywood Tropics, autograph hounds stormed the place and the duo had to make a getaway via the back door; The new Dorothy Lamour-Greg Bautzer twosome is the most torrid in town and may be heading toward matrimony. Greg left for New York last night and Dottie had dinner with him and took him to the plane; Cesar Romero has been down with the flu for three days; That beautiful blonde who was dancing with Charlie Chaplin at the Victor Hugo paragon room is Latin Maria Montez. They were also in the same party at the races.

The Adolphe Menjous were with Hedy and Gene Markey at the Grace Hayes lodge and Adolphe knocked everybody cold by singing "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" with a Scotch brogue; Charles Boyer has the rheumatiz; The Gary Coopers leave New York this week for a fortnight in Bermuda; Frances Langford's back from visiting hubby Jon Hall on the "Kit Carson" location in Arizona; Spencer Tracy takes off on Friday for Ripon College in Wisconsin, where he'll receive the honorary tag "doctor of dramatics." He attended Ripon for two years before going on the stage; Wendy Barrie gets daily long distance calls from George Herascu, a wealthy Hungarian steel man who's in New York to meet his mother and bring her out here. But Wendy's also been spending some time teaching Lee Sterling to kegle at the Beverly bowling courts.

Sonja Henie, with her entire family and Dan Topping in attendance, took in the opening of "Ice Etchings of 1940" at the Polar Palace and eyed the routines of national Champ Eugene Turner with great interest.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, June 6.

George Cukor dieted off 70 pounds. All his friends thought he'd gone too far, but now that he's had a month's rest, his face has filled out, and his friends are jealous. While declining cream of mushroom soup at Mary Boland's the other night, he said, "If we ever get into war, I'll feel sorry about this, because then I might need all my fat."

HOPPER

When Tom Lewis saw Loretta Young in a black lace medallion gown made over nude chiffon, he said, "No wonder they changed the title of your picture to 'He Stayed for Breakfast.' Anyone would be a fool not to."

Rita Hayworth and Edward Norris prove Hollywood works in reverse gear. Rita, whose real name is Cansino, had quite a reputation as a dancer. When she dropped the name, she dropped the dancing, too. Now, she's teaching Eddie Norris, who has never been noted for his toe work, how to play the part of a dancing master in the picture, "Gribouille."

Andy Lawlor used to be one of our better comedians. Sold "No, No, Nanette" and "Sunny" for $200,000. Do you blame him for giving up acting? Reminds me of a producer I know who used to sing. When asked why he gave up singing, he said, "Couldn't afford that luxury—I had to make money."

Do you remember "Humoresque?" One of Frank Borzage's finest pictures. If they can get Gertrude Berg, who is "Molly Goldberg" of the air waves, to move her show to Hollywood, they'll remake "Humoresque," with Gertrude as the Jewish mother.

Frank Freeman, head of Paramount, wasn't kidding when he told the Congressional Committee in Washington that if the Neely Bill passes, his studio will have to cancel all contracts with stars, directors, and writers, which means every studio in town would follow suit.

Up on the "Brigham Young" location at Lone Pine, 150 residents signed up for extra work. They looked forward to working with Ty Power and Linda Darnell, but instead, scene was one where a hundred covered wagons crossed a creek in muddy water. After wading all day in mud, 67 of the "extras" asked to be excused—which proves how our boys and girls at Central Casting earn their pay.

Columbia

"Dirty Work in Death Valley" might well have been the subtitle of "Twenty-Mule Team," which reappears on F street this morning as chief feature of the bill for the new week at Loew's Columbia Theater.

The principal characters in this lusty tale of the borax diggings, back there toward the turn of the century, are Skinner Bill Bragg, John Johnson, Stag Roper, "Mitch" and Jean Johnson, who get themselves into a fine tangle and a lot of sunplay trying to work out the money, love and justice problems.

Wallace Beery has a made-to-order character as the mule skinner, trapped by his own earlier career, and Marjorie Rambeau is no less effective as the lady-saloonkeeper, who battles to save her impressionable young daughter from the fascinations of a "city slicker" and make her marry Mitch, the native diamond-in-the-rough. Douglas Fowley, Anne Baxter and Noah Beery, jr., appear in these respective roles. Leo Carrillo is a dark walnut Piute Pete and Berton Churchill makes a fine "Jackass" Brown, head of the borax outfit. There are 20 other jackasses in the cast, but they only haul those 30,000-pound wagons.

Metropolitan

Possessing a meteorological significance that it lacked back in the cooler days when it played the Earle with such high success—if not temperatures—"Torrid Zone" this morning takes command of the Metropolitan screen for a repeat downtown engagement. It is worth it.

In this comedy-melodrama of the banana country, the Warner Brothers have spoofed the slacks off all earlier films of like character. "Torrid Zone" is a fantastic and goofy yarn, played to the hilt by a cast that captures the full measure of its "romance," its rough stuff, its "reesgay" moments and its almost continuous burlesque.

Ann Sheridan comes to life in this one as a potential second Jean Harlow, and Jimmy Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Andy Devine, George Tobias, Helen Vinson, Jerome Cowan, Victor Kilian, Frank Puglia and other principals have roles that are right down their alligator runs. Individually and in concert, they slipped a few fast ones past the Hays office—to no one's injury or regret.

The bill is augmented by the usual short subjects and newsreel.

RKO-Keith's

Perhaps it's the weather, very possibly it's the war, but a musical-comedy entering its second generation is proving a surprisingly sturdy visitor at RKO-Keith's Theater. "Irene," the screen's adaptation of the hit of the 'twenties, today begins its third week on Fifteenth street.

Anna Neagle, more celebrated for her historical characterizations "Victoria the Great" and "Nurse Edith Cavell," sings and dances with unlooked-for charm as the little Irish girl, who floundered into a modeling job and a pleasing husband. Ray Milland, another Britisher, is pleasingly natural as Madame Lucy, the fellow whom Cupid and not cupidity involves in the dressmaking trades. Roland Young, Billie Burke, May Robson, Arthur Treacher and Alan Marshall are the reliable farceurs in an adaptation which places emphasis upon the plot of its original.

Balmy Spring Brings Action To Hollywood

Production Spurt Routs Spring Fever On Studio Lots

Spring fever, commonest symptom of which is usually a delicious feeling of lassitude, appears to be taking a strange turn in Hollywood, which is breaking out in a rash of furious action.

Every studio in the movie capital appeared to be affected, but the attack has reached epidemic proportions at Paramount, where the heroes and heroiens are spending all their days galloping the plains, paddling across lagoons, sailing into the teeth of the gale, or trading punches in a brawl.

Many Distressed Maidens

There are six maidens in distress at the moment for every one that's eating bonbons, and if any of the heroes are flat on their backs it's because they've just been knocked down, and not because they flopped to stare dreamily at the clouds.

At Paramount, for instance, there are a round dozen films ready for release, now in production or scheduled to start shooting before June 21, officially ending spring, which stress action as their keynote.

Foremost, of course, is Cecil Be De Mille's Technicolor opus, "North West Mounted Police," the first true to type film of the Mounties ever made, with a cast headed by such stars as Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll, Paulette Goddard, Preston Foster and Robert Preston.

"Untamed," presenting Ray Milland, Patricia Morison and Akim Tamiroff in the great north woods, is scheduled for early release.

Many In Production

Already in production, also, are "Rangers of Fortune," Director Sam Wood's epic of post Civil War days on the Texas border with Fred MacMurray, Patricia Morison, Albert Dekker, Gilbert Roland and Joseph Schildkraut in top roles and "Texas!" in which James Hogan is directing Ellen Drew, John Howard and May Robson, among others.

Bob Burns returns to the screen in "Comin' 'Round the Mountain," the tale of a mountain feud, while Fredric March and Betty Field are to be costarred in Joseph Conrad's "Victory."

"Mystery Sea-Raiders," "Moon Over Burma," and two Harry Sherman productions, "Three Men from Texas" and "Doomed Caravan," both Hopalong Cassidys, complete the daring dozen.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, June 6.

THE WALL STREET law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell represents some investment trusts, and is opposing the legislation introduced to curb these organizations. Sponsor of this legislation is David Schenckcr, of the SEC. . . . Alfred Jaretzki, of Sullivan & Cromwell, went to Washington to map the fight against curbing his client's operations. The SEC, making a benign gesture towards the enemy from Wall Street, offered the lawyer a room in the SEC offices, where he could make his campaign. Jeretzki accepted this tribute to a gallant foe, and moved into the offices of this most forceful of New Deal agencies. But lest there be a misunderstanding and suspicion of compromise, he draped across the wall a banner reading: "Dewey for President."

HARRY HOPKINS has drawn the outlines of a youth-training program from noncombatiant duties, as part of the defense move, which will be turned over to Sidney Hillman for administration. . . . That air base near Lyon, which was bombed by the Nazis Monday, is the neighborhood to which Gertrude Stein has moved, after purchasing the home of the army officer for whom she arranged a promotion and transfer. Alec Waugh, the novelist, finished his newest novel while working at the British headquarters in France.

MARC CONNELLY sat with a group of Hollywood writers, and discussed with them the dream-house each would like to build. One of the participants at this realty confessional was Harry Kurnitz who, as "Marco Page," won the Dodd, Mead mystery-novel contest . . . "Frankly, I don't care much what my house would look like," Connelly admitted, in fantastic frenzy, "as long as it had one thing—a real milk bath" . . . "Nope, not for me," Kurnitz protested . . . "And why not?" Connelly demanded . . . "I wouldn't walk into a tub," Kurnitz vowed, "with all those cats in it."

GEORGE OPPENHEIMER, the Hollywood scenarist, is M-G-M's current trouble-shooter. Whenever a producer encounters script trouble, he sends for Oppenheimer. There are many such script-doctoring assignments, and in all of them Oppenheimer receives credit as a collaborator. . . . After viewing a series of M-G-M's credit slides, he insisted upon being addressed as Mr. AND George Oppenheimer.

Helen Davis, daughter of the Davis Cup donor, former Secretary of War Dwight Davis, will join the Department of Commerce shortly as a $1-a-year employe . . . Fred Schwed, jr., the broker whose new Wall St. book, "Where Are the Customers' Yachts?" was illustrated by Peter Arno, now is wondering whether this is the propitious time to release it—although the copies are all printed. . . . Jerry Horwin, co-author of the John Barrymore play, "My Dear Children," will return to N. Y. this week with a new play he's written with Jimmy Gleason, called "Nice Weather We're Havin'" . . . Palisades amusement park will try to get away with a new stunt—a hair-pulling contest for girls.

A HUSKY GENTLEMAN, walking a funny little dog on leash, in the East Sixties, was startled when the animal became involved in a fight with a terrier. The latter's owner, a lady, registered strong protest, and accused the man's dog of having provoked this fight . . . "That's impossible," the man insisted. "He's a gentle, little dog, and never fights." But the excited lady insisted upon obtaining the man's identification, with a view towards possible suit . . . And so the owner of the animal he insists was a gentle, little one, gave his name—Frank Buck.

AN UNRECOGNIZED poet sent a manuscript containing his verse to Random House. The editors rejected it with a note explaining: "This is too full of Archibald Macliches." . . . Guy Kibbee is campaigning to get the title role in the Scattergood Baines series, which is being adapted by Allen Rivkin for RKO. Rivkin is the writer whose eminent job in "Typhoon" won him this new assignment. . . . The chewing gum company which sponsors the Scattergood Baines air programs will cooperate in the movie production by a tie-up with its 1,700,000 dealers—all of whom, Jim Farley will be pleased to know, will be notified by registered mail. . . . Hannah Williams will be starred at the Riviera, July 4. . . . Harold Ickes is grooming himself for a switch to the War Department.

FOUR YEARS AGO a young, crazed bridegroom named Joseph Steinmetz made the front pages when, in a midtown hotel, he shot and killed his bride and a clergyman. . . . His life was spared by a tolerant jury, which sent him to prison instead of to the chair. . . . He now is eligible for parole, but the question of his freedom involves strange complications. He was born in Rumania. His parents' naturalization did not make him a citizen of this country. When he took his bride to Mexico, to marry her there, he interrupted that period of consecutive residence required before he can become a citizen of the United States. . . . The parole board wants to free him, and deport him, as an alien, but there is no boat now to take him back to his native land.

100,000,000 Pennies a Year Dropped in Weight Scales

Here's something to think about, next time you step on a scale platform and drop a penny in the slot.

The American public is more weight conscious than ever before. One company alone which places and services scales claims it takes in 100,000,000 pennies a year.

Women, especially those on the plump side, hardly ever step down without remarking, "This scale's wrong, I don't weigh that much."

Washington is the only city glorified by having public buildings and scenic views reproduced on those cards which have arrows indicating your weight.

Vandalism is the worst scourge of scale operators.

Those are a few of the information gems dispensed yesterday by J. J. Crosby, sales manager of the Peerless Weighing and Vending Machine Corporation, when he played hookey for a few minutes from the Hotel Mayflower's Weights and Measures Conference to give an interview.

Asked to comment on a rumor that a new scale is coming out which shines your shoes, mops your brow and prints a hot tip on the sixth at Charles Town, besides divulging your weight, Crosby replied drily:

"Ahem, we think a movie star's picture, a fortune, and your weight are a good penny's worth."

As for those fortunes, Crosby said his company has about 1,500 at its disposal, but there are never more than 300 or so in circulation at any one time. About once a year revision sets in and a batch of fresh fortunes are inserted.

"We're thinking of introducing the question-and-answer card," said Crosby. "That's where you drop a penny and on the other side of the weight card you're confronted with a puzzler. If you don't know the answer, but would like to, just drop another penny and out comes the answer. Clever, isn't it?"

There would be far more profit in the penny scale business, he said, if it weren't for vandalism losses These range, in motivation, from malicious stuffing of coin slots with hair pins and breakage of glass to playful smashups perpetrated by college boys celebrating a football victory, who steal a $200 scale just to give it a ride, then dump it gleefully in some gully.

D. C. Supply Rider Bans Pay To Aliens

Auditor Donovan Asks for Status Of Citizenship Of All Employes

What was considered at the Capitol an innocuous amendment to the 1941 District supply bill yesterday was causing some uneasiness at the District Building as the Senate approved the conference report and sent the appropriations measure to the White House.

A House amendment, attached to the bill on the House floor March 29, prohibits the payment of any of the $48,765,080 to any municipal employe who is not either a citizen of the United States or who upon the date of the approval of the act has filed a declaration of intention to become a citizen.

The amendment was offered at the close of the day by Representative James E. Van Zandt (Republican), of Pennsylvania, and accepted without contest by Chairman Caldwell (Democrat), of Florida. Van Zandt, who has been three times commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has sponsored similar amendments to Federal appropriations bill.

Must Certify Next Month

The amendment was all but forgotten until yesterday when Auditor Daniel J. Donovan stated that he will call upon department heads to certify that employes in their divisions are citizens prior to the preparation of the first payroll next month.

Major Donovan will have to certify that all District employes are citizens before the payroll is approved by the Comptroller General of the United States.

While it was uncertain yesterday how many, if any, non-citizens are on the District payroll, municipal employes whose citizenship is questionable began to hunt for birth certificates and citizenship papers when the word spread around the District Building.

Like "Little Red Rider"

The Van Zandt amendment will be similar in its operation to the famed "little red rider," which several years ago prohibited the payment of salaries to any public school teachers who taught or advocated Communism. This amendment has since been repealed.

Similar prohibitions, also sponsored by Van Zandt, are now in effect as to many Federal payrolls.

Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, put the conference report on the District bill through the Senate in a few minutes without encountering any difficulties such as Representative Caldwell had in the House.

Capital News In Brief

Maj. Tansey Assigned

Maj. Patrick H. Tansey yesterday received a "temporary" assignment with the Chief of Engineers Office, effective July 5.

MAJ. TANSEY

The Assistant Engineer Commissioner, largely responsible for the success of the District's $18,150,000 public works program, was scheduled to leave the District government September 1 to enter the Army War College as a student. It is understood he will serve as assistant to the chief of the Construction Division for the two months prior to taking courses at the War College.

Maj. Tausey entered the District service July 1, 1936. Since that time he has specialized in all phases of construction work for the municipal government.

Alabamans Elect Stiles

Robert S. Stiles, who is in the chief clerk's office at the Department of Justice, was elected president of Alabama State Society last night to succeed Allen Crenshaw. Other officers chosen at the meeting at the Shoreham Hotel were: Vice presidents (one from each Congressional district), John Bester Robertson, Jeff D. Harris, Elizabeth Powell, Jamie Johnson, Jack Knight, Rosalie Lamb, Claude Sizemore, Harold Pounders, Walter Hand; secretary, Herman Ingram; assistant secretary, Mrs. Ruby Shirley; treasurer, Tom Scott.

Rep. Jenks Stricken

Representative Arthur B. Jenks (Republican), of New Hampshire, was in Naval Hospital last night after suffering a heart attack while driving through Arlington Cemetery. Hospital authorities said his condition was "good."

REP. JENKS

According to Arlington County police, Jenks was driving with Mrs. Jenks to the Army and Navy Country Club when he suffered the attack.

Mrs. Jenks remained through the night at the hospital with her husband.

260th Seeks Recruits

Enlisted men of the 260th Coast Artillery (antiaircraft), District National Guard, last night launched a recruiting drive for their regiment at its armory on Maine avenue. Col. Walter W. Burns, commanding, and Lieut. Col. LeRoy Mann spoke.

Census 'Mopping Up'

Its work virtually completed, the Census Bureau has launched "mopping up" operations to make sure of counting every man, woman and child in the District. G. R. Brown, supervisor for the District, yesterday asked that anyone having reason to believe he may have been missed by an enumerator notify him at Room 29, Census Bureau Annex.

455 Middies Receive Diplomas; Edison Cites Sacred Heritage

A FITTING REWARD—Ensign William Smoot Antile, jr., received his diploma at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., yesterday and then this special reward from Ginie Ennerga, of Petersburg, Ill.

"GREAT TO BE AN ANNAPOLIS GRAD"—Harriett Drumheller pins black and gold shoulder insignia on Midshipman William B. Morton, commissioned an ensign at the exercises. Both are from Charleston, W. Va.

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, June 6.—Four hundred and twenty-one Naval Academy graduates were commissioned in the Navy and Marine Corps today at the conclusion of colorful commencement exercises in Thompson Stadium.

More than 10,000 June week spectators, dressed in all colors of the rainbow, gave the 455 white-uniformed graduates a thunderous applause after they had received their diplomas from Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison and had tossed their caps high into the air.

The graduation exercises, held in sweltering weather, marked the close of a gay June week and the entry of new blood into the Nation's defense forces.

Three hundred and ninety-seven graduates received commissions as ensigns in the Navy and 24 as second lieutenants in the Marine Corps, with the words of Edison still ringing in their ears:

"We are determined that, if needed, our first line of defense will not fail . . . like the fleet, each of you must be ready . . . the Nation trusts that you will."

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a telegram to Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, Academy superintendent, expressed his regret at not being able to attend and bestowed his best wishes and congratulations on the graduates.

With new gold and black shoulder markers gracing their uniforms, the newly commissioned officers immediately went on leave, which ranged from 15 to 30 days.

Thirty graduates, honorably discharged because of physical disabilities, checked out at Bancroft Hall. Among them was Joseph Paul D'Arezzo, of Los Angeles, Calif., honor man of the graduating class.

The new first and third classes began preparations this afternoon to embark tomorrow on the battleships New York, Texas and Arkansas for a summer practice cruise to the Newport, R. I., area. The ships will leave early Saturday.

The first section of the new second class will leave early next week aboard several destroyers for coastal cruises. When they return the other section will conclude summer studies and will embark.

Commander William N. Thomas, academy chaplain, opened the exercises with the invocation. Admiral Brown introduced Edison, who delivered the commencement address. He asserted:

"At few times in our Nation's history has the attention of the American people been more focused on a Naval Academy graduating class and their brothers in service than today. The unhappy series of events of this year has belatedly awakened our citizens to a keen and active interest in our Nation's defense plans.

"Shipyards are working at full speed on 66 new naval vessels, plane factories are speeding up construction of war planes, gun and powder factories are working at full capacity to provide fighting equipment for ships and planes . . .

"Our ships of today are vastly improved over those of a few years ago. Our training methods and the general battle efficiency of the fleet have reached an all-time high in excellence. In both there is still progress to be made."

He told the graduates that "in the Nation's hour of need" you must possess "the indomitable determination and dauntless scorn of death which marked John Paul Jones above all his fellows."

Tenant Court Collections Stir Battle

Housing Association Charges Landlords Use Tribunal As Their Agency

In a stormy meeting at the Municipal Court yesterday representatives of the Washington Housing Association charged that the Landlord and Tenant Branch was unduly crowded with cases because some landlords were using the court as a "collection agency."

Members of the housing group who said they called the meeting to "talk things over" with the judges in the hope of finding a way to promote landlord-tenant harmony with a minimum of legal involvement were surprised to find a large number of bar association members representing real estate owners at the gathering. The latter took issue with the Housing Association members, claiming the group called the meeting in an attempt to tell the court how to handle its cases.

Darr Leads Attack

Sefton Darr, prominent attorney and member of the board of directors of the Washington Housing Association, appealed on the grounds of justice and democracy for "better landlords, better tenants, a better Washington and a better America."

Darr demanded to know why landlords were so "hasty" in bringing delinquent rent cases into court. He said that in the month of August last year 4,403 cases of the kind were brought to court. Only 37 of the tenants were evicted, he added, the rest eventually not only paying their back rent, but also court costs.

Housing group members also complained that "landlord attorneys" had "invited themselves" to the meeting.

Taking the opposite view Albert S. Mickler charged the Washington Housing Association with "perpetrating a fraud" upon the tenants, because, he added, since the group had become active "more tenants were being sued than ever."

Can't Give Charity

Mickler said many of the delinquent tenants just wouldn't pay their rent until they were forced to. He said landlords were in business and couldn't be expected to deal out "charity."

Other members of the Housing Association argued that many tenants didn't know their own rights in court; that landlords seldom came to court, but were represented by agents, and that the court should somehow strive to bring about a closer relationship between landlord and tenant.

Judge Nathan Cayton, one of the five members of the landlord and tenant branch bench, who were present, led to the conclusion of the meeting by suggesting that another be held in the near future

Christian Heurich, Brewer, Feted On Anniversary

More than 4,000 persons yesterday paid tribute to Christian Heurich, 98-year-old Washington brewer, on the seventy-fifth anniversary of his arrival in this country from Bavaria.

Arriving at the decorated brewery at Twenty-sixth and Walter streets, at his usual hour of 8:45 a. m., the veteran brewer was presented 15 minutes later with a scroll from the Brewers Industrial Foundation by Hugh Harvey, secretary. Another parchment from the United States Brewers' Association was presented by Secretary D. W. Williams.

Members of Heurich's immediate family at the ceremonies included Mr. and Mrs. Christian Heurich, jr., son and daughter-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eckles, daughter and son-in-law; Mrs. Christian Heurich, sr.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jacobsen, nephew and niece; Chris Jacobsen, grandnephew, and five grandchildren.

Fifth Column Deadlier Than Guns or Bombs, Mead Tells 300 Columbus U. Graduates

Fedele, of Pennsylvania; Jo an Bradley Murphy, of the District; Dean Fitzpatrick; Kathryn Patricia Casey, of New York; Marguerite C. McDermott, of Virginia, and Dorothea Hampel Leatherberry, of Illinois. Commencement exercises were held in Constitution Hall

"Agents of the fifth column are more to be dreaded in America than threats which might appear in the form of tanks, or guns or bombs," Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, last night told more than 300 graduates of Columbus University at commencement exercises in Constitution Hall.

"We can build military defenses, but just as important is the construction of adequate moral defenses," he asserted. "We need to provide strong spiritual preparedness."

G. E. Herring Also Speaks

Preceding Senator Mead, the Right Rev. Msgr. Edward L. Buckey delivered an invocation and George E. Herring, chairman of the board of trustees, gave an address of welcome.

Degrees were conferred by William E. Leahy, president of Columbus; John R. Fitzpatrick, dean of the School of Law, and James D. Cushman, dean of the School of Accountancy.

Symphony Contract Is Signed

Eight Watergate Concerts, 20-Week Winter Season Provided in Pact

The wage dispute which threatened the life of the National Symphony Orchestra last night was officially off.

Representatives of the Orchestra Association and of the Musicians Protective Union met at the home of A. C. Hayden, union president, 1011 B street southeast, yesterday afternoon and signed a two-year contract covering services of the orchestra's musicians.

The contract not only provides for a 20-week winter season in 1940-41 and 1941-42, but also assures an eight-week season of concerts at the Water Gate this summer.

The contract, which will give the musicians a basic weekly pay of $58 in the winter season, is based on an agreement reached by the union and the management two months ago. Since that time the Orchestra Association conducted a successful campaign for a $107,800 sustaining fund, which the directors said would be necessary to carry out provisions of the agreement.

C. C. Cappel, orchestra manager, last night said the Water Gate series concerts will begin Sunday night, July 7. In addition to 12 "Sunset Symphony" concerts, the season will include presentation of four operas, Cappel announced.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Father of Girl, 13, Straps Her When Neighbor Boy Telephones to Ask Her to Party; He Says Decent Girls Don't Communicate With Boys; Is He Right?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 13 years old and will be 14 in December. The girls on my block, with whom I go around, are 12, 13 and 14 years old. Their parents allow them to go to parties and to invite boys to their homes. But I am not allowed any such privileges. Every time my girl friends call for me, my father has them come into the house, so that he may be sure no boys are along. Although my father comes from a foreign country and wishes to bring me up decently, I feel as though I should be allowed the privileges of other children.

One day a boy called me up to invite me to his party, not knowing that I am not allowed to receive telephone calls from boys. My father took the call and told the boy abruptly that I was not at home. After he had hung up, he beat me with his belt, saying that decent girls should not communicate with boys—which I think is very old fashioned and silly.

I have heard it said that parents are always right, but in this case I think that I am the one who is right. I do not see why my parents will not let me play with boys, as my neighborhood is a nice one and the boys are decent. My parents never taught me any of the facts of life—fearing that something terrible might happen. But my girl friend's mother taught them to me, as she thought it would be necessary for me to know them.

Please advise me what to do. I would appreciate it very much if you will answer through the newspaper, as my mail is opened and read before it is given to me.
Yours sincerely, HESTER B.

Father's Shameful Act Reflects Lascivious Mind

DEAR HESTER B.: According to my way of thinking, your father's theory that boys are dangerous beasts in their attitude toward girls is worse than "old fashioned and silly." It is downright evil-minded. In my opinion, he committed a shameful act in beating you with his belt just because a boy who is a neighbor and an acquaintance ingenuously telephoned your home in order personally to invite you to his party.

Since your father has chosen to rear his family in this country, he should be more open minded and adaptive to the country's essentially rather civilized social philosophy and behavior, which are expressive of our society's faith in the fundamental spiritual decency of humankind. If his children are to profit from the obvious advantages of life in this new environment, they should be allowed, as a matter of course, to associate on a casual, comradely basis with youngsters of both sexes from reputable homes, where youth is trained in acceptance of enlightened personal and social responsibility.

Just because a person is a parent, it by no means follows that he (or she) has wisdom in all things. A person is no greater as a parent than he is as a human being; and, in my belief, an unerring sense of justice, faithfully served, is the hallmark of the highest type, noblest, most trustworthy human being. Which is prefatory to saying that I feel your father is being reprehensibly unjust in his administration of parental authority, in visiting his lascivious suspicions upon you in the form of blows and unreasoning restrictions. I feel, indeed, that his actions, which imply there is something potentially destructive and degrading in boy-and-girl friendships, painfully demonstrate his unfitness for the parental role.

But what you are going to do about it is not so easily answered. As the proverb reminds us, "You can't teach an old dog new tricks." And it seems apparent that he is committed, with irrevocable obstinacy, to the notion that human and brute nature are one. This credo is exemplified in both his philosophy and conduct.

Probably there is nothing you can do to enlarge his understanding or purge his outlook of neurotic ignobility. So long as you are economically his dependent, and legally subject to his guardianship, you have no choice but to bow to his authority—spiritually and socially cramping though it may be. However, in view of the fact that you have written me one of the most literate and intelligent compositions I have ever received from a child of your age, I feel sure that you have the intellectual force and discrimination to develop and live by a rational social code, despite the handicap of parental mismanagement.

The best you can do for yourself, I think, is to adjust yourself gracefully to the mailed-fist rule, until you are of an age to govern your own actions. In the meantime, take care not to let your father's harsh dictates warp your personality, curdle your human sympathies, distort your instinctively sound estimate of the opposite sex, or incite you to stealthy insurrection. And this last point is most important to remember—since it is the children of rigidly puritanical parents who most often get in trouble, through trying to bootleg some romance into their lives. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Stripes and Slacks—a Style Affinity

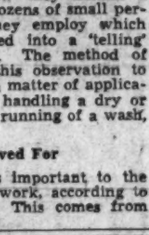
Strictest man tailoring went into the casual slacks and gay striped shirt sketched here in all their nonchalance by Ruth Conerly, noted New York fashion illustrator. Recently a Washington visitor, she listed success rules for aspiring young artists. One of them, "simplicity of drawing," is evident here for both restraint and suggestiveness are Conerly characteristics

Work Hard; Observe Closely, Aspiring Fashion Artists Advised

Ruth Conerly, Leading Style Illustrator, Says Solid Training Is Necessary; She Stresses Simplicity and Restraint

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

WHETHER a career leads to being one of America's top-flight fashion illustrators or to being merely a discerning student of art, a background of hard work and close observation is needed.



Marshall Adams

That is the opinion of Ruth Conerly, ace New York illustrator and last week a visitor to the capitol where she judged the annual exhibition of Washington's Society of Commercial Artists. Since the ambitions of young Washington artists are daily laid at this desk, we personally welcomed the chance of gathering advice direct from one of the most successful fashion artists in the country. Miss Cornerly is originator and author of the "Visualizer," a collection of sparkling action line sketches which is practically the "Bible" of the fashion art world.

Get A Formula

"A set formula or standard of drawing should be the goal of student artists," Miss Conerly said at a lecture following her judging of local artists' work. "A sure formula for being able to quickly sketch animated looking figures and smart fabrics is far more appealing to a business-like art director than a spotty artist's work which is inconsistently good at times, 'fuzzy' or messy at others. the artist who faithfully follows an approved formula is the one likely to cash in when the jobs are given out."

After a formula is arrived at, Miss Conerly advised "working like the old Nick" to create an individual style, that is, a personal technique to set one's individual work apart.

"An illustrator must be a slave, to his or her career," Miss Conerly continued, "ever with a weather eye cocked to find out how the smart women are wearing their hair and hats this season, what poses they affect when relaxed or on parade, how they handle a cigarette, the dozens of small personal tricks they employ which can be injected into a 'telling' fashion sketch. The method of transplanting this observation to paper, again—a matter of application, tricks of handling a dry or wet brush, the running of a wash, etc."

Simplicity Strived For

Simplicity is important to the career artist's work, according to Miss Conerly. This comes from natural good taste in an artist's make-up and in the elimination of unimportant details.

In the accompanying sketch made by Miss Conerly especially for The Post, the casual streamlined girl is drawn with simplicity.

Surprisingly enough, red-haired, likable Ruth Conerly is herself unsophisticated and more retiring than the usual conception of the New York career artist. Her ruling interest is her progress in art, a never ceasing study of anatomy, action and simplification. Her interest in art was so sincere that she hitch-hiked 1,800 miles from Dallas to New York to start her profession, eighth years ago with her husband, Theodore Smith, an advertising writer and promoter of the "Visualizer." Despite her love of the sketch pad, Ruth Conerly is one career woman who doesn't hesitate admitting that her home comes first; that no shop talk takes place at their dinner table, and that her own career is secondary to her husband's.

Remember the bright red cherries on grandma's hat—the ones that rattled when she walked? They're in again, to dress the modern frock. Gale Storm, movie actress, wears a knot of them at the waist of her newest summer evening gown, a bouffant frock of navy and white checked taffeta as old-fashioned as the cherries.

While we're recalling old-fashioned things, there are the chains of long silver beads which are strung in lines from the high choker collar to the top of the heartshaped bodice of a new formal gown designed for Ginger Rogers. Gown, a white baghera crepe, was created for her role in "You Can't Be Too Careful." Ginger claims the beads remind her of old-fashioned bugle bead portieres!

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Much excitement has attended the election of the Ladies Volunteer Parachute Patrol. Out of 500 applicants, only 10 names were passed by the board of governors. Among those turned down, it was learned, was the socially prominent Mrs. Cornelius Dachshund, who was sponsored by Mrs. Mortimer Silo.

"We feel that we must be very careful to get the right type of women into our organization," said Mrs. Biggerton Bellweather, patrol colonel. "If we open our membership to just everybody we will not have the support of the Right People for our benefits."

The patrol is planning an art exhibit and garden party in the near future, at which it will give a parachute exhibition.

Garden Party

Glimpsed Wednesday at the Buffington Birdhaven garden party—Mrs. Gilbert Plush removing a small green worm from the neck of Mrs. Redpath Schooner . . . Mrs. Elspeth Ermine juggling a fox scarf, an open parasol, a knitting bag, pair of white gloves, a glass of punch and a sandwich, and at the same time shooing away a persistent hornet who had become infatuated with her . . . Dr. Horatius Duller, polishing his pince nez to determine if something really was moving on his caviar canape . . . Mrs. Pillsbury Percheron walking around with an impromptu bustle consisting of the damp paper napkin she sat down upon . . . Mrs. Caleb Fossil fighting a losing battle with an insect blitzkrieg on her ankles . . . Miss Jennie Van Stiff, sitting down in a garden chair that was minus a leg and being tugged to safety by Montgomery Aspic, rising young esthete and son of Prof. Byron Bysshe Aspic . . groups of women gasping at the beauty of the peonies . . . groups of women gasping over the roses . . . groups of women gasping over the lily pool, etc., etc.

At a small, simple and exclusive wedding, Miss Marjorie Tinfoil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Arbutus Tinfoil, was married yesterday to Mr. Dither Doolittle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darlington Doolittle

The wedding was held at the Tinfoil country estate, special trains bringing guests from New York, Newport, Baltimore and other cities. Johnny Jitters' swing band came from New York to play for the dancing. The quiet ceremony was performed on a raised platform, which was connected with the house by a runway down which the bridal party walked as movie cameras clicked and a radio announcer broadcast the proceedings.

A fashion show staged by Truthtown merchants entertained guests preceding the wedding.

"With conditions in Europe as they are, we thought it bad taste to have an ostentatious wedding," the mother of the bride told reporters.

Club Note

Mrs. Sylvester Sailem and Mrs. Wynkoop Bigger have ended their long and bitter feud in the Busy Bees' Club and are now said to be working closely together to defeat Mrs. Knipton Brash for president. Mrs. Brash, a newcomer in the club, is said to have acquired a large following, and Mrs. Sailem and Mrs. Bigger have joined forces to back her opponent—a Mrs. Blink.

Although Mrs. Sailem and Mrs. Bigger at one time were on the verge of suing each other for slander, they are now on terms of social intimacy. Mrs. Sailem will give a luncheon for Mrs. Bigger tomorrow and Mrs. Bigger will entertain at tea Sunday for Mrs. Sailem's sister, who is visiting here.

Mrs. Sailem today confirmed the report that the two had buried the hatchet. "Mrs Bigger is really a much bigger woman than I realized," she said. "She sees eye to eye with me on a great many things."

Reducing Diet Need Not Be Hard to Take Painless Way Is To Cut Calories Slowly by Degrees

By Ida Jean Kain

ARE YOU a plunger or a wader? The way you go about swimming when you suspect the water is chilly serves as a good clue to your temperament—and that is something to be taken into account in your plans to finish the summer slimmer.

The plungers are easily spotted at the bathing beaches. They are the brave ones who immerse themselves in the icy water, sometimes with appropriate shrieks and splashes, and get it over with. The waders stand on shore and shiver, test the water with their toes, venture in ankle-deep, then knee-deep and, finally, may be observed swimming quietly—and often more expertly than the plungers.

When the plungers by temperament decide to reduce, they diet with gusto. They seem to get a certain kick out of cutting down on the calories. But if you are one of the waders, don't try to change your nature. You may be accustomed to three square meals a day with all the trimmings that a drastic calorie cut would be a shock to your system. Besides the acute hunger pangs you might experience a feeling of actual weakness.

Lessen Food Intake Slowly

You can get much better results by cutting the calories gradually. First, cut the corners on your usual three squares simply by omitting the trimmings. You can pare 150 calories off the breakfast menu by leaving off the jelly or marmalade, or that second slice of buttered toast. If you were consistent about taking 150 calories a day less than you need, you could lose a quarter of a pound per week.

Some form of salad dressing is apt to be the high calorie trimming in the luncheon menu. You can cut down another 150 calories by substituting boiled dressing or reducer's French dressing. And at dinner a third big subtraction can be effected by leaving off the dessert.

Those minor changes from your usual way of eating total a cut of about 500 calories. Aside from those omissions, you could continue to eat as usual and count on losing around three-fourths pound per week—provided, of course, the 500 calories are less than required for energy.

Count Those Calories

After you have become somewhat accustomed to doing without the desserts and trimmings—at least, to the extent that you no longer constantly crave them—put yourself on a 1,400 calorie daily allowance for a week or two, then go on the 1,200 calorie balanced menus planned to meet the requirements of the average reducer. You should be able to lose satisfactorily on this calorie allowance.

Glass Block Walls Let in Light, Yet Maintain Privacy

Glass block walls are prominent among the modern uses of glass. They're being used for entire walls or for wall panels in place of windows, and their wide appeal lies partly in the fact that they admit light and sun, yet maintain privacy in a room, and they make it possible to grow flowers all winter even in a north room.

Mirrored walls are another important vogue that has stepped up production of glass within the past decade. The idea really took hold when it dawned on America that mirrored walls weren't synonymous with modern furniture, when we remembered that the most florid French periods mirrored everything and that even the sedate Georgian Room used huge mirrored panels lavishly. For few things one can do to a room bring more scintilation and life to its design, increase the apparent size than broad expanses of mirrors.

Today's Health Talk

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

To what extent is disease spread by unclean eating utensils?

THERE IS NO question that a great many bacteria are left on eating utensils both in public restaurants and in homes even after thorough cleaning. But they cannot do very much harm.

A bacteriologic survey of public places in which food or beverages were sold was made in a small town. The cleanliness of the kitchens was good; metal sinks were used; clean towels were used for drying. Bacteriologic swabs taken from the edges of glasses, spoons and forks which would come in contact with the mouth were made especially after the noon or evening rush period. Temperature of the wash water was from about 100 to 140 degrees with a rinse water of from about 50 to 150 degrees.

Naturally, as all bacteriologists know, a certain number of bacteria would be present. But the amount of bacteria on these utensils and in the rinse and wash water was very much higher than would be considered normal, even though the temperature of the wash and rinse water was high enough to kill many bacteria.

It was found that if a chlorine concentration of 100 parts per million water is used, however, that the results are very much different and highly gratifying. Every other feture—the temperature of the water, the cleanliness of the towels and care of washing was the same, the only change was in the addition of a small amount of chlorine to the water.

A great many people cling to a stubborn dislike of the chlorine taste of water, but it has been proved over and over again that in this concentration it is harmless and certainly it is valuable, especially in the summer time, in preventing epidemics of food infection.

Is Vitamin B useful in neuralgia as well as neuritis?

We haven't very many reports on the use of Vitamin B in the painful form of neuritis, generally called "neuralgia." Its usefulness has been demonstrated when the nerves are involved on the muscular side causing paralysis, but when on the sensory side, causing pain, Vitamin B does not seem to work quite so well.

In a great many of the late reports on the usefulness of vitamins, it seems to me evident that the action of the vitamin is like that of a drug rather than a replacement factor. In other words, it could not be said that the Vitamin B in these cases of neuralgia was absent from the diet, and that this absence caused the neuralgia; rather that thiamin chloride, which is concentrated Vitamin B1, acts in neuralgia as a drug and must be given by the physician in larger quantities than would ordinarily be taken in the food.

Mrs. G.U. Graff Wins Takoma Flower Prize

Show to Be Open To Public Today; 1,500 Blooms in Exhibit

Marking the last of the spring flower shows of the Takoma Horticultural Club, nearly 500 flower lovers visited the opening of the twenty-fourth annual rose show last night at the Takoma branch of the Public Library, Fifth and Cedar streets northwest.

There were approximately 1,500 blooms, making the show the largest held by the club during the year. The show will be open today from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m. for the public.

Mrs. George U. Graff, 242 Peabody street northwest, was given the blue ribbon for the best rose in the show. The bloom was a light pink "Warrawee." The second best rose was a coral, "Mrs. Sam McGredy," exhibited by Wilbur H. Youngman, Meadowood, Md., who scored five blues and four reds in various classes. Except for a flaw on a petal, the "Crimson Glory" displayed by Miss Marion White, 1112 Glen Ross road, Silver Spring, Md., would have captured first place instead of third best flower, according to Niels Hansen who judged the roses.

An outstanding exhibit was a 3-inch china coffee pitcher filled with "Mme. Cecil Brunner" roses and forget-me-nots against a white satin background in a white wooden picture frame. The arrangement captured first prize, a Pixie rose plant for Mrs. R. H. Fiedler, 7100 Eighth street northwest. In the smaller miniature group Miss Isabelle Smith, Oglethorpe street northwest, won the same award for her exhibit of purple violas and tiny pink rose in a silver bowl measuring one and half inches in diameter.

A new rose "Permanent Wave" of the Polyantha variety attracted much attention in the basket filled with Campanula, "peach bells" of lavender and white with pale orange poppies, "New Dawn" and "Silver Moon" roses. These scored a blue ribbon for Mrs. Henry Ewing, Takoma Park, Md., in the arrangement class.

John L. Bishop was chairman.

Lawyer to Ask Clemency for M. L. Annenberg

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 6.—Counsel for M. L. Annenberg today challenged the Government's contention that he evaded taxes on more than $1,000,000 in dividends of the Cecelia Co.—largest item in the income tax evasion indictment against him.

Weymouth Kirkland, attorney for the Philadelphia publisher who said that he planned to ask clemency for his client, told Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson that Annenberg had paid taxes in full on his share of the dividends.

The lengthy statement was a prelude to action by the jurist on the Annenberg's plea of guilty to failure to pay $1,217,296 in taxes on his 1936 income.

The Government has agreed to drop all other charges after Annenberg is sentenced on his plea. Annenberg has agreed with the Treasury to settle his civil tax claim for $8,000,000.

Penal Chief Here To Leave July 1

Superintendent Ray L. Huff of district penal institutions will leave his job July 1 to become the warden at MacNeill Island Penitentiary, in Puget Sound, it was revealed yesterday.

The position was offered Huff by James V. Bennett, director of Federal prisons. The incumbent at McNeill Island is Edwin B. Swope, who will assume a similar job at the new Federal prison at Terre Haute, Ind.

Before coming to the District service three years ago, Huff was parole supervisor for the Department of Justice. His work here as superintendent had been lauded by penal authorities throughout the country.

Mentioned as a successor here to Huff have been Thomas M. Rives, superintendent of the District Jail; Claude Botkin, superintendent of Lorton Reformatory; Arthur Pettit, superintendent of the workhouse at Occoquan and E. A. Green, business manager of both Lorton and Occoquan.

Sheppard Introduces D. C. Defense Plan

Chairman Sheppard, of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, yesterday introduced in the Senate a bill authorizing the removal of the Arlington experimental farm and the setting up of a permanent Infantry garrison across the Potomac River for the protection of the National Capital.

The bill, which was introduced in the House last week, provides for the division of the farm tract between the War Department and the Interior Department.

Takoma Park, Petworth Clubs Hold Annual Luncheons, Hear Editor

Miss Lindsay Lauds The Woman's Page In Modern Newspapers

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Both the Takoma Park Women's Club, of which Mrs. Paul Burk is president, and the Petworth Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Frank Stuart is the head, held their annual luncheons yesterday.

The Petworth Club met at the Kennedy-Warren, with Miss Malvina Lindsay, Woman's Page editor of The Post and author of the daily column, "The Gentler Sex," as guest speaker. Talking on the subject, "Gentle Reader," Miss Lindsay recalled the time when newspapers addressed themselves to women in that manner.

She pointed out the change that has taken place in the attitude of newspapers toward women's activitiese and credited women's constant desire to improve themselves as being responsible for woman's pages in the papers today.

"There are no men's pages because men are so perfectly satisfied with themselves as they are," she said.

Young People Lacking In Moral Fiber

In these days, there is need for some of the qualities characteristic of women in the days when they were addressed as "Gentle Reader," said Miss Lindsay. Pioneer women brought up their children with the idea of service—that they should do something for the world. The young people of today are singularly lacking in the tough fiber that makes leaders, she said.

"If we don't learn cooperation we shall get regimentation," she added.

Faith, cheerfulness and happiness were recommended by Miss Lindsay as a contribution women can make at this time.

In addition to her talk, the program included greetings from Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Ellis Logan, godmother of the club when it was formed 26 years ago. There were vocal solos by George Madgeburger, bass, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. E. C. Madgeburger, a club member, and by Mrs. C. M. Scates, soprano, accompanied by Mrs. D. L. Selke. Both belong to the club.

Several Officials Among Others Feted

Guest of honor, in addition to Mrs. Daniel and Mrs. Logan, were Mrs. LeVerne Beales, first vice president of the District Federation and a Petworth member; Mrs. W. W. Husband, house and headquarters chairman fo rthe General Federation; Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, radio chairman for the District, and Miss Charlotte Clarke, Petworth librarian and an honorary member of the club.

Mrs. J. K. Utley was the general chairman of the luncheon, assisted by Mrs. Leonard Russie, Mrs. J. W. Brown, Mrs. J. C. Harvestraw, Mrs. J. W. Mee, Mrs. William Van Pelt, Mrs. J. W. Roth, Mrs. Katherine Noord, Mrs. Margaretta Parsons and Mrs. William Holtman.

Past presidents, who acted as hostesses, were Mrs. W. A. Winkelhaus, Mrs. Timothy S. Tincher, Mrs. Horace J. Phelps, Mrs. L. T. Jones, Mrs. R. E. Holm, Mrs. Otto Hammerlund, Mrs. Beales, and Mrs. Oscar H. Nelson.

Mrs. Gilbert Sward, first vice president of the Takoma Park Women's Club, presided at its luncheon in the absence of the president, Mrs. Burk, who had been called to Ohio by a death in her family. The affair was at the clubhouse of the Chevy Chase Woman's Club and was attended by 160.

The program included music by the choral, under the direction of Mrs. Edmund L. Green, and vocal solos by Donald Tabbutt. There was also a group of monologues by Maxine Mitchell.

Presentation of the "pioneer club women" medals was made to Mrs. Azro Cory, for longest service, and to Mrs. C. B. Smith, for leadership, and one in memory of the late Mrs. Otto Veerhoff.

The committee in charge of the spring luncheon included Mrs. Hugh M. Smythe, chairman; Mrs. Norman McIndoo, Mrs. Frederick A. Shumaker, Mrs. Ivan H. Richmond, Mrs. Frank A. Nickols, and Mrs. Frank A. Richmond.

Guests Expected to Bring Linen To Police Boys Club Party

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club has issued invitations to a garden party Sunday, June 16, from 5 to 7 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, 2200 Foxhall road.

The party is sponsored by the camp and house committee of the auxiliary, of which Mrs. Ernest W. Brown is chairman, and will be a linen shower for the Boys' Club camp. Guests are expected to bring towels, sheets, 63x99; pillow slips, 18x36, or a silver donation.

Mrs. J. A. Councilor is chairman of arrangements and has announced that, in case of rain, the party will be postponed until June 23.

ANNIVERSARY PARTY—Chapter F, P. E. O., will celebrate its twentieth anniversary with a tea tomorrow afternoon, from 4 to 7, at the home of Mrs. Irvin M. Tullar, 3831 Garrison street.

Receiving with the hostess will be the officers of the chapter, of which Mrs. F. J. Gillies is president. Mrs. Worthy P. Sterns, who was president of Chapter B, which was Chapter F when it was organized 20 years ago; Miss Laura Van Duyn Hanson, past president of the District Chapter, and Mrs. F. F. Elliott, former District organizer, both members of Chapter F.

Special guests will be members of the District board, presidents of the District chapters, members of Chapter B and mothers of chapter members.

Charter members of Chapter F expected to attend are Mrs. C. S. Forbes, Mrs. A. E. McKenzie, Miss Jean Handy, Miss Arline Baker, Miss Christine Bare, Miss Etnel Rogers, Miss Katherine Wilfley and Mrs. Gillies.

A musical will be given by Charles Sidney Forbes, James Elliott, Caroline McKenzie and Margaret Gillies, children of members of the chapter.

Chairmen in charge of arrangements are: Mrs. Forbes, invitations; Miss Margery Williams, decorations; Miss Laura Hanson, general chairman; Miss Arline White, vice chairman.

The tea table will have a centerpiece of spring flowers. Other decorations will be of roses, peonies and marguerites, the P. E. O. flower.

Mark Lansburgh's Will Address To Keystone Board

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Lansburgh will be hosts to the members of the advorsory board of the Keystone Automobile Club as a dinner to be held Tuesday in the gardens of their home, 3111 Idaho avenue. Guests will include a number of members of Congress and Federal and District officials who have manifested a constructive interest in the traffic and safety work of the club.

Mr. Lansburgh is a member of the Keystone advisory board and for several seasons he and Mrs. Lansburgh have been hosts at similar affairs. The dinner will mark the final meeting of the board for the current year.

Alpha Sigma Luncheon

Washington alumnae of Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority will give a spring luncheon at [illegible] Tavern tomorrow at 1:30. Arrangements are in charge of Miss Lucille Parquhm, who will be assisted by Mrs. Georgeanna Page and Mrs. Dorothy Thompson Williams. Reservations are in charge of Miss Parduhn.

Roof Dances Begin at Y. W.

The Y. M. C. A.-Y. W. C. A. recreation committee tonight will sponsor the first of its summer series of roof dances at the Y. W. C. A. at 9 o'clock. These are to continue weekly with the exception of July 5, on the Y. W. C. A. roof until September 1.

The dances will be informal with a carnival atmosphere provided by colored lights, gay balloons, confetti, and novelty "get-acquainted" dances.

They are primarily for young men and women who are strangers in Washington and desire to get acquainted, but dancers who attended in former seasons are always welcome and are always included among the guests.

On the committee sponsoring the series are Miss Ann Schiel, chairman; Berend Bracht, vice chairman; Miss Marie Zandanini, treasurer; Russell Gee, secretary; Miss Edythe Thompson, publicity; Miss Pauline Whitten, and Miss Italia D'Angelo, Strong Residence representatives; Ralph Falconer and Charles Reiser, Y. M. C. A. representatives; Jane Nichols and Davis Agge, members at large; Mrs. Virginia Shoolar, Y. W. C. A. director of recreation; Samuel Kecker, Y. M. C. A. staff representative.

Tea in Arts Club Garden on Sunday

Under auspices of the hospitality committee, of which Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin is chairman, the Arts Club will give a tea in its garden Sunday afternoon for newly elected officers and members of the board of governors. Hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Steele. Mr. Steele is the retiring president of the club.

The receiving line will be headed by the new president, Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the Washington Symphony Orchestra, and Mrs. Kindler. Other new officers are A. J. Ted Meurer, vice president; John Russell Mason, recording secretary; Lyle A. Brookover, corresponding secretary. On the board of governors new members are Frank B. Steele, Minor S. Jameson and Charles H. Stratton.

Zeta Tau Alpha To Dance Tonight

Members of Zeta Tau Alpha at George Washington University will celebrate the end of the school year with their annual spring formal dance tonight and their June house party which will be next week-end. The dance will be given at the Shoreham Supper Club.

"Tall Timbers" in southern Maryland again will be the scene of the house party.

Marvin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles T. Carter; treasurer, Mrs. William A. Jack, jr.; registrar, Mrs. Theodore Palmer; historian, Mrs. Stuart Walker, and delegate, Mrs. A. Owen Beaman.

Monticello Chapter—Mrs. Leo Kasehagen, regent; Mrs. Francis M. Shore, vice regent; Mrs. William Derr Baker, chaplain; Mrs. John William Johnson, recording secretary; Mrs. J. Roy Pipes, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Samuel B. Woodbridge, treasurer; Miss Isabel Parr, registrar; Miss Nellie Thomas, historian, and Miss Helen Louise White, delegate.

Marcia Burns Chapter—Mrs. Minnie Ashbrook Tull, regent; Mrs. Laura Raymond, vice regent; Miss Ethel Martin, recording secretary; Miss Parmelia Colby, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Flora Lowe, treasurer; Miss Susan Frasier, registrar; Mrs. Virginia Myers, chaplain; Dr. Ruth Coyner, historian, and Mrs. Samuel Cashell, delegate.

American Eagle Chapter—Honorary regent, Mrs. Myron J. Ferren; regent, Mrs. J. Lee Wilkinson; vice regent, Mrs. Agnes P. Vogelgesang; chaplain, Mrs. Myron J. Ferren; recording secretary, Mrs. Ernest Wilton Riley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Harvey B. Gram, sr.; treasurer, Mrs. E. Clayton Fish; registrar, Mrs. George R. Ward, and historian, Mrs. Caroline E. Musser.

Independance Bell Chapter—Mrs. Joseph C. Thomas reelected regent; vice regent, Mrs. Morris E. Marlow; chaplain, Mrs. Louis W. Carter; recording secretary, Mrs. Leonida L. McDougle; corresponding secretary, Miss Rosanna Robuck; treasurer, Miss Mary Richardson; registrar, Miss Jessie Lane, and historian, Mrs. Margurite Mitchell.

Victory Chapter—Mrs. Royal E. Burnham, regent; Mrs. Elgie G. Purvis, vice regent; Mrs. Sherman S. Slick, chaplain; Mrs. Mark L. Whitney, recording secretary; Mrs. Paul Yoder, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Gertrude M. Hite, treasurer; Mrs. William H. Harper, registrar, and Mrs. James W. Crabtree, historian.

Hospital Gets Sorority Gift

Emergency Hospital yesterday received as the gift of Gamma Epsilon Chapter of Alpha Zeta Beta Sorority 8 sets of guard rails to be used as a safety device on beds of elderly or delirious patients.

The presentation was by Mrs. C. A. Wingfield, chairman of the chapter charity committee, and acceptance was by Maj. Gist Blair, hospital president. Also present at the ceremonies, which were held at 2 o'clock on the fifth floor of the hospital, were Mrs. W. O. Donohoe, president of Gamma Epsilon Chapter; Mrs. Don C. Ritchie, Miss Maurine Hecht and Mrs. Robert Bryant, chapter members; B. Brent Sandidge, Emergency Hospital superintendent, and other members of the hospital staff.

The gift was made through Health Security Administration of which Emergency Hospital is an affiliate, and which administers special funds for medical care set up by Gamma Epsilon Chapter. This chapter, which numbers 15 members, and is affiliated with the national nonacademic Alpha Zeta Beta Sorority, is a charitable and social group devoting its efforts to health work and has oring plans for health service. Its funds are given to provide care ganized to help fil gaps in existand equipment for which no other provision is made in Washington.

Miss Bell's Luncheon Menu Both Old and New

Novel Twist to Old, Familiar Recipes At Affair for Recent Bride Turned Just Another Party Into a Brilliant Event

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

"SOMETHING old and something new, something borrowed and something blue" was the theme Rosemary Bell used at her luncheon in honor of a girl friend who was a recent bride. Rosemary is always one to do things "just a little different," and she certainly developed a luncheon menu as original as it was delicious for this occasion.

Martha Ellyn

Prenuptial parties call for romantic refreshments—hearts and flowers and cupids and arrows. It was just the new little twists Rosemary gave to old basic recipes that did the trick and brought the romantic motifs into the luncheon food.

Rosemary's menu was not an elaborate one, but it was an achievement in the blending of flavors and colors. The menu:

Luncheon Menu

Consomme Madrillene, Chilled
Savory Chicken Avocado Salad
Blueberry Scones
Bridal Ice Cream Molds
Orange Blossom Dainties Coffee

Cream chicken is a time honored dish, but when made into a chicken-vegetable medley and served on golden toast arrows, it takes on new allure. This dish served as her "borrowed" item—she borrowed ¼ cup flour. Following is the recipe for the Savory Chicken:

Savory Chicken—Melt ¼ cup butter and add ¼ cup flour gradually, stirring constantly. Add 2 cups hot milk slowly, stirring until smooth and thickened. Add ¼ teaspoon paprika and ¾ teaspoon salt. Combine 1½ cups diced cooked chicken with 1 cup cooked peas, ½ cup cooked celery and 2 teaspoons capers. Add to first mixture. Heat well. Serve on toast made of bread cut in arrow shape and toasted in oven. Garnish with pimiento cut in shape of tiny hearts. Serves 8.

The "blue, honest and true" touch was fragrant blueberry scones. This means adding fresh or frozen blueberries to regular scone batter. The recipe follows:

Blueberry Scones—Sift soft wheat flour. Use 2 cups flour and sift with 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon sugar. Cut in 4 tablespoons shortening. Add ½ cup blueberries, well drained. Combine 1 beaten egg and ½ cup milk and add to flour mixture, stirring lightly. Spread in greased round 9-inch layer pan. Mark pie-shaped pieces with sharp knife and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in moderate hot oven, 425 degrees, for 12 to 15 minutes. While warm, spread with mixture of 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons cream and ¾ cup confectioner's sugar. Makes 10 to 12 scones.

Orange Blossom Dainties are old-fashioned sugar cookies made new, with orange juice and rind for flavoring and cut into heart shapes for the romantic note. Pipings of pale pink icing add a proper hearts-and-flowers note.

Orange Blossom Dainties—Cream 1 cup shortening and 1¼ cups sugar. Mix in 1 teaspoon grated orange rind. Add 1 egg, beating thoroughly. Sift soft wheat flour to 4 cups and resift with 1 teaspoon baking powder and add to mixture, mixing only enough to combine ingredients. Chill. Roll out ⅛-inch thick. Cut with scalloped and heart shaped cookie cutters. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in moderate oven, 400 degrees, for 10 to 12 minutes. Cool. Decorate with orange frosting, using pastry tube or small spoon. Makes 9 dozen 2-inch cookies.

Orange Frosting—Beat 2 cups confectioners' sugar, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 raw egg yolk and 2 tablespoons melted butter together until smooth and thick enough to spread.

Seven Floor Plans For Kitchen Show Way to Efficiency

For almost every woman the nerve center of her house is the kitchen, and every kitchen, to function normally, must have three main arteries—refrigerator, range and sink. From these three centers the housewife directs her attack three times a day.

Not so long ago these units were placed haphazardly into any empty corner, which resulted in inconvenience, loss of time, waste motion, unused space, frayed nerves and, perhaps, unpalatable meals. But in a modern kitchen, planned by an expert, this cannot happen.

THE U-SHAPED—Called the ideal arrangement because the work surface is continuous around three sides of the room, and because the major units can be fitted into the smallest space.

THE L-SHAPED—This leaves two walls free for door and window openings; allows space for the servants's table and chair.

THE TWO-WALL or parallel kitchen—probably the best plan for a long, narrow kitchen, for it gives over the two long walls to counters.

THE STRAIGHT-WALL kitchen. Everything is located along one wall. Suited to an apartment where there is a minimum of wall space.

THE BROKEN-U—One arm of the U-type is placed somewhere else around the room, especially applicable to a remodeling job.

THE BROKEN-L—Same as the above.

THE INDIVIDUAL-CENTER kitchen—The three major units, refrigerator, range and sink, each placed in different corners, but accompanied by counters and cabinets.

A Toast to the Bride

The bridal luncheon table that Rosemary Bell arranged was so lovely that its memory will remain with the honor guest through the years. Miss Bell used a cut work cloth, Minton service plates, Eton pattern, deep pink border on cream background, Minton cream soups, Marlborough pattern, with pink and white flower decorations. Lancaster cut goblets, pineapple design; crystal bowls holding pink roses and baby breath, a white bride figurine and a pair of pink and white figurines, all blended to make an exquisite luncheon setting

Add Dash of Originality to Tall Drinks

MRS. NESBITT

Mrs. Andrew Weaver Wins First Prize For Punch Recipe

By The Post Food Editor.

LONG, cooling drinks soon will be in demand. Almost any one can serve cold lemonade or iced coffee, but the hostess with imagination can delight her guests if she adds originality to her recipe. This plan was followed by The Post recipe contestants in suggesting iced beverages in this week's contest. Following are the winners and their recipes.

Punch for Large Gatherings
First Prize, $3
Mrs. Andrew G. Weaver,
3914 Fifth street northwest

Recipe: Prepare 2 cans of orange concentrate according to directions on can. Place in an 8 gallon crock. Quarter and slice very thin, 6 oranges, 2 lemons and 4 limes. Chop 1 quart maraschino cherries and add to mixture with juice of 10 lemons and 1 dozen limes (approximately). Add 2 No. 2½ cans crushed pineapple. Last, run 6 bananas through fine sieve (important). Add to mixture together with 6 packages of cherry-flavored powdered beverage mix. Then add enough cold water to bring the amount to about 6 gallons. Let stand for 4 to 5 hours to ripen. Just before ready to serve add one large piece of ice to cool mixture. Serve with crushed ice. Serves from 150 to 200 people. Cost under $3.

Fruit Punch
$2 Prize
Mrs. John W. Nesbitt,
3707 Woodley road northwest

Recipe: Boil for about 10 minutes 1 cup sugar with 1 cup water. Add 2 cups strong hot tea. Cool mixture and add ¾ cup crushed pineapple, 2 cups strawberry juice or other fruit juice, the juice of 6 lemons and 6 oranges. Chill for 1 hour. Add sufficient water to make 1 gallon of liquid. Immediately before serving add 1 cup maraschino cherries and 1 quart carbonated water. Makes about 4 quarts.

Unpeeled Garnish

Here is a tricky new fruit garnish that will put over hot or cold roasts, chops or broiled chickens: Cut unpeeled oranges ⅛ inch, crosswise slices. Marinate them an hour or longer in French dressing to cover. Drain, sprinkle with a little lemon juice and brown sugar and broil on both sides until brown—this will take about eight minutes. Baste twice with the drained off French dressing. Sprinkle lightly with finely chopped fresh mint leaves.

Sita Finkenstaedt Presented To Society at Garden Party

Debutante Wears Shadow-Brocaded Organdy to Join the Growing List In Largest Season of Capital's History

THE HECTIC SPRING DEBUTANTE season—largest in the history of social Washington—is fast reaching a climax. Borrowing the idea of garden curtsies from their Newport sisters, Washington buds have made this war-fraught spring an utterly frivolous one.

Yesterday's bud, slim, dark-haired Sita Finkenstaedt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, bowed to Capital society at a tea in the afternoon within the confines of the lovely, walled-in garden of the 1925 F Street Club. Spring flowers filled the spacious rooms of the club where tea and coffee were poured at tables that were lavishly supplied with all manner of sandwiches and cakes. But for the most part guests preferred the garden where the debutante and her parents received. Looking as though she had stepped from an old-fashioned print, Sita was in white shadow-brocaded organdy. The gown had a deep square neckline, long sleeves and bouffant skirt. A spray of exquisite gardenias—a gift from her aunt, Baroness Von Schoen, wife of the German Ambassador to Chile—completed the picture. Soignee, as always, was Mrs. Finkenstaedt whose aqua blue frock had a draped bodice and long sleeves. A cluster of white orchids and a white flower hat completed her ensemble.

A number of Princeton lads—classmates of the debutante's brother, Fred, who arrived this week from school—augmented the local male contingent. Also from out of town were several houseguests of Miss Finkenstaedt, who assisted at yesterday's party. They included Miss Ruth Robb, of Boston; Miss Betsy Thayer, of Philadelphia; Miss Margaret Morgan, of Baltimore; Miss Ann Finkenstaedt, cousin of the deb, here from Detroit, and Miss Carol Smith, of Philadelphia.

Debutante's Aunt Gives Dinner

The young men, who also put up at the Finkenstaedt home in Georgetown, included Theodore Horton, James Hilton, Raymond Herrmann and Alfred Coyle. After the party a group of youngsters were entertained at a dinner dance at the Chevy Chase Club by the debutante's aunt, Mrs. Harold Walker.

Among the local girls assisting Miss Finkenstaedt were Miss Cynthia Dunn, Miss Louise Stillwell, Miss Mildred Dunn, Miss Agnes Birney, Miss Marianna Evans, Miss Barbara Beale, Miss Zeva Fish, Miss Laura Blair, Miss Edith Huntington, Miss Eugenia Merrill, Miss Georgianna Flather, Miss Muriel Maddox, Miss Kitty Hill, Miss Peggy Lansdowne, Miss Patsy McKnew, Miss Lucy Marbury, Miss Peggy Tuckerman, Miss Ann Huidekoper and Miss Isabel Paul, of Philadelphia.

Guests wandered through the flower-filled rooms of the club to partake of tea and coffee and on out to the terrace where sherbet and ice cream were to be had.

Pouring tea were Miss Anne Squire, Mrs. Steven Hirsch, of New York; Mrs. Frederick Brooke, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert and Mrs. Demarest Lloyd. At the coffee urn were Mrs. English Gordon, Mrs. J. Lawrence Houghteling, Mme. Pelenyi, wife of the Hungarian Minister; Mrs. Millard Tydings, Mrs. Carroll Morgan, Mrs. Richard Wilmer, Mrs. Hoffman Philip and Mrs. Richard Oulahan.

Tending to the sherbet and ice cream were Mrs. James Ackerson, Mrs. Aldace Walker, Mrs. Harold Walker, Mrs. Sherman Miles, Mrs. Henry Leonard, Miss Mary Sheridan and Mrs. Lee Taylor, of Baltimore.

Debutante Is Cave-Dweller

The debutante, who has been attending the French School in New York, was graduated from there this month. Through her mother, her roots go deep into that section of Washington known as the cave-dwelling society. With her family she will leave August 1 for their place in Nonquit, Mass.

MISS SITA FINKENSTAEDT

Dr. De Bayle Fetes Nicaraguan Aide

The Minister of Nicaragua, Dr. Leon de Bayle, entertained at a men's dinner last night in honor of Gen. J. Rigoberto Reyes, Nicaraguan minister of war. Guests included various Ambassadors and Ministers of Latin-American countries and members of the State Department.

Gen. Reyes has been ill and came here to convalesce.

Beatrice Kerr Plights Troth

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kerr, of Glendiloch, Downington, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Kerr, to Ensign Robert Pollock Guiler 3d, U. S. N., now attached to the heavy cruiser San Francisco.

The prospective bride is a member of the Junior League, and made her debut in Philadelphia in 1937. She attended the Baldwin School in Bryn Mawr and Rollins College in Virginia.

Ensign Guiler is the son of Commander and Mrs. Guiler, of Washington and York Harbor. He studied at Philips Exeter Academy and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1939. He is the grandson of Mrs. Ben Pilson of this city.

The couple has tentatively chosen June, 1941, as the time of their wedding.

Maj. and Mrs. Smith Give Cocktail Party

Maj. and Mrs. Horace Smith entertained at a small cocktail party yesterday afternoon in their home on Massachusetts avenue. About 20 guests called between 5 and 7 p. m.

While Maj. and Mrs. Smith plan to spend most of the summer in Washington, they will go to New York the latter part of this month for a brief stay.

Miss Robertson Wed to Sprague

A quiet wedding, with only the members of the immediate families attending, took place at St. Matthew's Cathedral Sacristy yesterday morning when Miss Marie Ancona Robertson was married to Commander Albert Tilden Sprague, jr., U. S. N. The Right Rev. Msgr. Edward L. Buckey officiated and the bride was given away by her father. After the ceremony breakfast was served at the Mayflower Hotel for those attending, later the bride and groom leaving for a motor trip through the South.

Miss Robertson is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. James Robertson, of Washington. Dr. Robertson was formerly head astronomer of the United States Naval Observatory and director of the Nautical Almanac Office. The bride is a sister of Lieut. Comdr. Armand James Robertson, U. S. N. She is a member of the bar of the District and is an active sportswoman and aviation enthusiast. Having completed her solo flying, she hopes to obtain her pilot's license soon.

Commander Sprague is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tilden Sprague, of Revere, Mass., and is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, class of 1919. He received his master's degree in science at Harvard University in 1925. He comes of a long line of ancestors who have "followed the sea," his great-grandfather having had the honor in 1830 of being the first person to sail under the American flag on the Black Sea.

Upon their return, in two weeks, Commander and Mrs. Sprague will be at home at 101 Northbrook lane, Bethesda, Md.

About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

LATEST WASHINGTONIAN to decide to drive an ambulance on the European front is Morton Eustis. He has reservations on the transatlantic Clipper for June 18, and on reaching France will join the American Field Service. Started during the first World War, the Field Service had 2,500 American volunteers working on every front by the time hostilities ended. Its best known member so far in this war is Robert Montgomery, the movie actor.

Mr. Eustis is the son of Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, whose big yellow stone house with white pillars is a Georgetown landmark. Now visiting his mother at her summer home, Oatlands, near Leesburg, Mr. Eustis won't say whether adventure or idealism is behind his decision. For the past few years he has been making his home in New York, where he does magazine work.

TELEPHONES ARE RINGING madly these days at the quarters of the new National Defense Council. As yet there aren't enough people to answer them in the offices, which are in the Federal Reserve Building.

Settling down here for a summer of hard work are Edward Stettinius, the chairman, and William Knudsen. Mr. Stettinius went to the University of Virginia, married a Virginian, and has a place in the hunt country; near orange, so he is no stranger to these parts. At the University, incidentally, his roomate was Hugh Cumming, jr., of Washington, now head of the Scandinavian Division of the State Department.

Mrs. Stettinius and the children are remaining in New York while the head of the family makes up his mind whether or not to take a house here. Mrs. Knudsen is expected to continue to make her home in Detroit.

TWO EXCITED PEOPLE on the dock when the liner President Roosevelt docks in New York on Sunday will be Deborah and Marian Kirk. Among the "refugees" aboard is their mother, Mrs. Alan Kirk, and their small brother, Roger. The family will come to Washington to visit Mrs. Kirk's mother, Mrs. Frederick Chapin, before going to their summer home in Connecticut. Capt. Kirk is Naval Attache at our Embassy in London.

EVERY OTHER big house in Washington is full of young people here for the debutante festivities of the week-end. Mildred Dunn, daughter of the W. McKee Dunns, has with her two Foxcroft classmates, Evelyn Sloane, of New York, and Louise Russell, of Princeton, N. J.

Staying with Mrs. Peter Augustus Jay is another Foxcroft girl, Margaret White. Miss Dunn's roommate at Foxcroft, Mary Jane Wiman, of Chicago, is also visiting friends over the week-end.

Two other students at the Middleburg School were a bit on the worried side at the recent graduation exercises. They are Anne Bullitt, daughter of our Ambassador to France, and Clare Brokaw, whose beautiful mother, Clare Boothe Luce, is in Paris reporting war news for her husband's magazines.

HELEN DAVIS, daughter of Dwight Davis, is among the many planning to stay on here right through the hot months. She has a job translating letters for the Red Cross Inquiry Service, and expects to take only a brief vacation. Helen has moved from the Davis home on Decatur place to an apartment at Rock Creek Gardens in Georgetown.

Betty Nash Wed To J.A. Hoskins, U. S. Attorney

Shrine of Sacred Heart A Setting of Flowers For the Ceremony

Tall palms, flanked with ferns and large fanshaped vases of white gladioli, snapdragons and carnations, formed the setting for the marriage yesterday morning at 10:30 of Miss Betty Nash, daughter of Mrs. George Erwin Nash, 3113 Adams Mill road, to Joseph A. Hoskins, son of Mrs. C. Louise Hoskins, of Kansas City, Mo.

The wedding took place at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, the Rev. Francis E. Lucey, regent of Georgetown University Law School, officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Frank C. Nash, wore an old-fashioned frock of white, with a full skirt and circular train of net. The basque of chantilly lace had a tiny doubled bertha, and her veil of illusion net, which extended the length of her train, fell from a wreath of lilies of the valley. She carried a shower bouquet of these flowers.

Bridegroom's Sister Among Attendants

Mrs. Helen H. Alig, of Kansas City, the bridegroom's sister, and Mrs. Arden C. Howland and Miss Dorothy Hill Dunne, both of Rochester, N. Y., were her attendants. They were dressed alike in net frocks in shades of yellow and powder blue, made with tight waists, full skirts and short puffed sleeves. Their large picture hats matched the colors of their frocks and Mrs. Alig carried Johanna Hill roses. The bouquets of the other two were Talisman roses with sprays of blue delphinium.

William A. Hoskins, of Kansas City, was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Clarence G. Pechacek, Joseph S. Hoover, John H. Dorsey, J. Loren Freund, John W. Kopecky and James P. Leach, jr., all of Washington.

Breakfast Party Follows Ceremony

A breakfast for members of the two families and the bridal party at the Congressional Country Club followed the ceremony. Mrs. Nash wore hyacinth blue chiffon with matching accessories and a corsage of white orchids, and Mrs. Hoskins chose dark blue sheer crepe with lighter blue accessories and a corsage of purple orchids.

The bride is a graduate of Nazareth Academy and Nazareth College, Rochester, N. Y., and is a member of Kappa Gamma Pi and Tau Zeta sororities. Mr. Hopkins is an almnus of Rockhurst College and Georgetown University Law School. He is a member of the University Club and Pi Gamma Mu and Gamma Eta Gamma fraternities. He is now regional attorney in charge of the Kansas City office of the National Labor Relations Board.

Ecuadorian Envoy Is Entertaining For His Nephew

The Ecuadorian Ambassador, Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, has his nephew, Adolfe Arias, who has just signed a contract to appear in pictures, as his guest at the Mayflower. Mr. Arias made his home with the Ambassador during the four years he attended Georgetown Preparatory School before going to Stanford University two years ago. It was while the young Panamanian was directing and appearing in the "Stanford Gayeties" two months ago that a scout from one of the large producing companies arranged an audition.

Mrs. Adolfo Arias and Miss Marcella Arias, mother and sister of Mr. Arias, are now at the Mayflower, the former having arrived in Washington for her daughter's graduation from National Park Seminary. Dr. Arias, a well known Central American surgeon, and his wife have made frequent visits here while their son and daughter were in school.

Helen Brylawski Is Widely Feted

A number of parties have been planned in honor of Miss Helen Brylawski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Brylawski, and Sidney Lansburgh, jr., whose wedding will take place on Wednesday, June 12, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. Mark Lansburgh will entertain at a luncheon tomorrow for members of the bridal party. That evening Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lyon will be hosts at a dinner in honor of the bride-elect and the prospective bridegroom. On Sunday evening they will be guests at a buffet supper to be given by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Wolf, and the following evening they will be honored at a dinner dance at the Belvedere Hotel in Baltimore. Hosts for this party will be Mr. and Mrs. Lee Greis, Kauffman Ray Katz and Jacob Epstein Katz.

Miss Brylawski will receive her degree from Goucher College on Tuesday and that evening she and her fiance and members of their wedding party will be entertained at a dinner dance given by Mrs. Alexander Wolf at the Shoreham Hotel.

The wedding will take place at 7:30 p. m., and will be followed by a reception and dinner for 400 guests.

Mrs. Arthur Lyon will serve as matron of honor for Miss Brylawski. Other attendants will include Miss Therese Weil, of New Orleans; Miss Rosalie Lurvey, of Indianapolis; Miss Sylvia Glickman, of New York, and Miss Elizabeth Hahn and Miss Selma Friedman, of Washington. Robert Lansburgh, Frank Kauffman, Arthur Lyon and Edward Fulton Brylawski, brother of the bride-elect.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

THE AUSTRALIAN MINISTER entertained informally at a men's luncheon the other day, a farewell fete for John Minter, who has been appointed First Secretary to the United States Legation in Canberra. He expects to leave Washington on June 18 and will sail for Australia, via the Pacific, of course, in two weeks' time.

Other guests were Rear Admiral John Towers, J. Fred Essary, Keith Officer, Thomas Wilson and Noel Coward. The latter was in Washington on a brief visit and had spent the night at the White House. After a conference at the British Embassy he took the midnight plane to New York. Mr. Coward will take the Clipper on Saturday, ending a six weeks stay in this country.

• • • •

MR. COWARD'S present trip to America has been in the nature of a vacation from his post in Paris, where he is on duty at the Ministry of Information working on propaganda. When the Flanders attack began, he asked to be allowed to cut short his trip and return to work but was ordered by the Ministry to finish his leave on the ground that there is little use trying to convince the Germans that they are losing the war at the moment.

• • • •

NOEL COWARD had last seen the Australian Minister in France a few months ago at Arras. The Minister stopped there on his way to America, and Mr. Coward was putting on shows for the soldiers with Maurice Chevalier as star. He said that rank is a wonderful thing. He and his troupe had to sleep in the garret of the Hotel de L'Univers—since blasted to bits—because Mr. Casey and his party had cabbaged off all the best rooms in the hotel, due to the Minister's exalted rank.

• • • •

AT LUNCHEON Mr. Coward told a story about Bea Lillie in an air raid shelter. Among the people taking refuge there was a very objectionable small boy who scampered about, pushed and shoved and made as much din as possible. Finally Miss Lillie's nerves gave way and she said crossly to the little pest, "For heaven's sake be quiet, or I can't hear the bombs."

Mr. Coward and Mr. Wilson found that they had mutual friends in India, which is Mr. Wilson's destination after his leave in America is over. He has spent the past three years in Australia as Consul General at Sydney and is now assigned to Calcutta.

Speaking of Australia reminded Admiral Towers of his visit to Melbourne as an Ensign during the world cruise of the United States fleet in 1907. This led the Minister to recall that on that occasion his father had chartered a boat and taken a party of friends and young Casey out to watch the American fleet steam in.

• • • •

HER MANY FRIENDS will be happy to hear that Mrs. Julian Allen, the former Alice Harding, of Washington, is sailing on the Washington for America. She will be accompanied by two of her children. Her eldest child, Stephanie Pell, has just been graduated from the Madeira School.

Roberto de Mendoza, popular First Secretary of the Cuban Embassy, will return to Washington the first of next week. He has been in Cuba on leave for the past two months.

• • • •

THE FINALE of the Wednesday supper dances was a pleasant occasion with the guests hoping for more dances like them next year. Many people spent the warm evening sitting out in the garden. Among them was Stellita Stapleton, whose inactivity was due to an accident to her knee while playing tennis. Besides her regular Red Cross work Stellita is broadcasting appeals for the Red Cross over the radio.

A new arrival at the party was Count Fumisoni-Biondi's attractive sister, Mary. She is no stranger to Washington, having visited her brother here about a year ago.

Another newcomer was the Hon. Julian Chetwynd, who accompanied his host, Clarence Hewes, to the Chase Donaldson's cocktail party and later to the dance.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann entertained informally at luncheon yesterday for some friends who are here from Switzerland.

Mrs. William A. White, of Washington, is at the Waldorf Astoria in New York with her daughter, Mrs. Ruth T. Howard, and her granddaughter, Miss Patricia Maitland. The latter will sail tomorrow for the Philippines with her father, Maj. Lester J. Maitland, who will command an aviation field there. He was one of the first Army officers to fly the Pacific.

Homer S. Cummings, former Attorney General, is at the Waldorf Tower, in New York, until tomorrow.

Mrs. Merle Thorpe entertained at an informal garden luncheon yesterday at her home on the Rockville pike. Covers were laid for 24.

Mrs. Z. B. Phillips, wife of the Rev. Phillips, rector of Epiphany Church, is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace McClenahan. She is also making the acquaintance of her first granddaughter, who was born on June 4. Mrs. McClenahan, the former Miss Sallie Hews Phillips, has one other child, Robert Wallace McClenahan, jr.

Mrs. J. T. H. Mitchell and her daughter, Miss Ann Mitchell, of New York and Greenwich, Conn., have returned to Washington and are at the Mayflower. They were planning to visit India, but, owing to conditions abroad, they have changed their plans and expect to be here for some time.

Miss Ruth O. Blakeslee, of Washington, who is at the Lakeside and Forest Inn, Eagles Mere, Pa., has been joined by her mother, Mrs. Robert Blakeslee, of DuBois, Pa.

Bernice Kaufman Becomes Bride Of M. G. Levy, Jr.

The marriage of Miss Bernice Jean Kaufman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kaufman, to Morton Greenbaum Levy, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Levy, of Philadelphia, took place last evening at 6 o'clock in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower. The Rev. Norman Gerstenfeld officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a dinner.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long-sleeved gown of white chiffon taffeta made with a lace yoke and a full train. Her tulle veil was caught with clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her only attendant was Miss Judith Elaine Kronheim, who wore flesh organdie with a matching net turban and carried deep pink roses. Albert Levy, of Columbus, Ohio, was best man for his brother.

The couple left later for a motor trip through New York State. After June 25 they will be at home at 6306 North Eleventh street, Philadelphia.

In addition to the parents of the bridegroom, other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, Mrs. Albert Levy, and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Kohn, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Whitestone, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Levy, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Meyer, of Columbus, Ohio.

Pierpoint-Cross Betrothal Announced

Earl Linden Pierpoint, of this city, announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Nancy Virginia Pierpoint, to Sydney Estey Cross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Charles Cross, of Virginia Highlands, Va.

The wedding will take place June 29 at 3 o'clock in St. John's Episcopal Church.

Meuser Sisters Entertained By Pettengills

Peggy Wagner Assists Hosts for Party In Chevy Chase Club

The Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser, debutante cousins of Arthur Bradley Campbell, were the guests in whose honor the Commandant of the Navy Yard and Mrs. George Pettengill entertained at dinner last night. Assisting the hosts was Mrs. Pettengill's niece, Miss Peggy Wagner, of New York and Southampton, who has spent several months in Washington.

The Chevy Chase Club was the scene of the event, which was attended by a company of 28. Among those present was Mrs. James A. Wilder, of Honolulu. Mrs. Pettengill's house guest. Others there were the Misses Cecelia and Marie vom Rath, Miss Sylvia Szechenyi, Miss Ellen Hewes Flowerree, Miss Stellita Stapleton, Lady Maureen Noel, Miss Miriam Scott and Miss Diana Rowland.

Young men in the company were James Mitchell, jr., George Renchard, Harold Fangboner, James Parks, Judson Bowles, William McEvoy, Thomas Claggett, William Mitchell, Pendleton Hogan, John Segar, Thomas Waterman, Merritt and Douglas Auffm-Ordt, nephew of Senora de Cardenas.

Mrs. Letts Honors Grace McGuire, Soon to Be Wed

Mrs. F. Dickinson Letts entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of Miss Grace Ava McGuire, whose marriage to Robert Arthur Weppner, jr., of Cleveland and Washington, will take place tomorrow afternoon.

The party took place at the home of Justice and Mrs. Letts at 3500 Garfield street. Covers were laid for ten, and the company included Mrs. O. R. McGuire, mother of the bride, and Mrs. R. A. Weppner, mother of the bridegroom.

Others there were Miss Hilda Weppner, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Margaret Kerr, Miss Mary Davenport, of Richmond; Mrs. O. R. McGuire, jr., sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Hilda Weppner, sister of the bridegroom, all of whom will be attendants in the wedding. Still others in the company were Miss Bambie McKenna and Mrs. Ralph Quinter, jr.

Aliens Crowded Many Americans Off Refugee Ships

By International News Service

To bring home Americans crowded off other refugee ships, the steamship Washington has been ordered to abandon its trip to Genoa, Italy, and pick up passengers assembled at Galway, Ireland.

Announcing the sudden switch yesterday, the State Department explained that it was considered more imperative to take evacuees from Great Britain for whom no accommodations could be arranged on the President Roosevelt, now due back in New York Sunday.

New York, June 6 (AP).—Almost half the 1,914 passengers aboard the incoming liner Manhattan are aliens, shipping officials said tonight, one official placing the number at 862 and saying most of them were Jewish refugees.

The United States Lines said it was unable to bar the aliens from boarding the ship in Genoa and Naples because they had bought their tickets before a State Department order ruled that Americans must be given first choice.

A line agent at Genoa said on June 2, the day the Manhattan left there, that 1,000 Americans remained in that port and others were at Naples. The Manhattan is due in New York Monday.

D. C. Red Cross Drive Tops Halfway Mark

$17,258 Collected In Day Brings Total to $154,790.

With Government departments continuing to donate generously, the District Red Cross Chapter's war relief fund passed the halfway mark yesterday as $17,258.77 was realized for the day to bring the total receipts for the local drive to $154,790.47.

Beginning today, officials announced, contributors will receive shiny new tags, miniatures of the campaign poster. Those who have donated will not be forgotten. The local chapter will issue a tag to any person presenting a receipt for a previous subscription.

Use of the tags, according to Rear Admiral Charles Conard, executive vice chairman of the drive, is expected to stimulate contributions to the $300,000 campaign.

To give exchange experts at the District Chapter House something to think about, Mrs. Marjorie Post Davies, wife of the former Ambassador to Belgium, made her contribution in English pounds. The experts computed Mrs. Davis' 320 pounds to amount to $1,008 in United States currency.

Also recorded yesterday was a check for $275 representing the proceeds from the sale of heirlooms by a prominent Washingtonian. Officials said the donor was a veteran of the World War and had been a Naval Reserve officer, stationed in London.

Waiters at the Shoreham Hotel passed the hat around yesterday and each contributed $2 to the fund.

Meanwhile, the national war relief fund of the American Red Cross totaled $7,576,373, as it neared its goal of $20,000,000. Entire proceeds of the racing at Belmont Park yesterday were earmarked for the fund.

Arlington to Select 5 School Directors

Earle G. Beale, secretary of the Arlington County school trustee electoral board yesterday announced a public meeting for the appointment of five members to the county school board will be held at the courthouse Monday at 8 p. m., June 24.

As a result of legislation passed by the last General Assembly the county will have five members instead of three on the school board, effective July 1.

3 Girls 'Gang Up' to Boost Their Dads; How's Yours?

Nominations for the Capital's No. 1 'Typical Father' Are Pouring Into The Post; Contest Closes Next Wednesday Midnight

Three little girls in Wheatley School ganged up on the Father's Day editor yesterday. In a single envelope they submitted rosy descriptions of their respective dads, each hopeful of being the victorious bell-ringer when the identity of Washington's ideal pater familiae is announced in The Post June 16—Father's Day.

"I don't know what I would do without my father," wrote Shirley Thomas, 11, of 1113 Oates street northeast. He gives me "almost everything I want, if he can afford it" and "when someone in the family is sick he does everything he can to make them well."

"But right now I am trying to get him to let me take violin lessons," Shirley concluded.

Jean Goodrich, 10, of 1117 Trinidad avenue northeast, entered her dad in the contest because "he takes us out to dinner about once a week or more and to a movie," and "each summer he gets off for a week or two and takes us away for a vacation." In addition, "he helps me with arithmetic, spelling and my other studies."

But their schoolmate, Jo Anna Waldrop, 10, of 1318 Orren street northeast, is equally certain her dad deserves top honors.

One day, when mother was ill, he washed and ironed, Jo Anna wrote proudly. "He also washes my hair and combs it and makes the money."

Mrs. Maude O. Clark and George O. Clark, mother and son, got together to file claims in behalf of their husband and father, Paul, because he always returns home from work in a cheerful mood, no matter how hard a day it's been at the office; is a good cook and plays no favorites among his three sons and one daughter. The Clarks live at 1818 North Taylor street, Arlington, Va.

And there are scores more nominations, all of which will receive the judges' careful attention when they get together next week to select the Capital's No. 1 dad. There's still nearly a week left to mail your entry to the Father's Day Editor, The Post. Letters should be postmarked no later than next Wednesday midnight.

Expert Terms U. S. Mineral Situation More Encouraging

After nine months of studying the strategic mineral position of the United States, Government officials declared yesterday that the situation was "more encouraging than anticipated."

Dr. R. R. Sayers, acting director of the Bureau of Mines, said that a study by his agency and the Geological Survey showed a "somewhat promising" situation regarding manganese, chromite, tungsten, mercury and antimony.

Still a problem, however, is tin, which must come chiefly from the Dutch East Indies and Bolivia, the report to Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes said.

Sayers said his agents had examined 162 deposits of which 33 warranted exploratory work. Exploration was going on in one antimony deposit in Idaho, three chromite deposits in Montana, Wyoming and Oregon; one of manganese in Washington, one nickel in Nevada, two tin in South Dakota and New Mexico and one tungsten in Nevada. Forty-seven promising manganese deposits had been found.

The outlook for tungsten is becoming "very good," Sayers said.

Green Believes I. T. U. Will Rejoin Federation

New York, June 6 (AP).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, literally danced for joy with David Dubinsky today over the return of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union to the A. F. of L. and asserted he was "standing with arms outstretched" to welcome other C. I. O. unions into his fold.

His next dancing partner, he intimated at the I. L. G. W. U. convention, might be Claude Baker, chieftain of the International Typographical Union, which was suspended for refusing to pay a per capita tax to fight the C. I. O. Inasmuch as Green assured the garment workers that elimination of the tax would be recommended to the A. F. of L. convention, it was reasonable to conclude, he said, that the 86,000-member Typographical Union would return to good standing.

Indian Triple in 11th Defeats Nats, 5 to 4

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

At the instigation of H. Joseph Higgins, Box 563, Kingsport, Tenn., we are holding class this morning on the baseball scoring rules. At least we are going to answer out loud the questions he asks about earned runs and runs batted in.

POVICH

"Am I correct in thinking," writes Mr. Higgins, "that a run which scores on a passed ball is not an earned run or a run batted in?"

Comment—The answer is yes. It is not an earned run or a run batted in. A passed ball, while not charged as an error for the catcher, absolves the pitcher of blame if a run scores.

"Can a batter who reaches first base on an error ever score an earned run on that particular time at bat?"

Comment—No. The run would never have been on base, save for the error.

"Suppose that the first man up in an inning singled, but the ball got away from the outfielder and the runner reached third—the result of a single and the fielder's error. An infield out followed on which the runner scored from third. This was a run batted in, wasn't it?"

Comment—Yes. The batter cannot be deprived of credit for a run batted in even though an error placed the run in scoring position.

"If, in the inning cited above, the next two men at bat were retired in order, would the run that scored be an earned run?"

Comment—No. The run that scored would not have crossed the plate save for the error in the inning.

"If subsequent plays in the same inning have a bearing on whether a run is listed as earned or unearned, how would the run be scored if the succeeding batter tripled?"

Comment—It would be an earned run and a run batted in, on the theory that the runner would have scored from first on a triple.

"Please tell me which runs were earned runs and how many runs were batted in in the following inning: None out—Merchant singled, stole second, went to third on Heinrich's hit, and scored on Livingston's single; Heinrich took third on Livingston's single. Heinrich and Livingston worked a double steal, Heinrich scoring; Livingston made third after Purses flied to center for the first out; Livingston scored as Donaldson was safe at first on the first baseman's error, no play being made for Livingston at home; Donaldson scored on Horning's triple; Horning scored on Pardo's double. The second and third outs followed Pardo's double. Five runs scored. Which were earned runs and which were runs batted in?

Comment—Four of the runs were earned. The only unearned run was the run scored by Donaldson, who reached first base on an error. All five of the runs must be scored as runs batted in. A batsman may receive credit for batting in a run despite the fact that an error is made on the ball he hit. The type of error must be considered. In the case of Livingston scoring on an error by the first baseman, apparently no play was made for him at the plate, and with less than two out he would have scored even if the ball had been handled perfectly.

"With the bases loaded and one out, the infield played close in to cut off a possible run at the plate. The batter hit the ball to the second baseman, who made an error, the batter reaching first, the runner from third scoring and the others advancing. Was this run earned or unearned, and was it a run batted in, as perfect play on the batter would have retired the runner coming home from third?"

Comment—It was neither an earned run nor a run batted in. There would have been no run save for the error.

"If an outfielder misjudges an easy fly ball and not even touching the ball, should it be scored as an error or a hit?"

Comment—There is nothing in the book that absolves an outfielder from being charged with an error if he misjudges an easy fly ball. Even if he does not touch the ball he can be charged with an error.

"If a ball which is not an extremely hard chance rolls through an infielder who does not touch the ball, is such a ball charged as an error against the infielder or as a hit for the batter?"

Comment—The infielder in this case is just as blameable as the outfielder who misjudges an easy fly ball and doesn't touch it with his glove. It's an error.

"Would a pitcher after pitching only one and one-third innings, who was put out of the game by an umpire when said pitcher's team was leading, 4 to 0, be the winning pitcher if his team continued to remain in the lead throughout the game?"

Comment—No. The rule is that a pitcher must work at least five innings to receive credit for a victory. But it is not a hard and fast rule. If a pitcher has such a commanding lead that he is removed from the box simply to rest him for a future game, or if he is accidentally hurt and leaves the game with a commanding lead before the end of five innings, he may be credited with the victory.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Cleveland, June 7.—Here's a lot of stuff you won't remember about the U. S. Open:

There's an old legend that it's worth $50,000 to win the Open . . . . That's a lot of bunk . . . First prize is $1,000 and bonuses and indorsements rarely amount to $3,000 more, these days . . . during the golden days, when stucco clubhouses were growing like mushrooms in every stray United States pasture, there was big enough dough in exhibitions; but that's all washed up . . . Still, any golfer would rather be "right" in the Open champion than President . . . Heaviest club in the tournament will be used by John Montague, whose woods weigh 17 ounces . . . fanciest clothes by Jimmy Demaret . . . Craig Wood is the only player whose mascot follows him, the mascot being Mrs. Wood's inseparable lap dog.

CONSIDINE

The winner of the first officially recognized Open—Horace Rawlins in 1895—was also the youngest ever to win it . . . He was 19 . . . Francis Ouimet was 20 when he licked Harry Vardon and Ted Ray at Brookline in 1913. To do for golf what Ty Cobb did for baseball and Maury McLaughlin did for tennis . . . Gene Sarazen was also 20 when he won at Skokie in 1922 . . . Oldest winner was Ray, who was 43 when he won at Inverness in 1920.

Last year's tie, which necessitated a play-off among Byron Nelson, Craig Wood and Denny Shute, was the first such mix-up since 1931 . . . There have been 14 ties in 46 years of Open tournaments . . . Record play-off was that between Billy Burke and George von Elm at Inverness in 1931 . . . Both shot 292 for the 72 holes of the tournament, then played 36 holes and both were tied at 149 . . . They had to play 36 more and Burke's 148 won by one shot.

First guy to break 70 in the Open was Tom McNamara, who shot a 69 in 1912 at Buffalo and made front page news . . . The record stands at 66 and surprising enough it is often equalled but never bettered . . . Sarazen set it during his terrific finish that won for him the 1932 title, at Fresh Meadow . . . It was equalled the next year by Johnny Goodman (the winnah) and by old Walter Hagen and equalled again by Tom Creavy at Merion in 1934 . . . Last year Clayton Heafner had a 66 over that back-breaking Spring Hill course, near Philadelphia, and two years before that Jimmy Thomson threw two sixes at Oakland Hills.

Ray Ainsley, of St. Louis, took 19 strokes on one hole at Denver in 1938 . . . best 36-hole mark in the open is 139, held by Chick Evans (at Minnikahda in 1916) and by Snead at Spring Mill last year. Harry Cooper, Ed Dudley, Dick Metz and Johnny Bulla share the open record for the first 54 holes—211. And the record for the whole 72 pockets is 281 (71-69-72-69—281) set by Ralph Guldahl at Oakland Hills (Detroit) in 1937. . . .

Incidentally, Guldahl has been practicing for a month on the Canterbury course, outside of Cleveland, where the current Open is being waged.

Only five amateurs have won the Open—Ouimet, Jerry Travers, Evans, Bobby Jones and Goodman—but Jones raised so much Cain that for a time he gave the pros an awful inferiority complex . . . He won it in 1923, 1926, 1929 and 1930, and twice tied for first place, only to lose in play-offs.

Equipment means a lot in the perpetual lowering of golf scores . . . 300 was broken for the first time in 1906, the year the manufacturers introduced the rubber-cored ball. . . . Chick Evans held the record of 286 for the Open route for 20 years, until Tony Manero (with Gene Sarazen giving him a perpetual pep talk through the last 18) broke it at Baltusrol in 1936.

Punchless Batters Ruin Sid Hudson

Rookie Turns in Excellent Effort But Sluggers Fail in Pinches

By Shirley Povich.

In a ball game replete with empty gestures by the Nats, the Cleveland Indians scored one eleventh-inning run and a 5-4 triumph yesterday at Griffith Stadium. Sidney Hudson pitched a clever ball game in vain for the Nats.

A three-bagger by Frankie Pytlak spelled Hudson's doom in the second extra inning. The little Cleveland catcher opened the inning with a long drive against the centerfield wall and ultimately scored the game-winning run on a single by Lou Boudreau which skipped through the box into centerfield.

Back in the eighth inning, Ray Mack reprieved the Indians from seeming defeat. With two out and Beau Bell on base at a time when the Nats were holding a 4-2 lead, Mack swatted one of Hudson's pitches into the leftfield bleachers for a home run that tied the score.

Hudson gave up 13 hits to the Indians, but he struck out 10 along the route. The Nats let him down badly in the last four innings when they were in a position to score the game-winning runs.

Manager Oscar Vitt threw Johnny Allen, Mel Harder and Milnar into the duel against Hudson, and it was Harder who turned up as the winning pitcher with a hitless job during the ninth and tenth. Milnar held the Indians' one-run lead safe in the eleventh.

Door Is Slammed

Gerald Walker's over-ambitious attempt to steal home in the first inning with Pitcher Allen holding the ball was merely the first of the Nats' wastrel proceedings. One of the reasons they didn't score in the eighth inning after Welaj had opened with a single, was because Welaj went out stealing. And another reason was because Walker, who followed with a walk, got himself caught flat-footed off first base by Harder, who had succeeded Allen.

In the ninth, with the winning run on second with one out after Early walked and was sacrificed along by Bloodworth, Pofahl was purposely passed, and the Nats achieved nothing when Hudson grounded into a double play started by Keltner.

In the tenth, the Nats slammed the door in opportunity's face very emphatically. With one out, Lewis walked, and there were men on first and second when Keltner fumbled Welaj's smash. But in this emergency, Walker obligingly struck out. Zeke Bonura popped up.

Even in the eleventh there were indications that the Nats would score at least the tying run when Early greeted Milnar with a single to right, but Bloodworth, after two futile attempts to sacrifice, popped up. And Pofahl made it conclusive by grounding to Boudreau for a double play.

Heath Fanned Four Times

One of the two walks Hudson issued was converted into a 1-to-0 lead for the Indians in the first inning. Boudreau drew the pass, moved to third on Chapman's single. He was cut down at the plate when Keltner grounded into the box, but Chapman moved to third on the run down and scored on Trosky's fly to Walker.

The Nats countered with two runs to take the lead. Lewis and Welaj singled to left, and Walker fetched a run home with a single to center.

Foxx's Homer In 9th Beats Browns, 3-1

Old Lefty Grove Wins His Season's 3d Triumph for Bosox

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 6.—Capt. Jimmy Foxx's fourteenth homer of the season, made with two out, two mates on and two strikes against him in the ninth inning, enabled the veteran Lefty Bob Grove to gain his third 1940 victory for the Red Sox today, a 3-1 decision over the St. Louis Browns.

It was the first time the venerable southpaw had gone the full distance since he opened the Red Sox's season with a two-hit performance against the Washington Senators.

While hurling the American League leaders to their first victory in three starts against the last-place Browns, Grove gave six hits, two passes and had six strikeouts. One of the St. Louis hits, however, was a seventh-inning homer by Chet Laabs, with the result that Grove was behind when he made way for the pinch-hitting Jim Bagby, jr., when the Red Sox went to bat in the ninth.

After Bagby was retired, Dom DiMaggio, who replaced ailing Lou Finney, the league's leading slugger, in right field, opened the Boston attack against Emil Bildilli, the Brown's rookie southpaw, by lashing out a two-bagger. DiMaggio made third when Doc Cramer flied out. After Ted Williams was passed, Foxx poled a drive into the left field screen to boost his runs driven in total to 48.

Bildilli gave the Red Sox eight other hits but kept them well scattered in all but the second inning, when Gene Desautels hit into a double play with the bases loaded.

The Sockers had to play with a patched up infield. Tom Carey, who led their attack with three singles, held down second base for Bobby Doerr, out with a pulled muscle, and Marv Owen was at third for Jim Tabor, benched by a spike wound on his throwing hand.

Baer KO's Campolo In 1st; Comiskey Wins

By the United Press

New York, June 6.—Buddy Baer and Pat Comiskey, young heavyweight "white hope," won important ring tests at Madison Square Garden tonight. Baer knocked out Valentin Campolo, of Argentina, in the first round, and Comiskey won an eight-round decision over veteran Steve Dudas, of New Jersey.

Campolo was counted out by Referee Eddie Josephs at 1:53 of the first round, after Baer—young California giant and brother of Madcap Maxie—had floored him three times. It was the first time the big Argentine ever had taken the count in more than 10 years of scrapping.

With the opening gong, Buddy rushed across the ring and caught Campolo with a left hook to the chin, driving him backward toward a neutral corner. There Buddy smashed Campolo on the chin with a long, straight right and Campolo landed on his back for the count of nine.

Rising, Campolo was half-knocked, half-pushed to the canvas after missing a swing in midring. He was up immediately and Buddy swarmed after him, battering him about the ring. Campolo fought back gamely, but was knocked flat and half under the ropes in a neutral corner with a hard right to the jar. He tried to rise, but fell back and was counted out.

Comiskey Impressive

Buddy, who packed 246 pounds on a 6 foot 6½ inch frame, outweighed the Argentine 21 pounds. Campolo was only 3 inches shorter than Buddy, as the latter registered his eighth knockout in nine straight victories. They were scheduled for 12 rounds.

Previously 18-year-old Pat Comiskey, of Paterson, N. J., turned the tables on veteran Dudas, who had outpointed him in December. Pat, promising blond Irishman, won the eight-round decision after having cagey Steve on the floor for the count of nine in the first round. Although Pat failed to score a kayo

Chisox Rally In 9th Defeats Yankees, 4-3

Three Singles, Walk In Final Inning Account for Victory

By the Associated Press

New York, June 6.—The Chicago White Sox came from behind twice today to take the deciding game of their series with the world champion Yankees, 4 to 3.

Their two-run winning rally in the ninth victimized Spud Chandler, who had allowed only three hits in the first eight frames. Ken Silvestri led off with a pinch single in the final inning and Joe Kuhel walked. Chandler was replaced by Johnny Murphy, who gave up singles to Mike Kreevich and Taft Wright.

Chicago had come from behind in the sixth with two runs on one hit, a single followed by a hit batsman, a sacrifice and an error.

The Yanks tallied in the second on two singles and a fly and took the lead again in the eighth with two outs on a force-out and a single after they had loaded the bases.

White Sox Invade Stadium Today; Ladies Are Guests

Fresh from their 4-to-3 triumph over the Yankees, the Chicago White Sox move into Griffith Stadium today for the start of a three-game series with the Nats. It will be Ladies Day.

They will be greeted on the pitching mound by Bucky Harris' No. 1 performer, Dutch Leonard. The Nats' knuckle-baller will be seeking his seventh victory of the season.

Manager Jimmy Dykes will send Jack Knott to the mound for the White Sox.

67 Sets Pace By 2 Strokes At Cleveland

Smith, Oliver, Parks Tied at 69; Larkin Leads Washington's 3-Man Contingent

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A Staff Correspondent

Cleveland, Ohio, June 6.—The greatest opening round in 44 years of National Open history was fired here today at Canterbury by—you guessed it—the idol of the fairways, Samuel Jackson Snead.

The native 27-year-old West Virginian, now representing Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, Pa., posted his great round on the board before half the field had started, a sensational morning effort that included 13 pars and five birdies. Apparently forgotten is his tragic eight on the seventy-second hole last year at Philadelphia, and once more its Snead against the field.

The winds from Lake Erie, that can change this course from a virtual scorer's paradise to one of the toughest in the land, were still today. Not a breath of air stirred and the big boys hammered at par with 12 breaking perfect figures and a half-dozen more equaling the 72 total.

Dangerous Trio Tied

Snead's 67 paced the field by two strokes with a dangerous trio locked in second place with 69's. First in was the immaculate Horton Smith, the putting expert from Chicopee Falls, Mass., who had 11 one-putt greens and used only 26 putts for the round. Next came Ed "Porky" Oliver, the Hornell, N. Y., mentor, who was runner-up in the District pro-amateur championship last year. The 225-pound husky dropped 15 perfect pars and three birdies, all via short putts for his 69. Completing the 69 bracket was the 1935 "cheese champ" from Pittsburgh, Sam Parks, who was out in 34 and back in 35. Always a better golfer than he was given credit for, Parks looks good in that second place spot tonight.

The tournament favorite before Snead's 67, Benny Hogan, of White Plains, N. Y., played three holes on the back nine in four under par, an eagle and two birdies in succession for a 37-33, 70. The other 70's were Vic Ghezzi, New Jersey pro who finished with a two-over par six on the eighteenth and was still two under for the round, and Al Huske, a comparative unknown from De Kalb, Ill., who placed 35s.

Gene Sarazen was consistent with a 46-36, 71, and who was deadlocked with four others, Andy Gibson, Baltimore, Md.; Leland Gibson, University of Kansas City professional; Henry Kaiser, Racine, Wis., and Amateur Robert Babish, of Rochester, Mich.

Wood, Nelson Get 72's

A hot and cold round by Metropolitan Open Champion Craig Wood, five bogeys, five birdies and eight pars for a 72, was tied by defending champion Byron Nelson, who holed a 12-footer for an eagle three on the sixth hole; Lawson Little, who hit 16 of the 18 greens in regulation figures; former baseball player Sammy Byrd, Matt Kowal, Philmont, of Pa., and Leonard Dodson.

Ralph Guldahl, who has his heart set on regaining the title, was disappointed with a 73, gained only by a great finish on the last two holes.

Every open championship has its first round disappointments and today was no exception. On the opposite end of the list from what you would expect was the former Open and Amateur champion, Johnny Goodman, who was bad all the way with an 82. John Montague finished with an eight, including two out of bounds, for an 80.

Walter Hagen showed up just as his partners, Jimmy Thomson and

Mrs. Lily Harper Martin Advances in Virginia State Golf

Champion Will Meet Mrs. Dashiel

Beats Mrs. Hockaday In Annual Event; Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Wise Also Advance

By the Associated Press

Old Point Comfort, Va., June 6.—Mrs. Lily Harper Martin, of Portsmouth, will carry the defense of her Virginia women's golf championship into the semifinals of the nineteenth annual State tournament against Mrs. Grayson Dashiel, Richmonder, who staged the meet's biggest surprise today in nosing out Mrs. George Owens, last year's finalist, from Petersburg.

The other 18-hole semifinals match tomorrow over the water-dotted Chamberlin County Club course will bring together again two Tidewater rivals, Mrs. H. N. Allen, of Newport News, and Mrs. Helen P. Wise, of Langley Field. They have met three times in various tournaments within the past year, Mrs. Wise winning twice, and the prospect of the fourth meeting has aroused keen interest locally.

Mrs. Martin advanced today as expected with a convincing 8 and 7 decision over Mrs. R. C. Hockaday, of Newport News, firing a 38, 1 over par, going out. Mrs. Hockaday won but one hole and halved another, both on par-3 greens which the Portsmouth star failed to hit from the tee.

The Owens-Dashiel match was a nip-and-tuck thriller and ended a long string of victories scored by the tall Petersburg player over Mrs. Dashiel in past State and local tourneys.

Both were off to a shaky start, halving the first three holes with bogeys. Mrs. Dashiel shot the first par, a 4 on the 335-yard fourth to go 1 up. She captured the fifth with a big 6, 2 over regulation figures, and went 3 up over Mrs. Owens at the sixth with a par 5. The last three holes of the out nine were halved, Mrs. Dashiel carding a 43 and Mrs. Owens 4 strokes more.

The long-hitting Mrs. Owens rallied nicely as they started in and equaled the elusive Chamberlin par to win four of the next six holes to go 1 up.

Playing before a sizable, quickly formed gallery, Mrs. Dashiel coolly clicked off a trio of par 4s which clinched the next three holes in a row and gave her the match, 2 up, on the eighteenth.

Johnny Goodman, were half way through the first hole and he seemed to be happy about taking 76.

A one under par back nine by Woodmont Professional Gene Larkin was the most noteworthy performance of Washington's three-man contingent, as Larkin and Lewis Worsham, jr., of Burning Tree, tied with 78, and George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood, was two shots back with an 80.

Larkin's driver betrayed him seven times on the out nine, as he caught rough, woods and traps and finished with a 43 despite a birdie 4 on the sixth. Gene found the groove on the tenth, however, and was in the fairway until he hit another of his short skidding hooks on the finishing hole and finished with a 5 for the 35 and 78.

Ball in Trouser Cuff

Larkin was saved at least a stroke in one of the day's freak happenings, when his ball hit a woman's leg and bounded into a spectator's trouser cuff on the sixteenth hole. His second shot was headed for the deep rough over the green when it happened. The galleryite didn't touch the ball until Gene came up and told him to shake it out. He chipped close for his par 4.

Worsham, the tournament's only honeymoon contestant, was shaky on the first four holes and dropped a stroke to par on each, two from three-putt greens. A birdie deuce on the seventh gave him confidence, however, and he finished the nine in 39. He started back in good shape, three pars and a birdie on the thirteenth, but he three-putted the next, was in trouble on the long sixteenth, and finished with a double bogey six for another 39 and the 78.

Diffenbaugh Erratic

Diffenbaugh's trouble was a bag full of straying second shots and erring tee shots on par 3s. He three-putted the second, but on seven other holes his shots would miss the green to the right, left, short and over, and he finished with ten pars and eight bogeys for 39-41—80.

Andy Gibson, the Scotch professional from the Bonnie View Club in Baltimore, who won his tournament berth in a playoff with Wiffy Cox at Manor, drilled 15 consistent pars, dropped two short birdie putts and was over par on only one hole for a 71 and a place among the leaders. Virginia's two man delegation, Jack Isaacs, Langley Field, and Bobby Cruickshank, were well back with 38-31, and 41-38, 79, respectively.

Grizzle Warrior, From Cox Loft, . . Wins Pigeon Race

Grizzle Warrior, from the Friendship Loft of Howard H. Cox, lived up to its name in winging the way home from Chicago in this week's 600-mile airline race of the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club through a drenching rainstorm that all but wiped out the field of 28 speedsters.

The Warrior copped first place, while the only other two birds which made it through the storm came from the loft of William R. Pennington. Second and third places went to Rex and Little Lady, respectively.

The birds, all second-day arrivals, were liberated at 5:15 a. m. and had good weather over Indiana and Ohio. The rainstorm struck on the day of liberation in western Pennsylvania and virtually forced the game fliers to retire for the day. The winner was timed at 11:33 a. m. on the second day, and with time out for darkness, averaged approximately 30 miles per hour for the complete trip.

Mrs. Walper Wins LowGross Golf Honors

Mrs. Leo Walper, of Capital, took low gross honors in the Times-Herald Cup tournament yesterday by shooting an 81, while Mrs. L. G. Pray, of Manor, shot an 85 over the Manor course. The two had tied previously on Wednesday with 79s.

At Chevy Chase, in the Class B play, Mrs. H. J. Beech, of Manor, took low net with 101-20, for an 81. Mrs. S. A. Quigg, Capital, took a 131-36, for a 95.

Mrs. Frownfelter, of Beaver Dam, posted a 95 to take low gross over Mrs. W. B. Jarvis, of Columbia, who had a 103.

Mrs. Harvey J. Cooper, of Kenwood, won the Class A play over the Manor course on Wednesday by posting an 82-10, for a 72 for low net.

3-Run Rally In 8th Gives A's 7-4 Victory

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Pa., June 6.—A three-run rally in the eighth inning broke up a tie and gave the Athletics a 7-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers today.

Singles by Benny McCoy, Wally Moses and Bob Johnson followed by a double steal and an outfield fly furnished the winning runs against Pitcher Al Benton, who took the mound after Buck Newson went out for a pinchhitter.

Chubby Dean, who relieved Buck Ross in the eighth when the Tigers scored two runs to tie the count, got credit for the victory. Ross, whose home run in the third capped a three-run Philadelphia rally, yielded five hits, one of them a homer by Rudy York.

Hader Disqualified In 'Angel' Bout At Turner's Arena

Jack Hader gave vent to his ire last night by tossing Referee Casey Berger to the customers and paid for it by being disqualified in his bout with the Irish Angel at Turner's Arena.

Hader and the Angel were slamming away without anyone getting hurt when Berger pulled Jack away. Irked, "Black Jack" then pulled the dastardly act of hurling Casey over the ropes and then starting out anew on the Angel's ample anatomy, pausing from time to time to tweak the Angel's nose and pull his whiskers. The end came after 25 minutes.

Arrangements Announced for All-Star Game

Sportsman's Park Scene of Play, July 9; 25 Players on Clubs

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 6.—Arrangements for the All-Star major league baseball game to be played at Sportsman's Park July 9 were announced tonight by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis through the St. Louis Cardinals, the host club.

The game will start at 1:30 p. m., Central standard time. If a postponement is necessary, the game will be played at 9 a. m. the following day.

Each team will have 25 players, selected by a majority vote of the eight managers of the American and National leagues. Each team also will be permitted to have two coaches, one trainer and as many batting practice pitchers as desired.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds will manage the National League Team. The American League team will be guided by Joe Cronin, of the Boston Red Sox.

Each team must be represented by at least one player from each of the eight teams in the league.

No pitcher will be allowed to work more than three innings, except that if a pitcher should enter the game after the commencement of an inning, that fraction of an inning will not be included, and except that any pitcher in the game in the ninth or any subsequent inning can finish out the game if his manager so desires.

against bobbing and weaving Dudas, he won decisively and surprised the experts with his great improvement since last appearing in the Garden in December. Comiskey displayed a beautiful left jab. It was this jab which floored Steve in the opening session. Comiskey withheld his terrific straight right during most of the rounds, waiting for the pot shot that never came.

Comiskey, who scaled, 203¾, will meet Buddy Baer at Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey City, sometime in August, Promoter Mike Jacobs announced. He also will appear in the semifinal to the Maxi Baer-Tony Galento fight at Roosevelt Stadium on July 2.

D. C. Roller Derby Team Beats Aztecs

Fast action and rough and ready mixing that kept 3,100 spectators in a constant uproar resulted in victory for the Washington Pawnees last night as they finally turned the tables on the Chicago Aztecs in Roller Derby competition at Riverside Stadium, 15 to 11.

The Pawnees, winning their first game in five starts, will be out to deadlock the series at 9 to 9 when they continue their series with the Aztecs at Riverside tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

Naval Air Nine Beats Treasury by 3-1 Score

Naval Air Station defeated the Treasury Department, 3 to 1, yesterday behind the four-hit pitching of Meads. Rightfielder Smith, with three hits out of four times at bat, led the winners' batting attack on their own diamond.

Capitol Victors, 13-9

The Night Owls softball league was thrown into a tie for first place yesterday morning when the Capital Band defeated the leading Mayfair ten, 13 to 9, at West Potomac. The Earle Band defeated Wardman Park, 9 to 4, in a second game.

Cameo Furniture Nine Beats Reliance Life in League, 3 to 1

Bill Harris, Cameo Furniture outfielder, is shown sliding into third after slamming one to right field in the fourth inning of yesterday's Cameo-Reliance Life game in The Washington Post-Industrial League. Reliance Third Baseman Bill England waits for the ball. Harris scored Cameo's first run a minute later

Cameo Furniture's baseball club shaved down Heurich's lead in The Washington Post-Industrial League a half-game yesterday by defeating Reliance Life, 3-to-1, on the East Ellipse.

It was a triple and a homerun that gave Cameo the victory after three scoreless innings. Bill Harris slammed a triple out to rightfield in the fourth and scored Cameo's first run on "Giggie" Adair's single through shortstop.

Came the eighth inning, and Bootsy McQuinn stepped up to drive out a home run over the leftfielder's head and score Woody Godfrey, who had singled to right.

Reliance became alive in their half of the eighth, when George Taylor repeated McQuinn's home run act. The game ended at that point, however, because of darkness. Tommy Hahn gave up nine hits in going the route for Cameo, while the winners hopped on McGinnis and Bright for ten hits. Cameo meets O'Donnell's Monday.

Dodgers Beat Cards, 9-5, to Creep Within Game of Lead

5th Straight Battle Won With 4 in 3d

Hamlin Hit Hard By St. Louis but Gets Victory Credit; Mize Smashes 15th

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 6.—The Brooklyn Dodgers built their latest winning streak to five games today with a 9-to-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and closed the gap between Cincinnati's idle league leaders to one game.

Luke Hamlin was hit hard, including the fifteenth home run of the season by John Mize and another by Joe Orengo, but the Dodgers jumped out in front with four runs in the third and old "Hot Potato" got credit for his fourth victory even though he didn't go the route.

The Dodgers got their margin by batting around against Fiddler Bill Agee and Ernie White in the third. Dixie Walker opened with a home and with one out Brooklyn filled the bases on two singles and a walk. Then Dolph Camilli singled two tallies across and went to second on a fumble. An intentional walk filled the bases again and a fly by Leo Durocher brought home the fourth run.

The Cards' first two runs came on a walk and Mize's homer in the third. They got another in the sixth on a double by Orengo and a triple by Mickey Owen, who had a perfect day at bat. In the eighth Joe Medwick singled, went to third when Jim Wasdell let the ball get away and scored on a fly before Orengo came up with his fourth homer of the year.

Third-Inning Rally Defeats Boston Bees

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 6.—The struggling Pittsburgh Pirates, aided by thumping triples off the bats of Rookies Bob Elliott and Frankie Gustine, tallied six runs in a third inning rally today to overcome the hapless Boston Bees 7 to 6. The victory left the two teams tied for the last two posts in the National League race.

Boston grabbed an early lead in the second frame and drove Bob Klinger from the mound, the first six batters lining out safe hits to score five markers. Rip Sewell relieved the Pirates' No. 1 hurler and was credited with the victory.

Bill Posedel was chased in the third inning by Elliott's triple which scored two runs. Gustine's triple off Southpaw Joe Sullivan later in the stanza drove in two more runs.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Sid Hudson moves into a position high among the leaders in the Man of the Month contest despite his defeat by the Indians yesterday. We are distributing points on the basis of that game as follows:

To Hudson, eight points, because he kept the Nats in the ball game from the outset, because he struck out ten, and because he turned the Indians back scoreless in the crucial ninth and tenth innings.

To Jimmy Pofahl, six points, because his double in the seventh inning figured in two important runs for the Nats at a time when the score was tied.

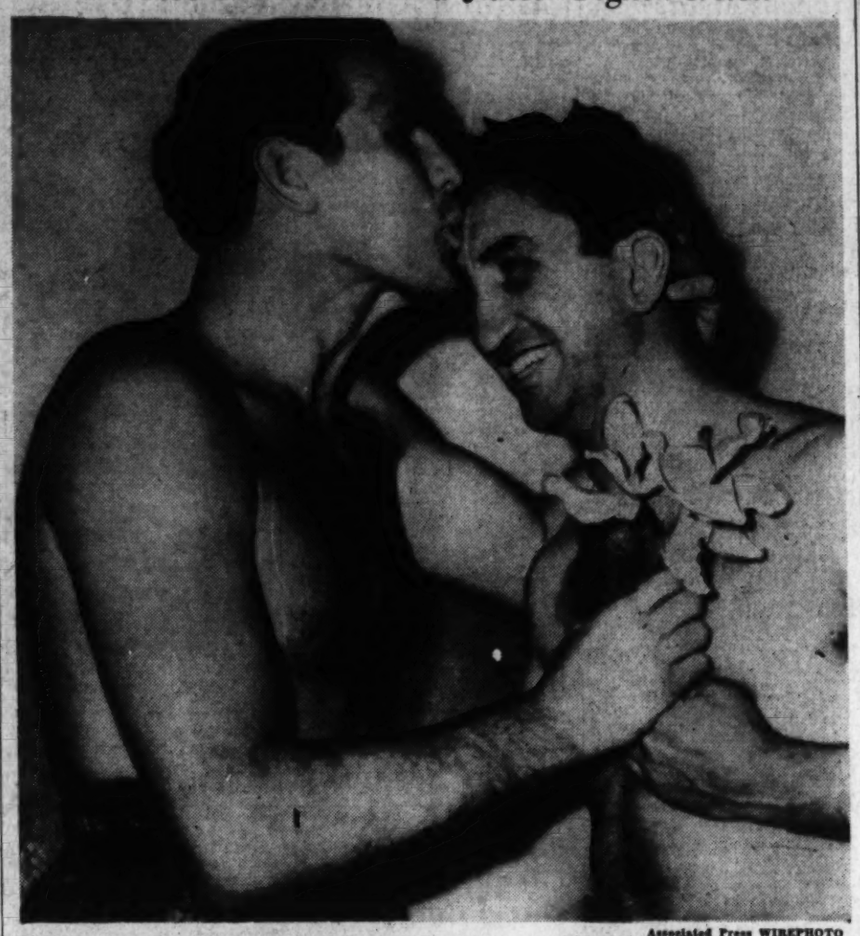
To Buddy Lewis, three points, because he made two hits and figured in a run, and because he played a clever game at third base.

To Johnny Welaj, three points, because he made two hits and played spectacularly in center field.

To Jake Early, four points, because he made two hits, one of which led to a seventh-inning run, and the other represented the potential tying run in the eleventh. The totals:

Walter Masterson	20	Jimmy Pofahl	12
Dutch Leonard	18	George Case	9
Ken Chase	18	Jake Early	9
Jimmy Bloodworth	15	Joe Haynes	8
Sidney Hudson	15	Gerald Walker	8
Johnny Welaj	14	Buddy Lewis	6
Zeke Bonura	13

We Give You Romeo and Juliet—Fight Version



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Indian Triple In 11th Beats Nats, 5 to 4

Bonura's long fly moved Welaj home from third and Walker to that base. Then it was that Walker absurdly tried to steal home with Allen holding the ball.

From that point, it developed into a superb duel between young Hudson and the veteran Allen. Hudson, displaying a new-found curve, struck out Jeff Heath four times in succession. He gave up a run to the Indians in the fourth inning after Beau Bell, who was to make four straight hits, beat out a high bounder to Pofahl. The run scored on Mack's single to left and Pytlak's long fly to Case.

In the sixth, Hudson held the Indians scoreless despite Bell's double, which opened the inning, but the Nats made only two hits in a five-inning stretch against Allen. In the seventh, Jimmy Pofahl was a temporary hero.

Comes the Homer

Early opened the seventh with a single to center and after being sacrificed to second, he scored the run that put the Nats in a 3-2 lead when Pofahl drove a hard double to left. Hudson at this point singled to left to improve the Nats' lead to 4-2

There weren't any early indications that the Indians would tie the score in the eighth. Hudson caused Trosky to pop up and then fanned Heath for the fourth straight time, but Bell singled to center for his fourth straight hit. Then it was that Mack belted the next pitch into the bleachers to make it 4-4.

Trosky doubled to right with one out in the tenth, but the Indians couldn't get him even to third. After Pytlak opened the eleventh with his triple, Hale batted for Harder and there was an idea that a run might be averted when he grounded to Pofahl, who threw him out while holding Pytlak on third. But along came Boudreau with his single and the Indians had the gall game, because the Nats didn't have any answer for that run.

Syracuse Crew Beats Wisconsin in Dual Race

Syracuse, N. Y., June 6 (AP)—Syracuse University's crew defeated Wisconsin by approximately six and one-half lengths on Onondaga Lake today in a pre-Poughkeepsie dual race.

Hitting a steady 36 stroke from start to finish Syracuse finished the three-mile trek in 16:34 4-5. Wisconsin time was 17:00 4-5.

Cat Cay Tuna Tourney Ends With Hectic Climax in Bahamas

Standings of Contestants Change By the Minute; 54 Fish Caught in Day

By Bill Ackerman.

The classic of the big game-fishing world, the annual Cat Cay Tuna tournament in the Bahamas, British West Indies, wound up with a day so hectic the standings of the contestants changed from minute to minute, it was learned here yesterday. Up to the bell it was anyone's contest.

Starting slowly, the first official day was the fifth of the contest, and because of wind and heavy weather Wednesday, the third and last official day, brought the tournament to a blistering climax. There were 54 tuna caught by 19 anglers out of the 43 competing, between 8:30 and 5 p. m. Several caught as many as five. The average weight of all fish entered in the three competitive days was 428 pounds.

Tommy Shevlin, the great football back of Yale some years ago and holder of the world's record blue marlin until last year, was the winner with a score of 42,568 points. He came up from tenth place to nose out Frank M. O'Brien, who had consistently held to second place since the first day, and who finished with 36,380 points.

1939 Winner Fifth

Anton Hulman, Terra Haute, Ind., had a score of 31,890 for third place, beating Willard Comstock, of Coral Gables, by a scant 400 points, less than a fin almost. Points are scored on a basis of seven for each pound of fish caught on 54-thread, and 10 points for those taken on the lighter 39-thread.

Finishing fifth was last year's winner, Julio Sanchez. His brother, Thorwald, was sixth with 28,140. Both were members of the winning Cuban team at Wedgeport in 1938.

Following are the next 19 in the order in which they finished: Laddie Sanford, New York, 26,425; Steve Bancroft, San Francisco, 26,117, Herbert Pulitzer, New York, 26,050; Leonard Mudge, Pittsburgh, 25,210, George Lyon, sr., Bimini, 24,159. Frank Raymond, Fort Lauderdale 23,090; John Nichols, Chicago, 22,980, Tatem Wofford, Miami Beach 22,130; Charles Sorenson, Detroit, who held the lead during the first two days but was forced to withdraw and return home. Errol Flynn was another who was also able to fish but two days. He finished nineteenth with 8,580 points.

Ladies' Day a Success

Ben Short, Detroit, was sixteenth with 11,659; George Lyon, jr., Bimini 11,244; C. Alan Hudson, jr., Miami Beach, 9,260; J. S. Powell, Palm Beach, 8,030; Prince Alex Obleski Palm Beach, 7,690; Sewell Barre, New York, 6,792; Ben Finney, New York, 5,831; Winsotn Guest, New York, 5,439, and T. Denny Board man, Palm Beach, 4,512.

Ladies' Day, moved up a day when Tuesday was declared official was as much a success as the contest. The heaviest fish of the tourney was taken by Mrs. Tatem Wofford. It weighed exactly 600 pounds and gave her 6,000 points for fourth place with 39-thread. Mrs. Leonard Mudge was first with three tuna and 11,640 points. In order: Mrs. John Cass, Miami, 9,000; Mrs. A. E. Carpenter, Miami Beach, 8,560; Mrs. Thorvald Sanchez, Havana, 6,755; Miss Libby Gardner, Miami, 5,080; Mrs. Frank Raymond, Fort Lauderdale, 3,840; Mrs. Marion Hasler, Miami Beach, 3,720; Mrs. Frank M. O'Brien, Miami, 3,330.

Forever Prince Wins $1,200 Sprint At Suffolk Downs

Boston, June 6 (AP). — Forever Prince, the top campaigner in the barn of Rodney C. Groff, of Flint, Mich., finally delivered in New England today after seven failures by scoring over a band of seven rivals in the $1,200 allowance sprint feature at Suffolk Downs.

The 5-year-old son of Prince Bourbon had a length over Mrs. C. C. Winter's Patrol Scout, with Walter J. McCune' Donna Leona third, another half length away. B. M. Smith's Cooling Spring ran fourth.

Nonnenkamp Optioned

Boston, June 6 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox, announced today the release of Leo Nonnenkamp, utility outfielder, on option to the Louisville Club of the American Association. Stanley Spence, Louisville outfielder, was recalled, meanwhile, and will report to the Sox tomorrow.

Bill Ackerman On Fishing

ACKERMAN

Capt. Taft Tippett, who of necessity has been fishing everywhere but his regular Ridge grounds, some 7 miles off Point Lookout, tells us fishing there has started in fine shape. In fact his last time out there were six nice trout in the catch. And who knows, there might be a blue or two soon, for these fishing grounds on occasion produce them as early as any place in the bay. It would certainly be no more odd an occurance than that of the Jersey angler, who this week caught several four-pound blues while fishing in Great Egg for weakfish.

A few trout have been caught at Solomons, but the hardheads continue to supply the bulk of the fishing there, as every other place in bay waters.

Capt. Ed Bowen is starting a fishing contest next week that is worthy of more than passing note. We hope others will do likewise at other points because it stresses the use of cotton thread, which we would like to see come into more general use.

This contest is interesting, too, because it is short and to the point. In other words it is composed of one day affairs. On Tuesdays it will be cotton thread, while on Thursdays it is free style. Prizes of rods, reels and lines will go to those anglers who score the best fish, which will be rated on a point basis that is also interesting, and new to most anglers in the bay country.

Any rockfish will be spotted 6 points, blues 9, trout 7.8, hardheads 9, spot 12.2, Spanish mackerel 10, kingfish 11, seabass (black) 12, and perch 12.2, to which will be added the weight of the fish. It works out that any large fish of any species may win the prize. Toads, eels, sharks and other trash fish do not count, but channel bass, as well as black drum will win a separate prize when caught on tournament days.

We predict these days are going to supply considerable fun, but don't call us about them. Call Ed Bowen at Solomons direct.

Looks like the northeaster has finally blown out along the coast, and the channel bass are giving the Cape Charles anglers the workout they have been looking for. Some of the big fellows are going better than 60 pounds. Milton Gordon at the new Sports Center has been recommending the new Shakespeare "Dopey," and how they are hitting it. Far more than the trolling or bottom fishing with clams.

This is the week-end of the big parade of the marlin fleet at Ocean City. No blues are there so far, except a few in the nets, but there are plenty of seabass, porgies and weaks.

Sidney Lust and his party of four fished Wednesday from the Middles to Point No Point and pulled big hardheads in until they were tired, proving Capt. Taft Tippett's contention that early morning and late evening is the best fishing.

A radiophone from Lev-Raymond offshore Atlantic City to the effect the big striped bonita are hitting—the first run of sporifish we have noted anywhere.

Catches of hardheads on the Gooses and Diamond Sheals have increased until practically every boat comes in with big catches. Boats from Breezy Point, Plum Point and North Beach are nearest these grounds. We would say for this week-end—fish anywhere.

Note: The above predictions give the times of high and low water and not the time the current changes (slack water). In Chesapeak Bay, midchannel, between Chesapeake Beach and Annapolis, slack water occurs about 2½ to 4½ hours after high and low water by the shore. At other places given in the table, slack water occurs from one-half to 1½ hours after the times of high and low water.

Times given above are for Baltimore and Washington. Subtract or add the number of hours as the various points for time of tides at these points.

Time Her Disqualified; Butterman Gets Charles Town Purse

Likly Lad 2d; Will Nertney Suspended

Long Delay Before 'Official' Sign Gives Correct Winner of Race

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 5.—Although Jockey Sammy Palumbo, whose favored mount was the chief sufferer in a jam of three horses, failed to claim a foul, the stewards disqualified J. T. Harris' Time Her, winner of today's fourth race. To close observers, it was apparent that some action would be taken after Time Her, on the outside crowded Butterman into Likly Lad, ridden by Palumbo.

However, the officials failed to turn on the "objection" sign to indicate that they were deliberating on the result. There was a long delay and the "official" sign was not lighted but many fans tore up and tossed away tickets that a few minutes later were valuable.

The first news received by the betters was when the numbers indicating the order of finish were darkened and then were relighted with Butterman the winner, Likly Lad second and Stubbs third.

Interference on Backstretch

The stewards followed the action with this statement: "Time Her, winner of the fourth race, was disqualified for interfering with Butterman and Likly Lad on the backstretch at the five-sixteenth pole—also interfering with Butterman near the finish line."

Jockey Willie Nertney was ordered suspended for the remainder of the meeting for rough riding. It was a blow to the Baltimore boy who had taken his first mounts today after having served out a five-day suspension.

Butterman paid $12.80 to win and Time Her, had her number remained on the board would have rewarded her scattered backers with $28.40.

Time Her Goes to Front

Time Her went to the front at once and Jockey Tony Vesseli drove Butterman up on the rail. These two were running head and head when Palumbo, who had been in a tangle at the break, skimmed the rail to get to the leaders with the speedy Likly Lad. At the far turn, Likly Lad went up as Time Her appeared to be taking a lead. It was at this point, with the rivals three abreast, that the alleged foul occurred.

Today's daily double was one of the smallest of the meeting. Mayfern won the second race at $5 and Goldun took the third event at $6.20. Those who held the eight and two combination collected only $10.60. Between these two races, a heavy downpour turned the track from fast to sloppy.

The day's feature race, the Paw Paw Purse, went to Mrs. M. Reis' Sunny Rose, the filly coming from behind to defeat among others Gigle Lee and Two Aces. Sunny Rose paid $24.40.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL VEIL, $4.80, $3.20, $2.20; BARRACA, $6.00, $3.00; KENNER, $2.40.

ROYAL VEIL, steadied along and saving ground, came out for racing room, came around leaders and closed with good speed to be up in last strides. BARRACA moved up boldly, took command over KENNER and fought it out gamely under pressure. KENNER raced WHITTLE PETE into defeat to take lead and held on gamely at finish. MARSHALL A ran an even race.

SECOND RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:06. Off 3:06½. Winner, E. A. Nicodemus' b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOLDUN, $6.30, $3.20, $3.00; CHANNING, $3.20, $2.80; STAR ON, $5.00.

GOLDUN, saving ground when unable to reach leaders early, moved up on inside entering stretch and was up in final strides while in close quarters. CHANNING, steadied along and close up, was placed to hard drive through stretch and assumed momentary lead, but weakened right at close. STAR ON, hustled to front immediately, set steady pace, but tired gradually

Daily Double, MAY FERN and GOLDUN, Paid $10.60

WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, SLOPPY.

FOURTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:04. Off 4:05½. Winner, T. W. Willingham's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUTTERMAN, $12.80, $4.20, $3.00; LIKLY LAD, $3.00, $2.60; STUBBS, $2.80.

TIME HER went to front at once, lugged into BUTTERMAN leaving backstretch and drew out in stretch run. She was disqualified for foul. BUTTERMAN drove up on inside of TIME HER, was bumped into LIKLY LAD and tired in final drive. LIKLY LAD, in tangle when the break came, had to be taken up sharply when interfered with and was being eased up at end. STUBBS had early speed, but could not improve position.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:36. Off 4:37½. Winner, G. T. Strother's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PANDORAMINT, $10.00, $4.40, $2.40; QUATERNARY, $3.60, $2.20; RAVENHURST, $2.40.

PANDORAMINT took command at once, was rated along in front, withstood challenge of RAVENHURST and held sway to end under stout urging. QUATERNARY stumbled leaving gate, was vigorously handled thereafter and was closing on winner at end, in midway of stretch. DUNFRESE closed gamely. LIMERICK, well placed throughout, tired nearing stretch turn.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:59. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. C. E. Allen's b. g. (5), by Longworth—Her Own. Trained by B. A. James. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:52⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WORTH OWNING, $7.00, $3.60, $2.80; TRIXIE LASS, $4.40, $3.20; CHIEF EVERGREEN, $4.00.

WORTH OWNING assumed command immediately, drew clear of CARTOUR, withstood challenge of CHIEF EVERGREEN and opened up a long lead to win in hand. TRIXIE LASS, hard ridden, closed very gamely. CHIEF EVERGREEN was taken up sharply while in tight quarters immediately after break, was vigorously handled thereafter and weakened after gaining a contending position nearing stretch. BLIND BROOK had no excuses. BELLTHORN and MONMOUTH MISS were taken up when soundly beaten. ROCK MISS lost rider.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Thousands of race horses have been named for men but, Owner-trainer J. G. Davis is known by a horse's name. Up and down the circuit he is referred to as "Huppy" after a nine-year-old gelding in his charge. Huppy is perhaps the best known horse now running on the smaller tracks. Think of Charles Town, Hagerstown or Cumberland and Huppy almost immediately comes to mind. And there's reason enough. I believe Huppy holds a record for having his name appear in the entries more times in a period of five months than any other thoroughbred. Last year, for instance, he raced 42 times and was in the entries upwards of 100 times. Until last year, Huppy had a "second place complex." Davis said yesterday that he finished second in 50 races over a period of five years. The records show that he was nosed out on successive days at both Timonium and Cumberland. Davis has raced him as often as three days in a row. "What's more," says Davis, "Huppy loves it. Why I have raced him two days straight and when I led him out to let him get some fresh grass, the second night he wanted to romp and play." Huppy just runs and runs and occasionally he wins. Last year he was able to collect five purses. Despite the fact that he invariably is quoted at long odds, his longest winning price was $27.80 and his shortest $10.50. However, Huppy has paid telephone numbers to place and show at times. Davis purchased Huppy for a mere $75 when he was unsound. The horse has a plodding style of running that makes him an individualist. But he is a money maker despite the fact that he has borne the brunt of many a horse joke hereabouts. Davis took down $2,280 in purse money last year with him. It looks as though Huppy and Davis deserve the last laugh. BILL

First race—Cut Emerald has an inside post position that is not favorable in this short sprint but I'm forced to string along. Blue Prelude has been racing into condition and is dangerous in this company. Way Out and Roving Eye are possibilities on the reserve list.

Second race — Washstain appears best of these juvenile maidens. Has shown enough speed to warrant a top position. Ginseng flashed speed at the milers and is a threat. Knespin is a doubtful starter but is promising.

Third race—Sour Cherry has been improving and should do a lot of running in a field as cheap as this one. Navigation has made money appearances and could be close. Kin Mag is still a maiden but is due some respect. .

Fourth race—Princess Lady gets in light and may the right one at 7 furlongs. Waugh Scout is in excellent form and will be a keen factor. Margie Wrack and Gold D'Or will be close if in action.

Fifth race—Strumming's last was a beaut and probably will win if sufficient scratches materialize to get him into the race. Tavern won his last impressively, Wayriel, on general good form, is dangerous.

Sixth race—Rare Gem gets an outside post in this short sprint and will have Willie Kelley in the saddle. I'm going to string along with this pair. Canrock is fit and ready. Nathan Hale and Mahi are possible surprises.

Seventh race—Jinneal galloped in her last and gets the favored No. 1 post position. Appears capable of handling the 115-pound assignment. Clymene was doing her best last out and will be prominent again. Sandy Belle is best but may find the 121 pounds too much of a burden.

Eighth race — Bright Light and Heart Play are a close fit in this event. I prefer them in the order named. Abbot's Lark will be a threat if taken off the reserve list.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take Wallu, Time Row and Circus Lights.

Trade Choked To Standstill In Grain Pit

Fixed Lows Disrupt Normal Sales With Big Season Near

By Franklin Millin
Associated Press Financial Writer.

Chicago, June 6.—Intricately geared machinery of the domestic grain trade, thrown into confusion by blitzkrieg on the western front, faces a state of partial paralysis, market experts said today, should prices recede much further.

Instead of the booming market activity and prices that many grain men had believed would accompany war, values have collapsed and trading has been choked almost to a standstill in some instances.

As a result many trade experts are seriously concerned because the season of heavy grain marketing is approaching. However, John G. McCarthy, Board of Trade president, expressed confidence that the market would be able to work out of the situation in its own way. He said no steps would be taken by the Board of Trade that do not have the sanction of Government agricultural officials.

Perilous Season

At this time of year, experts said, a large volume of speculative purchasing by trade interests and the general public usually is necessary to carry the risk of ownership of quantities of grain moving to market, especially wheat. The futures market offers the machinery for doing this job because it is through sales and purchases of contracts calling for delivery of grain at some future date that the risk of ownership is delegated to those willing and able to take it. This is important, they said, in financing the crop movement.

What has thrown the monkey-wrench into this machinery and stagnated the markets? Grain experts pointed first to the severe liquidation of market holdings in mid-May following the German invasion of the Low Countries. Prices of all grains plunged headlong, seriously upsetting the domestic agricultural picture at a most inopportune time because producers were making farm plans on the basis of market prices.

Selling Is Reviewed

Although grain values rose above these minimums and showed signs of underlying strength, renewed selling has been experienced recently. For the last two days trading in oats, rye and soy beans was virtually at a standstill because prices were at the minimums and no buyers could be found. July wheat yesterday sold down to its minimum at one time but rallied slightly. However, wheat closed only 1 to almost 2 cents above the minimums and corn 3 to 3⅛ cents above.

Traders said many buyers are reluctant to purchase contracts at or near the minimums, fearing they may not be able to sell later. If this situation becomes more acute, hedging operations during the marketing of new crops may be impaired inasmuch as dealers who wish to sell futures against purchases of actual grain may not be able to find willing buyers. The delicate relationship between spot and future market prices may be thrown out of balance.

Grain Trade Marks Time

Chicago, June 6 (AP).—Wheat and corn prices sagged as much as a cent a bushe today but then rallied and pushed fractionally higher in some cases while the grain trade marked time pending outcome of the Somme battle in France.

Belief that a decisive conflict is in progress coupled with the fact that prices of most grain contracts were at or near minimum levels established three weeks ago to check demoralized liquidation tended to restrict market activity. Trading in oats, rye and soy beans was deadlocked throughout the session except for a few transactions in September oats and this situation threatened to extend to the wheat and corn pits. Oats, rye and beans futures were at the minimums but wheat closed 1 to 2 cents over and corn was 2 to 4 cents over.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅛ cent higher compared with yesterday's finish; July 79½@79⅝; September, 80@80¼, after dipping at one time to within ⅛ cent to the minimums. Corn was ⅜ cent lower to ⅛ cent higer; July, 62⅞@63; September, 61¼@61½. Oats unchanged to ⅛ up; rye unchanged to ⅜ cent off, and lard 25 higher.

Cash wheat prices were ½ to ¾ cent lower and No. 2 hard sold for 82 cents, or 2½ cents over July close. It was quoted 3 to 3½ cents over, with No. 2 red 4½ to 5 cents over. No. 1 yellow corn was quoted ¾ cent over July, and No. 3 white oats 1½ to 2¼ cents over July, with the oats basis ¼ to 1 cent lower for the day.

Defense Needs Overshadow Soaring Deficit, Preston Tells D. C. Bankers at Convention

Stresses Sympathy For Allies; Kayser Cites Commitments

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hot Springs, Va., June 6.—America's situation in light of the European war and the demands of national defense overtoned the opening session today of the District of Columbia Bankers Association convention here.

Ord Preston, association president, opening the session today, observed that "legally, we Americans are neutral. But emotions are not legislated; conscience cannot be controlled by law. Our sympathies are strongly with the Allies. They have our full moral support."

He said the country was mindful of the threat of a Nazi victory. "We fully realize the importance of doing everything possible toward building needed defenses. However, the governmental financial structure "has given us much concern," he added with a review of the Federal debt increase since 1914.

Outlay Is Mandatory

"However, a mammoth outlay for armament is mandatory, so we shall have to be resigned to further rise in the national debt. Even apart from the new emergency, we face a deficit this year of nearly $4,000,000,000. Already Federal taxes are at the colossal peace-time level of more than $5,000,000,000, as compared with $380,000,000 in 1914, $800,000,000 in 1917 and $3,000,000,000 in 1929," he commented.

But the world situation has largely overshadowed America's domestic problems, he continued. "Their solution must, it now appears, await the change of great events," he said.

On the Washington financial front, Mr. Preston noted a number of bright spots. Bank deposits as of March 26, he said, totaled $372,875,000 as compared with $341,720,000 in 1939. This was a record for

ORD PRESTON

Emphasis Is Placed On Record Deposit Total in City

Washington, he added. New records in bank clearings are being established, he said, and in May the total was the highest for that month since 1929.

Clearings in Washington in the first five months of this year totaled $545,094,929.42, against $479,201,131.05 in the same month last year, or an increase so far in 1940 of $65,893,798.37. The five-month clearings were the highest since 1930, when the total stood at $559,969,862.61.

Results of Survey

Taxes paid to the Federal Government and the District of Columbia, etc., including social security, $949,702.85.

Advertising, $121,074.81.

Peace With Japan Urged

Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, professor of European history, George Washington University, told the bankers that America's commitments "are staggering." The Nation, he said, must buttress itself diplomatically. He offered two examples.

"One is by diplomatic means to preserve the solidarity of this hemisphere. The other is by the adjustment of economic and diplomaic arrangements with Japan to do all we can by peaceful means to maintain the status quo in the Pacific. An economic rapprochement might do more than anything else to restrain the principal potential disturber of that status," he stated.

America's democracy, he said, must show that it imposes a discipline on itself. "The youth of America must be prepared for compulsory military training that can be arranged to interfere neither with education nor industry. The people of America must gladly pay the price which the maintenance of free institutions will demand," he said.

The program tomorrow includes an address on "The Tax Situation in the District of Columbia," by J. V. Morgan, of the District Board of Tax Appeals, and "Consumer Credit," by Walter B. French, of the Consumer Credit Department, American Bankers Association.

The sessions continue through Saturday.

Auto Assembly Up in Week; Drop Forecast

93,496 Units Turned Out Against 64,808 In Previous Week

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 6.—Automotive News in its weekly survey of automobile output estimated today that assemblies for the current week would number 93,496 cars and trucks, compared with 64,808 in the holiday-curtailed previous week and 68,394 this week a year ago.

There are indications, the survey reported, "that operations for the next several weeks will show a gradual decline as the 1940 model season draws to a close."

Buick Sales up 32 Per Cent

Flint, Mich., June 6 (AP).—Buick division of General Motors Corporation reported today that its retail sales of new cars during May totaled 26,072 units, an increase of 32 per cent over the same period a year ago. The company previously reported April sales of 28,652 vehicles.

Unfilled orders on hand at the end of May were reported as nearly 5,000.

Construction Awards Drop

New York, June 6 (AP).—Engineering construction awards in the past week totaled $64,967,000 against $78,575,000 the previous week and $84,640,000 in the like 1939 period, the Engineering News-Record reported today.

For the year construction totals $1,201,820,000, a drop of 15 per cent under the like 1939 period. Private awards for year were 15 per cent ahead of the comparable 1939 figure, but public contracts declined 25 per cent.

The week's awards by groups compared as follows:

	Latest Week.	1939 Week.
Private	$14,241,000	$19,338,000
State, Municipal	46,049,000	49,458,000
Federal	4,677,000	15,844,000

Time Business Index Rises Sharply to 103.3

New York, June 6 (AP).—Time Magazine's index of business conditions rose sharply last week to 103.3 from 99.3 the preceding week. A year ago the index stood at 94.6.

The index, which is derived from money and banking figures, reports not on business volume, but on changes in underlying conditions likely to affect the volume of business.

Army Purchases Bring Increased Fabric Demand

New York, June 6 (AP).—The recently announced plan of the War Department to buy woolen goods in large quantities for Army use has brought increased demand for civilian fabrics and a steadying in prices.

Turnover in men's and women's wear markets has been at a sharply higher rate over the past two or three days. The advent of warmer weather also improved sales of tropical worsted and gabardines at retail.

Demand continued slow in cotton goods and prices held at the lows of the recent downward movement. Operations in rayon and silk fabric markets also continued quiet.

Pepsi-Cola Ordered To Pay Loft Dividend

Wilmington, Del., June 6 (AP).—The Pepsi-Cola Co. has been directed by Chancellor W. W. Harrington to pay Loft, Inc., a dividend of $5 a share on 147,749 shares of stock held in escrow by the Delaware Trust Co., it was announced today.

The Pepsi-Cola dividend was declared May 17, payable June 10 to stockholders of record May 24.

S. S. Kresge Sales Rise to $12,592,169

New York, June 6 (AP).—S. S. Kresge Co. today reported May sales increased to $12,592,169 from $12,104,732 in May last year, a gain of four per cent. Sales for the first five months of the year totaled $56,299,777, or three per cent more than $54,652,754 in the comparable 1939 stretch.

Price Fixing by Government Viewed as Strong Possibility

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 6.—The National Association of Purchasing Agents was told by Executive Secretary George A. Renard, of New York today that there is a strong possibility of Government price-fixing "whether or not this Nation enters the war."

Reporting to a national convention of the organization, Renard said prices will become one of this Nation's major problems if the conflict in Europe continues or spreads.

"Tin, rubber, burlap and other strategic materials which must be imported into this country present a problem which may rapidly get beyond control of the individual buyer," Renard asserted.

"Some of these commodities are already the subject of negotiation and barter between our Government and the producing countries. That development may spread.

"It is not improbable that fixed prices and allocated supplies of such materials will be seen if war continues beyond this year—even though the United States does not become a participant."

Renard said the most destructive feature of war, aside from loss of life, is the inflation of prices, labor rates and governmental costs.

He declared artificial and unnecessary advances of prices must be restrained by good business sense or they will be controlled by the government, adding:

"We must face the facts. All other important nations now control production, prices, exchange, etc. How can the individual in this country deal with those governments except through his government? If we are to have rubber, tin, burlap and other strategic imports, it will be through arrangements made between governments and not through individuals.

"Some of our highly developed individualists may call that government interference; it would be more reasonable to call it government assistance and protection."

Renard asserted that all facilities of the Nation must be tuned to the maximum for development of materials and equipment required for the military and economic conflict confronting democratic nations, "although this may be hard to swallow—as it was for England and France."

Rail Loadings 13.5% Above Same '39 Week

639,126 Cars Is 7% Under Previous Week Due to Holiday

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 639,123 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 48,364 cars, or 7 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 75,817, or 13.5 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 136,509, or 27.2 per cent, compared with 1938.

The report classified the loadings as follows:

	This Week	Year Ago
Miscellaneous freight	257,175	+27,032
Less-than-carlot merchandise	130,439	— 2,881
Coal	112,989	+24,805
Grain and grain products	27,243	— 3,056
Western districts	15,865	— 3,089
Livestock	10,533	+ 763
Western districts	7,619	+ 490
Forest products	32,263	+ 4,913
Ore	59,663	+20,676
Coke	8,821	+ 3,565

Reflecting the Memorial Day holiday, loadings for the latest week were off sharply from the previous week. Miscellaneous freight and less-than-carlot merchandise showed sharp decreases.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of loadings, based on 1929-'30 as 100, declined to 71.7 compared with 72.1 the previous week, and 63.7 a year ago.

New York, June 6 (AP).—Three well-known Middle Western industrialists and one from the South have been made vice presidents of the National Association of Manufacturers.

They are: H. A. Bullis, Minneapolis, Minn., executive vice president of General Mills; B. C. Heacock, president of the Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Ill.; E. J. McMillan, president of the Standard Knitting Mills, Inc., Knoxville, Tenn., and Craig R. Sheaffer, president W. A. Sheaffer Pen Co., Fort Madison, Iowa.

Gen. Cable Again Delays Election

Jersey City, N. J., June 6 (AP).—The adjourned special meeting of stockholders of General Cable Corp. to vote on a recapitulation plan was further adjourned today to July 2.

Dwight R. G. Palmer, president, said a hearing on a restraining order issued by Chancery Court of Jersey City at the behest of certain preferred shareholders had not been held. He said he expected a hearing soon.

Originally the meeting was called for May 23.

Ample Scotch Whisky Stored for 4 Years

By the Associated Press

Scotland passed along word today that it had enough Scotch whisky in warehouses to supply the world for the next four years.

This news, relayed to the Commerce Department, said that Scotch whisky stocks were so large that despite higher production and shipping costs the export price of liquor had not been increased.

The report also stated that Scotland was amassing whisky particularly for the American market, because sales here provide the British with dollar currency that can be used to purchase airplanes and other war materials.

The war already has reduced new production of Scotch whisky about a third. But stocks of whisky already in warehouses were estimated at 133,000,000 imperial proof gallons.

Pound Leaps, Pulls Cotton List Higher

Free Market Abolition Seen Boosting Allied Buying Power

By the Associated Press

New York, June 6.—Cotton prices came up swiftly in live trading today in the wake of a spectacular rally in the rate for the "free" pound sterling.

Traders on the Cotton Exchange floor theorized that events linked to the pound's sharp rise might have bullish implications for the American fiber.

Reports received in Wall Street, which were not officially confirmed, said British authorities were considering new exchange regulations which might abolish the international "free' sterling market.

Reasoning that if the free market were eliminated and all settlements made at the official sterling rate of around $4.02, or 40 or 50 cents above the free rate, cotton traders saw a largely increased Allied buying power here and a possible considerable expansion of American cotton takings.

In the late upward run prices rose 13 to 17 points above the early lows for final net gains of 5 to 13 points.

Banks' Idle Cash Up $170,000,000 To New Record

Idle money in the Nation's banks took a $170,000,000 leap to a new record of $6,530,000,000 in the week ended June 5.

The Federal Reserve Board said the large increase was due primarily to Treasury spending and gold purchases, which more than offset a $33,000,000 increase in money in circulation.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended June 5 member bank reserve balances increased $172,000,000. Additions to member bank reserves arose from increases of $119,000,000 in gold stock and $19,000,000 in reserve bank credit and decreases of $70,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve Banks, and $2,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal reserve accounts, offset in part by increases of $33,000,000 in money in circulation and $5,000,000 in Treasury cash. Excess reserves of member banks on June 5 were estimated to be approximately $6,530,000,000, an increase of $170,000,000 for the week."

Big Board Seat Sold for $39,000

New York, June 6 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange reported today the transfer of a membership for $39,000—a price $3,000 less than paid 10 days ago.

In 1915 a seat was sold for $38,000, the record low of 25 years. The possibility that even that mark might be broken was seen in a report that the best offer now standing for membership was $36,000.

The highest price paid this year was $59,000 January 18. The highest price ever paid was $625,000 in 1929.

Investment Firms Back Wagner-Lea Measure

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, June 6.—Leading investment companies will support the Wagner-Lea bill to regulate the industry, which was approved today by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, it was made known by Arthur H. Bunker, executive vice president of the Lehman Corporation.

Bunker, who acted as spokesman for the investment trust representatives in presenting to the Senate committee a set of principles for regulatory legislation which embodied the views of the industry, collaborated with the SEC in working out the measure in its present form.

Holiday Causes Drop In Bank Clearings

New York, June 6 (AP).—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities during the 5-day week ended June 5 totaled $4,753,874,000 a drop of 16.8 per cent from $5,717,127,000 in the comparable 1939 week, a 6-day period, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Comparisons with last year was distorted by the Memorial Day holiday falling in different weeks.

Boston Wool

Boston, June 6 (AP). (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—A strong buying movement in three-eighths and one-quarter blood bright fleece wools offered from accumulation points in the country has advanced on the Boston wool market on country-packed mixed-grade lots to 38@39 cents, in the grease, delivered to users. Only a few sales realized 39 cents. Some buyers, however, were showing hesitancy at the advanced prices. Western-grown fine wools were receiving a moderate demand. Good French combing length fine territory wools and 12-months Texas wools have realized 82@83 cents, scoured basis, in original bags.

Over-Counter Trade Volume Put at 15 Billions a Year

Turnover Handled by 9,000 Security Houses, Says New Publication; 'Wire Turrets' Over Many Miles Required for Quick Trade

By the Associated Press

New York, June 6.—The operation of a market in securities which stretches from coast to coast through a communications network thousands of miles long is described in "The Over-the-Counter Securities Market," by John C. Loeser, published today.

The over-the-counter market, Loeser said, is created by some 9,000 security houses and branches. It furnishes to investors in approximately $85,000,000,000 of outstanding bond and stock issues the only organized facilities for trade in these securities.

Over-the-counter traders, sitting by "wire turrets" linking trading rooms throughout the country, buy and sell about 100,000 different issues of United States Government, municipal, corporation and foreign securities in the course of a year.

"Estimates indicate that for a year like 1939, for example, volume by dollar value was probably well in excess of $15,000,000,000," Loeser declared.

The National Association of Securities Dealers, self-regulatory body of the over-the-counter market and only national securities association registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission, is affiliated with the National Quotation bureau, of which the author is an employe.

L. E. Walker, president of the National Quotation Bureau, said in a foreword "little has been published about the market whose origins go back to the first major financial operations undertaken in this country—the financing of its war of independence. It is hoped both scholars and students of securities markets may recognize the field it covers as a fertile one for research and study."

Stock Traders Heartened by French Stand; Runup in Sterling Rates; General List Slightly Higher With Packard in Van

New York, June 6.—Early indications from the battlefronts that French troops are making a better showing against Nazi thrusts, served to steady markets today. A flurry in sterling rates provided a feature in financial sections. On rumors that trading in the pound will be subject to closer supervision by London, with probable restrictions on free sterling, there was covering and buying in the British unit, which ran up 65 cents at one time, closing with a net gain of 50¾ cents. French francs put on a sympathetic advance.

In shares there was a general improvement due more to the lifting of pressure than to buying confidence. About half of the ground lost on the previous day was recovered, but volume showed a shrinkage. The composite price of the 100 key big board stocks was .28 point higher. Transfers totaled 427,315 shares.

Packard in Demand

For the second successive day Packard led the list and at its last price of 3⅜ was ⅜ point higher. Standard Oil of New Jersey was in the spotlight for the third successive day with a gain of more than a point. Since the company announced its favorable earnings statement and synthetic rubber development early in the week the shares have improved about 5 points.

Steels showed the sharpest gains, running to more than a point in numerous issues. Spot news favored the group. Well-posted quarters said that Allied orders are increasing with the leading interests receiving most of the tonnage. The spurt of activity in the Buffalo area where steel output is climbing toward the 90-point mark, is thought to reflect Bethlehem's efforts on war contracts; the bulk of which it is assumed are for national defense.

Rail equipments continued their upward movement begun Wednesday and there was evidence of good buying in the group. Utilities, oils, motors and foods made small gains for the most part. Airplanes did a little better than other sections although Curtiss-Wright was the most active and closed unchanged. Boeing was a trifle higher.

Bonds Are Uneven

Listed bonds were mixed today, as the reports of the German blitzkrieg against Paris indicated only modest progress, and a prospect of continued fighting along the Somme. United States Treasury issues were firm throughout, and other sections of the investment list held to previous levels. Most foreign dollar bonds remained soft, and fresh lows were numerous. Speculative bonds of the domestic list showed gains and losses in about equal numbers. Turnover was only $3,570,000.

The firmness of Treasury obligations remained one of the few heartening factors for the investment community. Small advances were registered in some of the medium and long-term bonds, while a few others drifted lower. The performance indicates that no trouble will be experienced by the Treasury in either refunding $353,000,000 3¾ per cent bonds or raising money to pay them off. Changes in best grade corporate obligations also were mostly toward better levels.

France Places 200,000-Ton Steel Order

'Rush Job' Reported; U. S. Firms Pledged To Secrecy on Size

By the Associated Press

New York, June 6.—Reliable trade sources said today that France had ordered from 200,000 to 300,000 tons of steel, in "rounds" suitable for shells, in the United States since Monday.

The "rounds" will be made by various American steel companies, which, it was said, have been pledged to secrecy by the French concerning the size of their specific orders.

It was said the order was the largest of its kind since the beginning of the war and was being turned out as "a rush job."

Steel men said the British had been placing a "steady flow" of orders and that they expected an increase in the purchasing programs of both countries.

Buffalo Boosts Rate

Buffalo, N. Y., June 6 (AP).—The Republic Steel Co. plant went on a 100 per cent operating basis today, for the first time in the memory of plant executives.

This, with the addition of another open-hearth furnace at the Bethlehem plant, brought the Buffalo area operating rate to 88½ per cent of capacity. Additional production announced for the week end at the Wickwire Spencer plant will raise the production rate to 90½ per cent of capacity.

45 at Devitt Urged to Seek Good in Life

G. W. Teacher Tells Graduates 'It Is The Only Way'

Forty-five graduates of Devitt School were urged last night to "strive for the good in life, not because the road is easy, but rather because it is the only way that the sons of free men can be happy." The speaker, B. H. Jarman, assistant professor of education at George Washington University, addressed the class at exercises at 2955 Upton street northwest.

"All of us Americans accept the good that is derived from democracy," said Jarman, "but few of us are willing to accept the responsibilities that must accompany the good."

The invocation and benediction were given by the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, rector of St. John's Church, Georgetown.

Thomas Barrentine, Dennis Boyland, Joseph Burnham, James Clements, Alvin Cooper, Angel Correa, William Crandell, John Davenport, Philip Delisi, Michael De Marco, John Deoudes, Paul Devine and Harvey Doughty.

Leroy Edmonds, Felix Estripeaut, Roger Estripeaut, Jack Everts, Nathan Fairchild, Curtis Fields, Francis Fletcher, Bernard Glassman, Lewis Glover, James Gore, Robert Hoess, Richard Holt, Daniel Kuhn, Robert Leavell, James Logan and Antonio Machado.

John Normyle, Harry O'Brien, James O'Malley, William Parr, Archie Penanco, Esteban Piola, Kent Quinn, Glenn Sanders, Jack Shureman, John Stevens, Freeman Swicklin, Edmond Taylor, Dominic Vasiura, Joseph Vishmann, Robert Webster, Marion Weller and William Williams.

T.I. Oriani, Retired Policeman, Dies; On Force 44 Years

Funeral services for Thomas I. Oriani, 75, retired District policeman, who died Wednesday at his home, 1313 Irving street northwest, will be held today at 9 a. m. with requiem mass celebrated at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart Church. The Rev. Father Edward Fitzgerald, O. P., will officiate. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The deceased was born in Washington February 1, 1865, and entered the Metropolitan Police Department in 1888 after five years in the Marine Corps. He retired in 1932, ending 44 years of service during which he fought several gun battles with bandits and transported more than 65,000 prisoners from precincts to District Jail.

He was Washington's first motion picture censor. His stamp collection was one of the finest in the city. He was a member of the Army and Navy Union, Association of Oldest Inhabitants, Holy Name Society of Sacred Heart Church and the Retired Police and Firemen's Association.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mary Ellen Oriani; three daughters, Mrs. Edith Fitzgerald, Mrs. Helen Collins and Miss Ethel Oriani, and a son, William J. Oriani.

Mrs. Louise L. Lea Dies in Florida At Age of 89

Mrs. Louise Longstreet Lea, widow of William Gabriel Lea, long a District resident, died last week at St. Petersburg, Fla., according to word received here yesterday. She was 89.

Born at St. Petersburg, Mrs. Lea came to Washington in 1876 and was widowed in 1878. To rear her three sons and one daughter, she secured a position in the Census Bureau, which she held for many years. One son, Howard Fairfax Lea, who died here in 1938, was a potentate of Ararat Temple of the Shrine in Kansas City, Mo., and for several years before his death as an attorney in the Interior Department.

Surviving are one son, Robert Edward Lea, of St. Petersburg, and a daughter, Mrs. Charles Milton Buchanan, of Everett, Wash. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m., in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Guerin

Funeral services for Mrs. Adelaide Walsh Guerin, wife of Lieut. Col. Mark E. Guerin, U. S. A., retired, will be conducted at 9 a. m. today in St. Matthews' Cathedral. She died Wednesday at her home, 2540 Massachusetts avenue northwest, following a long illness.

Mrs. Guerin leaves, in addition to her husband, a sister, Mother Josephine Walsh of the Sacred Heart Convent in Omaha, Nebr. Col. Guerin, who retired from active duty in 1937, was at that time assigned in the Judge Advocate General's office here.

Msgr. William R. Arnold, chief of Army chaplains, will officiate at the funeral services. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

William S. Rhodes Funeral Today

Funeral services for William S. Rhodes, veteran of the Spanish-American and World wars, who died Tuesday in Naval Hospital, will be conducted at 8:30 a. m. today at his home, 1311 West Virginia avenue northeast.

The services will be followed by a requiem mass at Holy Name Church at 9 a. m. The United Spanish War Veterans also will conduct rites. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Florence Roberts, Noted Actress, Dies

Hollywood, June 6 (AP).—Florence Roberts, 69, who played "Grandma" in the series of Jones Family pictures, was found dead today in her bed. A physician said death was due to natural causes.

Miss Roberts, popular stage favorite in the days of David Belasco, was born in Frederick, Md.

JOE PALOOKA — A Big Press — BY HAM FISHER

THEY DIDN'T TELL A THING OVER AT BALONKI'S CAMP. THE SCRIBES ARE JUST GUESSING.
I CAUGHT WILBUR WOOD, CAS ADAMS, PARKER AN' LEWIN CROSS-EXAMININ' JOE AFTER HIS WORK-OUT YESTERDAY.
AN' HE TOLD 'EM HE'S OUT T'MOBILIZE BALONKI.
PARKER SAYS THIS OUGHT TO BE THE DIRTIEST SCRAP IN RING HISTORY.
THAT MEANS A TERRIFIC GATE. THE DIRTIER IT IS THE MORE THE FANS'LL GO FER IT.

Baseball fans in Washington, Maryland, Virginia and points east, west, north and south are currently making a fine effort to clip WJSV of vast supplies of box seat tickets to ball games at Griffith Stadium via Arch McDonald's contest now running.

WJSV has offered seats to the fifty persons guessing the percentage figure which will follow the word "Washington" in the American League club standings the evening of July 4. If the person or persons winning live more than 50 miles from town they will receive two tickets so their trip in will be well worth while.

If nobody hits the percentage on the nose the closest 50 will collect. However, if the Nats are standing at .500 or .334 or at the figure they had when the contest started it'll be a sad, sad day for the WJSV exchequer. Because those numbers have proven extremely popular. Most of the entries feel the Nats will be in there somewhere around .350 or .375—which is a bit better than one victory to two defeats.

It is pretty breathtaking to view the postcards and letters this contest is pulling. As some other super mind once remarked this radio is a great thing. We've had customers sending in notes from New York City and as far South as the deeper regions of North Carolina.

Columbia's station for the Nation's capital is a busy place these evenings what with the political pot aboiling and many of our legislators with some pretty strong thoughts on the European situation. Tonight Paul V. McNutt will originate a talk to the nationwide network from WJSV at 9 p. m.; tomorrow Representative Joseph Martin, Jr., speaks from here at 9:15 p. m. and Thursday Jesse Jones talks at the same time.

Orphans in Love

By Marion White

Ellen Carlan has loved Peter Storm since both were children. They take refuge from a storm in the deserted Tucker mansion and note the resemblance of Peter to Jonathan Tucker. John Abbott fears his deception 25 years ago when he abandoned the only heir at the orphanage, will be discovered and offers Peter a job in his firm. Mother Rosa at the orphanage sends Ellen to Rosalind, a famous designer who hires her as a model. The Abbotts decide Peter and Millicent would be a good match. Ellen models a bridal gown at Rosalind's fall show, which Roger Maillard attends with his sister. The handsome millionaire falls in love with Ellen. Ellen gets her chance at dressmaking when a maid spills ink on a bridal gown and she makes a substitute dress. It is accepted and Rosalind promotes Ellen to designer. On Christmas, Peter and Ellen return to the orphanage with gifts for everyone, then he shows Ellen the Tucker house, cleaned and decorated for the occasion. Ellen finds a letter from Paris dated 1913 in a Bible and thrusts it in her pocket when Millicent arrives unexpectedly.

Chapter 32

INNUMERABLE outdoor Christmas trees, hung with electric lights of blue and red and green, flashed by as they drove along; almost no home was without its decoration of good cheer.

Even across the river, from the dark cliffs of the Palisades, Christmas lights blinked through every opening in the trees.

"Christmas is always glorious," Peter agreed. But he was not thinking of Christmas. He was watching her, admiring the clear profile silhouetted against the beauty of the night. The soft radiance of her hair reflected starlight. His heart quickened; he felt his blood coursing through his veins in tumultuous warmth.

In such moments the wonder of it would catch up with him—the wonder that Peter Storm, the nobody, had been so transported that he shared this other world, this strange, remote upper world which held the golden princess of all his dreams.

He would wonder and hold his breath in tremulous concern, lest the whole image should be dispelled, and he would be once again the Peter Storm who checked long listings of hardware for $30 a week and dreamed great, impossible dreams of what he might accomplish.

And as always, in these strange moments of unreality, Millicent spoke, and the very fact of her speech was sweet and positive reassurance.

"Did I do wrong," she asked him with pleasing condescension, "to Roger Maillard?" She pursued the subject with subtle deliberation.

"I wasn't. It's the truth."

"What is?"

"She's been seen everywhere with him lately. The whole town is talking. . . ."

He frowned. "Gossip! Stupid gossip!" He resented these insinuations, without understanding his resentment.

He didn't want Ellen linked with some empty-headed playboy. Or so he told himself.

Millicent took her eyes from the road for an instant, glanced over at him. "Does it annoy you, Peter?"

"Annoy me? Certainly not. Why should it? I just don't want people gossiping about Ellen."

"Why not?"

Means a Lot

"Because—well, because she means a great deal to me. She's been a sister to me ever since we were kids."

"Oh." She drove along in silence for several moments. Then: "You know, it would be a splendid thing for her."

"What? Running around with some play-boy?" He puckered his brow irritably.

"Roger isn't that sort at all, Peter. He's splendid. And from what I understand, he's really in love with her. Think what it would mean: The Maillards are one of the best families in the country. Roger has millions."

He did not answer. The idea still bewildered him. Ellen, and a fellow like this . . .

Presently he heard Millicent saying: "I guess it means more to you than you admit, Peter."

He started, guiltily. "Why do you say that?"

Should Be Happy

"If she were only a sister to you, then you'd be delighted that something like this should happen to her."

"Naturally, I would be, if I were sure . . ."

"Sure of what?"

"That he's on the level."

"I see. That's the real reason?"

"Of course. Why?"

She smiled wistfully. "At first it seemed as if you were jealous."

"Jealous? Jealous of Ellen? Don't be ridiculous! We know each other too well to be romantic about it."

"I'm glad of that, Peter." Her voice was vibrant with an undercurrent of emotion. "You see, I've been jealous of her . . ."

He turned to look at her suddenly. "You've been what?"

"Jealous, I said. Is that so hard to understand?"

He did not answer immediately. He felt like a man stepping out on thin ice, knowing that the slightest false step would be his undoing.

"Don't I mean anything to you, Peter?" The question was a challenge.

He answered her gravely. "You are the entire meaning of life. I told you that once before, Millicent." The words came from him slowly and haltingly.

"Then you do love me?"

Direct Question

They released the dream woman who dwelt far above him in a mystical shrine, left him beside a flesh-and-blood creature like himself, warm and responsive and lovelier than all the world. He moved closer, slipping an arm across the back of the seat.

Millicent drove more slowly. Presently his arm tightened on her shoulder. He indicated the wide semi-circle of roadway to the right of them. "Stop here a minute," he whispered.

Beneath them the river moved slowly; lights passed in a confusing world of darkness and mysterious beauty, and high in the heavens the stars looked down in ever brightening glory.

Moments Pass

Moments passed, moments in which there was little to be said, even less to be planned and considered and determined. The world offered itself to them.

Then Peter drew back, recalled to reality. He released his hold on her, looked out across the river, not daring to meet her eyes.

"Of course you know," he said a little gloomily, "that this is all presumption and madness . . ."

"I only know that I love you, Peter."

He caught her to him once again. Then: "You can't, Millicent, my dearest. It's all so impossible. I'm a $50-a-week clerk in your father's office."

"That doesn't matter, dear. Father can rearrange everything."

"But I don't want that! I want to amount to something on my own. I can't have my life arranged so easily. Can't you understand, Millicent?"

She nestled close against the rough texture of his coat. "Don't let's talk about it, then. Let's have this night . . ."

Shook Head

He shook his head stubbornly. "We must face tomorrow. All the tomorrows. It will be two years, Millicent, two long years before I'm out of school." He paused, as if counting each one against the day of his freedom. "Will you wait?"

In the darkness he did not see her frown. "I'll wait forever, darling. Don't ask such foolish questions now. Everything will be all right."

Everything will be all right. Even as she urged him to forgetfulness, she was planning each trivial detail in her own mind—details of money and position and security, readjustments her father must agree to. Yes, everything would be all right. Everything would be arranged.
